ST. IGNATIUS LOYOLA: FEAST DAY - JULY 31

Born Inigo Lopez de Loyola in 1491, the man known as Ignatius of Loyola entered the world in Loyola, Spain. Inigo was the youngest of thirteen children. His mother died when he was just seven, and he was then raised by Maria de Garin, who was the wife of a blacksmith. His last name, "Loyola" was taken from the village of his birth. Despite the misfortune of losing his mother he was still a member of the local aristocracy and was raised accordingly. Inigo was an ambitious young man who had dreams of becoming a great leader. He was influenced by stories such as The Song of Roland and El Cid. By the time he was eighteen, he became a soldier and would fight for Antonio Manrique de Lara, Duke of Nájera and Viceroy of Navarre.

Seeking wider acclaim, he began referring to himself as Ignatius. Ignatius was a variant of Inigo. The young Ignatius also gained a reputation as a duelist. Ignatius fought in several battles under the leadership of the Duke of Najera. He had a talent for emerging unscathed, despite participating in many battles. His talent earned him promotions and soon he commanded his own troops.

In 1521, while defending the town of Pamplona against French attack, Ignatius was struck by a cannonball in the legs. One leg was merely broken, but the other was badly mangled. After suffering for a month, his doctors warned him to prepare for death.

On June 29, 1521, on the feast of Saints Peter and Paul, Ignatius began to improve. As soon as he was healthy enough to bear it, part of one leg was amputated which while painful, sped his recovery. During this time of bodily improvement, Ignatius began to read whatever books he could find. Most of the books he obtained were about the lives of the saints and Christ. These stories had a profound impact on him, and he became more devout.

As he lay bedridden, Ignatius developed a desire to become a working servant of Christ. He especially wanted to convert non-Christians. Among his profound realizations, was that some thoughts brought him happiness and others sorrow. When he considered the differences between these thoughts, he recognized that two powerful forces were acting upon him. Evil brought him unpleasant thoughts while God brought him happiness. Ignatius discerned God's call, and began a new way of life, following God instead of men.

By the spring of 1522, Ignatius had recovered enough to leave bed. On March 25, 1522, he entered the Benedictine monastery, Santa Maria de Montserrat. Before an image of the Black Madonna, he laid down his military garments. He gave his other clothes away to a poor man. His time in prayer and contemplation helped him to understand himself better. He also gained a better understanding of God and God's plan for him.

The next year, in 1523, Ignatius made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land. His goal was to live there and convert non-believers. However, the Holy Land was a troubled place and Church officials did not want Ignatius to complicate things further. They asked him to return after just a fortnight.

Ignatius eventually decided he needed more education, so he traveled north, seeking better schools and teachers. He was 38 years old when he entered the College of Saint Barbe of the University of Paris. Ignatius earned a master's degree at the age of 44. When he subsequently applied for his doctorate, he was passed over because of his age. He also suffered from ailments, which the school was concerned could impact his studies.

While at school in Paris, Ignatius roomed with Peter Faber and Francis Xavier. Faber was French and Xavier was Basque. The men became friends and Ignatius led them in his spiritual exercises. Other men soon joined their exercises and became followers of Ignatius.

Pope Paul III received the group and approved them as an official religious order in 1540. They called themselves the Society of Jesus. Some people who did not appreciate their efforts dubbed them "Jesuits" in an attempt to disparage them. While the name stuck, by virtue of their good work the label lost its negative connotation. The Society of Jesus soon found its niche in education. Before Ignatius died in 1556, his order established 35 schools and boasted 1,000 members. The order was responsible for much of the work of stopping the spread of the Protestant Reformation. The Society advocated the use of reason to persuade others and combat heresy.

Today, the Society of Jesus is known for its work in educating the youth around the world. Several universities have been founded in the name of Ignatius and in the traditional Jesuit spirit. The Jesuits also perform many other important works around the globe.

Ignatius' passed away on July 31, 1556, at the age of 64. He was beatified by Pope Paul V on July 27, 1609 and canonized on March 12, 1622. His feast day is July 31. He is the patron saint of the Society of Jesus, soldiers, educators and education.

50th/25th Wedding Anniversary Celebration

We want to use this column to give ourselves a much needed review of our religious knowledge. It will be an 'on-going' column and will follow the three year cycle of readings at Mass.

Reading I: Genesis 18:20-32a
Responsorial Psalm 138:1-2, 2-3, 6-7, 7-8
Reading II: Colossians 2:12-14
Gospel: Luke 11:1-13

Go Ahead, Ask Again

When there is something that you want, do you pray to God? A lot of us "whisper a little prayer." Others put aside time each day for asking. A number of people use the present web site to pray about the readings and to understand them.

Of course, in our secular culture of the USA there are those who do not believe in prayer at all. So, when their friend is having an operation or is traveling or something else, they say, "We will be thinking of you." This instead of "we will be praying for you." I always ask myself, what good does it do to "think about them"?

Others go all out.

God gives us what we ask for in some form or other, but he wants us to be persistent in asking.

When Pope John Paul came to St. Louis quite a number of years ago, a group of cloistered nuns known popularly as "the Pink Sisters" prayed many months for sunny clear days during his visit. Guess what happened. Sunny clear days the entire time. Then, at the exact minute his plane lifted off to take him back, I watched as the clouds gathered and the rain began to fall.

Persistent prayer. Sunday's readings teach us this. Be obstinate.

Abraham in the First Reading is an example. Abraham's visitors from last week continued on their way to the city called Sodom, and God went with Abraham. God tells about his intention to destroy Sodom and its surrounding cities because of the debauchery there.

Against all reason and expectation, Abraham began negotiating with God, right out loud.

He said, will you sweep away the innocent with the guilty? Suppose there were fifty innocent people in the city; would you wipe out the entire place rather than spare it for the sake of the fifty innocent people within it? ... Should not the judge of all the world act with justice?

God agrees that he will not destroy the city if fifty innocent people can be found there. Sly Abraham asks for more. Would God agree to spare the city even if only forty-five innocent people were found? We feel God's reluctance as he agrees. What about forty? Ok, God says. Abraham goes on and on until he has negotiated the number down to ten. God replies, "For the sake of those ten, I will not destroy it."

Abraham stops there. As you may know, it turned out that not even ten innocents lived in the town, so Sodom got destroyed. But notice, God had granted each of Abraham's prayers.

Jesus recommends the same kind of shrewdness. In the Gospel he tells the famous parable about knocking on the door of a friend late at night to borrow some bread. The friend refuses because he and his family are all in bed. Jesus says, "If he does not get up to give the visitor the loaves because of their friendship, he will get out of bed to give him what he needs because of his persistence."

Fine, but why do we have to be persistent and pray to God for the same thing over and over? Why do we have to haggle?

Because of love.

God is like a human father who loves his child very much. He does not always give his child everything the child wheedles for. Sometimes he needs to teach him or her who is in charge of things, the parent or the child. Most of the time God gives us what we ask for in some form or other, but he wants us to be persistent in asking so we will learn humility and acceptance. And when we suffer, he sits beside our bed and suffers with us.

Keep knocking and it will be opened to you.

John Foley, SJ
