

Pastor's Message

April 1, 2020

For all of us, the expectation that we practice social distancing could lead to the danger of spiritual deprivation. To practice the former, should not result to being stuck in the latter.

Certainly, a safe distance from one another is a prudent practice to maintain your health, as well as the other person's good health. To practice it is necessary now. In our present reality, it is actually part of our sacred vocation as caring citizens of this great nation.

Nonetheless, its practice should not be detrimental to our spiritual welfare. Do not avoid going to places where the Lord could be found. For example, even if church doors are locked, come to church! Walk near it and all around it. Pray near the statues surrounding our parish church. Do whatever you can to draw close to the Lord from the outside, as you make a brief visitation.

In addition, as the weather improves, a short prayer walk somewhere may strengthen your soul, and the souls of your beloved family and friends. Don't let the isolation prevent you from bonding with the Lord outside, in God's creation.

May nothing distance us from Divine Presence.

We all need God so much during this time of our lives.

God bless you with good health- physically and spiritually.

Fr. Marc
