Helen Adams Keller was born on June 27, 1880. She died on June 1, 1968. Helen was a remarkable woman.

She was an American author, political activist, and lecturer. And, most amazingly, despite becoming deaf and blind at the age of nineteen months, Helen is the first person being deaf and blind, to earn a Bachelor of Arts degree from a college.

How did she accomplish such a remarkable achievement? I advise you to read about her incredible life in regard to obtaining the answer to that specific question. See https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Helen_Keller

However, I wish to highlight one of the most inspirational quotes from Ms. Keller. She stated, "The best and most beautiful things in the world cannot be seen or even touched - they must be felt with the heart."

Consider her insightful advice. If a woman like Helen, neither able to hear, nor see, can experience what is best and beautiful in life, why do we miss such opportunities to do so? Let's open our ears and eyes to recognize all of it, especially as to what is best and beautiful in those whom we love.

Peace,
Fr. Marc
