Weekly Reflection

There are many images that can help us understand who we are and what we should be about in this world. One such image is yeast. A packet of yeast is made up of many tiny grains that quickly melt in warm water. It can then blend with the dough and make it rise. Reflect on how you might be like yeast in the world. The little daily things you do may seem unimportant but they are your grains of yeast. Small acts of kindness, patience, willingness to help others and forgive can spread throughout our world and raise up those around us,
