Thirtieth Sunday in Ordinary Time

In asking which is the greatest commandment, the Pharisees expected Jesus to tell them what he felt was not essential about the law. Jesus' answer, love of God and neighbor, centers all observance of the law on love. To those who heard him, people whose whole culture and way of life was based on the law, Jesus was saying that every detail of their lives depended on love. St. Paul understood this: Love is the fulfilling of the law. It draws our souls willingly to God. The Father demonstrated love by sending his only son to bring us forgiveness and to reconcile us to the Father. Jesus, who is God's love calling us to love in return, living it by saying "yes" to the Father's plan, even though it meant leaving the throne of heaven and dying on the cross at the hands of the people he had created. We experience that love when we unite ourselves to God's will.

The world has saturated our thoughts about love with human ideology. We are steeped in popular notions absorbed from television, movies, magazines and books of all kinds. We tend to think of love as emotional, sensual, uncontrollable; we fall in love as if we stumble over it in the dark, or wake up to find that love has gone as if it were a coward that has fled at daylight. But we are called to will and to do what God wants and are empowered to do this by his love for us. That and not a feeling inside is love of God.

Love of God means that we worship him only, not our families, job or possessions; loving our neighbors means that we are patient, kind and bear all things. To understand this, we must first ask God to teach us what his love is, to teach us what these injunctions mean in our lives. Only if our love is rooted in the love of God will it bear fruit for the salvation of others. We love God when we choose his will and obey it. The power comes from God, the decision is ours. Let us open ourselves and ask him to teach us. Then we will be able to love our neighbor as God loves, freely generously, and without reservation.

Trigésimo Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario

Al preguntar cuál es el mandamiento más importante, los fariseos esperaban que Jesús les dijera lo que él sentía que no era esencial acerca de la ley. La respuesta de Jesús, el amor a Dios y al prójimo, centra toda la observancia de la ley en el amor. Para aquellos que lo escucharon, personas cuya cultura y forma de vida se basaba en la ley, Jesús les estaba diciendo que cada detalle de sus vidas dependía del amor.

San Pablo entendió esto: el amor es el cumplimiento de la ley. Atrae voluntariamente nuestras almas a Dios. El Padre demostró amor al enviar a su único hijo para traernos el perdón y reconciliarnos con el Padre. Jesús, que es el amor de Dios llamándonos a amar a cambio, viviéndolo diciendo "sí" al plan del Padre, aunque significó dejar el trono del cielo y morir en la cruz a manos de las personas que él había creado. Experimentamos ese amor cuando nos unimos a la voluntad de Dios.

El mundo ha saturado nuestros pensamientos sobre el amor con ideología humana. Estamos impregnados de nociones populares absorbidas de la televisión, películas, revistas y libros de todo tipo. Tendemos a pensar en el amor como emocional, sensual, incontrolable; nos enamoramos como si tropezáramos con él en la oscuridad, o nos despertamos para encontrar que el amor se ha ido como si fuera un cobarde que ha huido al amanecer. Pero estamos llamados a querer y a hacer lo que Dios quiere y tenemos el poder de hacerlo por su amor por nosotros. Eso y no un sentimiento interior es amor por Dios.

El amor a Dios significa que lo adoramos solo a él, no a nuestra familia, trabajo o posesiones; Amar a nuestro prójimo significa que somos pacientes, amables y soportamos todas las cosas. Para entender esto, primero debemos pedirle a Dios que nos enseñe lo que es su amor, que nos enseñe lo que estos mandamientos significan en nuestras vidas. Solo si nuestro amor está arraigado en el amor de Dios, dará frutos para la salvación de los demás. Amamos a Dios cuando elegimos su voluntad y la obedecemos. El poder viene de Dios, la decisión es nuestra. Abrámonos y pidamos que nos enseñe. Entonces seremos capaces de amar a nuestro prójimo como Dios ama, libremente, con generosidad y sin reservas.
