Words of Inspiration:

Keep Making Things New

My wife once wondered aloud whether Lent has more longevity than Easter. By the fifth week of Lent parishes are still hosting penance services, muting sanctuaries with austere décor, and presenting living stations of the cross. As we enter the corresponding week of the Easter season, are we still making all things new? Do we gaze upon the new paschal candle with the same attentive reverence we assigned to the cross on Palm Sunday? Are there still bright colors in our sanctuaries and thoughts? We are said to be an Easter people, but if our alleluias fade earlier than our Lenten repentance, perhaps we should walk the "living stations of Easter," plant flowers in barren soil and hearts, and light up the world by our Easter witness.

FROM THE PASTOR'S DESK:

Dear Parishioners,

The Gospel for the Fifth Sunday of Easter contains the commandment of Jesus to love one another as He has loved us. We know how difficult those words are to truly live out. We encounter people throughout our lives that we may deem unlovable. However, we know that God loves each person unconditionally. We are called to see in each person a reflection of God's love. The great challenge comes in the final words of the Gospel. Jesus reminds us that the only way we will be known as His disciples is if we love one another.

Love is a word that often falls easily from our lips. It is however a word that calls us to action. We cannot say we love God or our neighbor unless we put love into action.

As we read from the Acts of the Apostles during the Easter Season, we hear how those early disciples of Jesus put their love of Christ into action by proclaiming His message to others. They often faced threats of persecution and endured many hardships. They were never deterred but recognized that they were doing not their own work but the work of God.

May we put our love for Christ and for one another into action.

Msgr. John T. Ferry, pastor
