Confident Parenting in Uncertain Times

The uncertainty of how this COVID season will impact our immediate future in the midst of a media culture programmed to seek control of the hearts and minds of our families can shake our own confidence to our core if we allow it. So what does faith have to do with it?

If you are dealing with some anxiety about being the parent your child needs you to be, you are in good company. For our faith tells us that God equips the called; he does not call who is equipped. (Romans 8:30)

Learning objectives include how our faith informs us about:

- ◇ The Christ-centered authority of parents to be their child's primary teacher for life.
- ◇ The difference between compliance and obedience when addressing behavior and behavioral health issues at home.
- ◇ How to create a family creed and house rules to teach discipline as a civics lesson about freedom.
- ◇ How science informs us about the vulnerability and resilience of the human condition and what this understanding means for genuine connection in the parent-child relationship.

For God hath not given us a spirit of fear; but a spirit of power and love and sound mind.

(2 Timothy 1:7)

A Foundation to Empower Families

About the presenter Joanna Jullien: This faith-based parenting series is presented by Joanna Jullien, SJM Parenting Ministry Leader and Parenting and Family Life Coach at Core Connectivity – A Foundation to Empower Families. Joanna is an author and educator on strengthening the parent-child relationship in a cyber-powered world. She is a former technology executive trained in behavioral science at U.C. Berkeley, a mother of two grown sons, and an author of books for practical guidance on parenting, growing up and family life in the network culture. As a family and technology culture advisor, Joanna has appeared on 103.9FM The Fish, 710AM Keeping Faith in America, 1380AM The Answer, and Examiner.com.

The philosophy and trainings of Core Connectivity are informed by a study of faith as a civics lesson and the sciences of the brain, addiction, somatic properties of thought, and adverse childhood experiences (ACEs). Relevant historical references to Catholic figures and current literature will be incorporated along with explicit, practical references to Scripture.

To EDUCATE is to enlighten the mind and warm the heart to the love of God.” - St. Joseph Mareello
