Miracle or just sharing?

Reading between the lines of this description of today's Gospel of the situation of the crowd, we find something very important. People forget to eat in order to stay with Jesus. This means that Jesus must have known how to attract people, even to the point that they forget everything to follow Him in the desert.

This manner of Luke's speaking to the communities of the 80's (and of all times) recalls the Eucharist. For these very words will be used (and are still used) in the celebration of the Supper of the Lord. Luke suggests that the Eucharist must lead to the multiplication of the loaves, that is, to sharing. It must help Christians to take care of the concrete needs of the neighbor. It is the bread of life that gives courage and leads the Christian to face the problems of the crowd in a new way, not from outside, but from among the crowd.

Maybe some will ask, "There was no miracle then? It was just a sharing?" What I would like to propose here are three reflections by way of an answer:

A first reflection: Which would be the greater miracle today: for instance, that on a certain day of the year, say Christmas, everyone has enough to eat and receives a Christmas hamper; or perhaps that people begin to share their bread so that no one goes hungry and there would be leftovers for other crowds. Which would be the greater miracle? What do you think?

A second reflection: The word miracle (miraculum) comes from the verb to admire. A miracle is an extraordinary action, outside the normal, that causes admiration and leads us to think of God.

The great miracle, the greatest miracle of all, is:

1. Jesus Himself, God made man! Thus God becomes extraordinarily human as only God can be human!

Another great miracle is:

2. The change that Jesus succeeds in working among the crowd that is used to solutions from outside. Jesus succeeds in making the crowd face its problem from within and to take into account the means at their disposal.

A great miracle, an extraordinary thing is:

3. That through this gesture of Jesus', all eat and there are leftovers! When we share, there is always more... and leftovers! So there are three great miracles: Jesus Himself, the conversion of people and the sharing of goods leading to an abundance! Three miracles born of a new experience of God as Father revealed to us in Jesus. This experience of God changed all mental categories and the way of life. It opened an entirely new horizon and created a new way of living together with others.

This is the greatest miracle: another world made possible!

A third reflection: It is difficult to know how things happened. No one is saying that Jesus did not work a miracle. He worked many miracles! But we must not forget that the greatest miracle is the resurrection of Jesus. Through their faith in Jesus, people begin to live in a new way, sharing bread with the brothers and sisters who have nothing and are hungry: "None of their members were ever in want, as all those who owned land or houses would sell them, and bring the money from them to present it to the apostles". When a miracle is described in the bible, the greater attention is drawn not towards the miraculous aspect, but rather towards the meaning the miracle has for life and for the faith of the community of those who believe in Jesus, the revelation of the Father.

In the so-called "first world" of the so-called "Christian" countries, animals have more to eat than human beings of the "third world". Many people are hungry! This means that the Eucharist has not taken deep root yet, nor does it reach out as it could and should.
