Seventeenth Sunday in Ordinary Time July 29, 2018

It is hard to believe, but two months from this weekend, God-willing, I will be ordained a transitional Deacon. The time has flown since I first entered seminary 5 years ago and first recognized the call to priesthood over 7 years ago. One thing that has always remained a constant through all the rigors that is known as seminary formation has been your prayers and support. There is no way that I could ever say thank you enough. The best I can do is to always promise my prayers for you.

I wanted to take this time to reflect with you on some elements of the Oath of Fidelity that I will take just a few days before the Ordination as well as on the Rite of Ordination itself.

The Oath of Fidelity is the last step before ordination, and is recited publicly before the people of God, represented by the congregation who will be present in the seminary Chapel. It represents my promise before God of how I will act and teach the faith in my life and that I will always remain in “communion with the Catholic Church.” It is this profession of unity with words and actions that scares the devil the most, since the evil one wishes to breed disunity. However, God has given the way to combat this disunity specifically in the promise of obedience to the Bishop and his successors, it is in unity with the Church that we are strengthened by God.

I will promise to complete my ministry with the “greatest care and fidelity.” Men are ordained not for part-time work, but rather it will be the focus of my life. The Church does not need lazy men, rather the harvest is plentiful and she needs many laborers. Ordained ministry is not about being served, but rather calls upon any ordained man to greater service.

This work though cannot be done without evangelization, since a faith that does not evangelize is not alive. I will promise to “hand it [the deposit of faith] on and explain it.” In a real way, when I receive the Book of the Gospels during the Rite of Ordination, I will be required to explain the faith to others so that the faithful may deepen in their love of Christ and others can come to know Him.

Within the Rite of Ordination itself the role of service is greatly emphasized. In the general instruction of the Rite, it states, “the local Church requests the Bishop to ordain the candidates.” This statement is a clear sign that ordination is always directed towards service of the people, on behalf of the people, and through the desire of God. It is not I who requests ordination, but the Church requests it for me, I only express my resolve to fulfill the office always in union with the Church.

The most important part to reflect upon though is the prayer of ordination itself which leads up to a request, “Send forth upon them, Lord, we pray, the Holy Spirit...” This request of being strengthened by the Spirit with His seven gifts is at the heart of the ordination prayer. This request to enter deeper into Christ’s life with the gift of the Holy Spirit is not for my personal sanctification, rather it is to become a better servant for others. It is with the graces of these gifts that the ordained can live God’s message in such a way to, “inspire the imitation of your holy people.”

The sacred ministries, whether it be diaconate, priesthood or even the episcopacy, are not for the man being ordained, rather they are always at the service of you, the Church, and always united together with the Roman Catholic Church.

We get the sweetest comfort
When we wear the oldest shoe.
We love the old friends better
Than we'll ever love the new.
Old songs are more appealing
To the wearied heart...and so
We find the sweetest music
In the tunes of long ago.
There's a kind of mellow sweetness
In a good thing growing old;
Each year that rolls around
Leaves an added touch of gold.

Bereavement Testimony – Anna Marrano

Bereavement refers specifically to the process of recovering from the death of a loved one. People who attend a support group learn a lot about themselves and the lives of other people who are going through the same pain (grief). Grief is a normal response after the loss of the loved one and it's important to realize that everyone grieves differently. Some people may get over a loved ones death rather quickly while it could take others to do just that. There is no right or wrong way to grieve.

Our bereavement support group with Father Owen helped us understand this and he was there to guide us through the grieving process and offered individuals the opportunity to come together with others who were grieving and wanted support in managing their grief more effectively. Grief is a reaction to bereavement ranging in feelings from deep sadness, anger and the process of adapting to a significant loss from one person to another depending on beliefs, and relationship to what was lost. Grieving behavior ranges from crying, laughing, and confusion. Some people find comfort in the company of others, particularly those affected by some loss where others prefer to be alone with their feelings. Grief can be complicated by depression due to some people being more emotional and diving into their feelings. Others may seek distractions from an unchangeable way of living. Express your feelings, accept comfort, ask questions and find peace with faith. Bereavement draws people closer to God because He is the only one who, through real prayer, you find hope and comfort in.

As we were all sitting around the tables, about 20 of us, we were all introducing ourselves. Who had lost a mother, a husband, a sister, a brother and who had lost a son and a couple had even lost two children. Tears were coming down to each one of us, our hearts were crying to each other and you could feel the sadness fill the room. As the weeks went by we shared sad stories and at some point happy stories about our loved ones. To me personally I could not have done this without the help of Father Owen. His prayers, kind words, and how he knows just what to say at the right times. I don't think that any of us would be here today without his help, blessing and prayers.

I pray to God to please give peace to my confusion, joy to my sadness and hope to my heart. I can never get over losing my husband, but I know that I haven't lost him. I know just where he is. He's not coming back to me but he is with me at all times. He sends me signs to let me know that he never went away, he's with me when I sleep, or he wraps his arms around me when I cry. With tears in my eyes, I always manage to say that I'm okay. I can't be strong all the time, sometimes I just need to be alone and let my tears out. The most beautiful thing left are memories, pictures and a smile. I started thinking how blessed I am and my eyes start tearing up and I thank God for my family and friends that are always there for me. The only choice I have is to be strong for them. There are people that walk with me but cannot walk for me. I ask God why are you still blessing me and He said, I need to bless you so that you can be a blessing for your children and grandchildren. They are still having a hard time understanding why he left this earth so soon, they weren't ready to say goodbye. But as it's almost a year we begin to accept not just that he died, but that he lived and his life gave us memories too beautiful to forget. Our love for him will never go away, he walks with us everyday unseen, unheard, but always near. He will forever be loved and missed.

Early Childhood Center News

Saintroseoflimaecc.org

St. Rose of Lima Early Childhood Center was able to purchase a new piece of playground equipment for the Toddler Program once again, due to the generosity of our Parents and our St. Rose Parent Committee. A Beefsteak & Tricky Tray Dinner was held in April of 2018 to raise money for new equipment and additional supplies for the school. The NEW Toddler Program is designed to accommodate children from 12 months to 2 ½ years old. This age is full of exploration and growth in language and social skills. Toddlers are extremely curious and active learners, and our teachers recognize this and tailor their classroom specifically for the adventurous nature of this age group. Pictured are some of our toddlers, our toddler caregivers- Mrs. Sharon Roszkowski, Mrs. Judy Nuciforo and the Director, Mrs. Lorie Agrifolio.
