ST. MARTHA – Feast day Monday, July 29 – “As Jesus entered a certain village a woman called Martha welcomed him into her house.” St. John and St. Luke attest to the fact that Martha enjoyed the friendship and esteem of Jesus. According to St. Luke (10:36-42), who provides one of the possible gospel texts for her feast day, Martha is apparently the head of the household. She is described as “busy with all the details of hospitality,” or in a more recent translation, “burdened with much serving.” Martha is a model of hospitality and genuine concern, and activist for sure. She is one who knows the value of and the need for contemplation against the need for temporal concern and service. The virtue of hospitality is praised throughout the New Testament, and the gospel lists it as one of the works of charity by which we will be judged. “I was hungry and you gave me food; I was thirsty and you gave me drink.” (Matthew 25:35). And Jesus, with no home of his own, relied on the practice of hospitality and was often a guest.

ST. IGNATIUS OF LOYOLA, PRIEST – Feast day Wednesday July 31 – The youngest of thirteen children, Ignatius was born of noble Basque parents in 1491. He pursued a military career; was wounded in battle and while recuperating he began to read a life of Christ and lives of the saints and was so impressed that he decided to devote himself to Christ. After a long period of prayer and fasting and penance, after long spiritual struggle, he began to write of his conversion experience in his great work the Spiritual Exercises. For the next eleven years he was a student at various European universities. In 1534, 43 years old, he, together with six others, St. Francis Xavier among them, founded the Society of Jesus. St. Ignatius set three goals for the Church and as normative guiding principles for his society’s activities: reform of the Church especially through education and frequent use of the sacraments, widespread missionary activity, and the fight against heresy. At the time of his death in 1556 the Society of Jesus was well established in these endeavors.
