July 8, 2020

Earlier this week, while in my car at drive-in port of a local bank, a very pleasant wish came from the teller.

Following my monetary transaction, as I was removing the items from the plastic container which defied gravity as it completed its flow through a small wind tunnel to me sitting in the car, the teller said, “God bless you!”

Indeed, it is a common phrase said in settings such as at church, among friends, between neighbors, and within the family. But, an uncommon phrase said at the drive-in port of a local bank, by the teller!

It was a very pleasant wish to hear from her. And, I didn't even sneeze before she said it!

Maybe, like the bank teller, all of us should extend that wish to others more often, in the uncommon places we find ourselves. We all need God's blessings. His blessings are needed especially now, when our beloved society is experiencing social unrest and healing from a pandemic.

God bless you. And, pass it on!
