FROM FR. MARCIN... My dear parishioners,

On this 33rd Sunday in Ordinary time, we shall meditate on the parable of the talents which deals with two very important themes and is very current: 1st point - The gifts which each person receives from God and the way in which he receives them. Each person has qualities and talents with which he can and should serve others. 2nd point - The attitude with which persons place themselves before God who has given us His gifts.

Think of all the gifts and graces and blessings we have received from God. We received the gift of life, family, friends, work, education, home, and all the conveniences of life. We can move up to a higher level of appreciation. We have received the gift of faith, forgiveness of our sins through Jesus' death and resurrection, continuing relationship with Jesus through Mass and the sacraments, prayer, and the Sacred Scriptures, the gift of his mother Mary as our spiritual mother also. How much do we value each of the blessings we have received? What do we make of what God has given to us? Are we selfish and lazy with what God has given to us or do we put it to good use?

I would like to see the talents in the parable taught by Jesus referring to virtues. A virtue is a good habit built up over time by practicing what is good. Therefore a virtue is something that increases as we do the right thing. Just as virtues increase by doing good, virtues also help us to do good. Virtues help us to control our passions and our conduct. The Catechism of the Catholic Church says virtues "make possible ease, self-mastery, and joy in leading a morally good life" and they "are acquired by human effort." (Catechism §1804).

In other words, just as the first two men in the parable worked to increase their talents we also have to work to increase our virtues. Virtues do not increase if we do nothing. There are four main human virtues and we call them human virtues for the simple reason that they "are acquired by human effort." (Catechism §1804), by education and perseverance. The four are prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance.

- Prudence helps us discern what is truly good in every circumstance, and guides our conscience as we make judgments.

- Justice is giving to God and neighbor what is their due, and promotes harmony in relationships.

- Fortitude is being firm during difficulties and constantly wanting what is good, and helps us to conquer fear so that if necessary we can even face trials and persecutions, and helps us to master our will and keep our desires within what is honorable.

- Temperance helps us to moderate pleasure and balance our consumption of goods.

There are three theological virtues. These virtues are poured into us by God so we call them theological virtues. They are faith, hope and charity.

- Faith is believing all that God has said and revealed to us and that the Church proposes to us because God is truth, and leads to professing our faith, giving witness to our faith and producing good works.

- Hope is desiring heaven and eternal life, and purifies our activities so that they have heaven as their goal.

- Charity is loving God above all things, and loving our neighbor for the sake of God, and raises up human love and perfects it like divine love.

The parable teaches us that salvation is not simply a question of "once saved, always saved" or once you profess Jesus as your Lord and Savior then everything is okay from then on. Surely the parable is teaching us that spiritual growth is ongoing for the rest of our lives.

It is not a question of once saved, always saved, but growing in virtue and fruits of the spirit for the rest of our lives. Let us double the talents, increasing our virtues of prudence, justice, fortitude and temperance. Let us allow the theological virtues of faith, hope and charity open us up ever more to God and his activity in our lives and let us allow the gifts of the Holy Spirit to bear fruits in our lives so that we may be worthy to hear, "Come, share your master's joy"

As we approach the conclusion of the Church Year 2017, the liturgy reminds us of "end times." Next Sunday we will commemorate the Feast of Our Lord Jesus Christ, King of the Universe. This will be the final Sunday of the Church Year 2017. This is the time we are invited to consider our own end in death and the accounting which we will need to make before our Master and Lord, Jesus Christ. So are you getting ready for the end? The Apostle Paul reminds us today, "For you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night."

OUR LADY OF THE MOUNTAIN PRAY FOR US...
ST. MARK PRAY FOR US...

.THANKSGIVING.

On this Thanksgiving Day, we are encouraged to pause and give thanks to God. When we give thanks, we bring to mind God's gifts to us. This, in turn, reminds us of God's gracious nature. We think, not just of what God has done, but also of who God is. Thus, thanks is a point of entry to praise. In the language of Psalm 100, we enter God's gates with thanksgiving, so that we might go into his courts with praise. There's no biblical rule that states that thanks must always come before praise. But, for many of us, thanksgiving for what God has done leads us to praise God for who he is.

So, may you enter God's gates with thanksgiving today, so that you might celebrate in his courts with praise! May God give you a rich and blessed Thanksgiving Day!

All praise be to you, O God, giver of all good gifts! All praise be to you, because your grace and mercy are without end! All praise be to you for the gift of life in this world, and life forever in the age to come! All praise to you, O God, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen!

FROM FR. SLAWEK...

St. Cecilia

Martyr (ca. Third Century) November 22

Though St. Cecilia has long enjoyed a popular cult, the first account of her life dates only from the fifth century. According to this story she was born to a patrician family in Rome and raised as a Christian. Although she wished to consecrate her life to God, she was betrothed to marry a young man named Valerian. On their wedding night she related to her husband that an angel watched over her and that if he "touched her in the way of marriage" the angel would be angry and cause him suffering. When Valerian asked to see this angel, Cecilia told him that if he received baptism he too would see the angel. Remarkably, Valerian consented.

The couple dedicated themselves to good works, particularly the perilous task of burying the bodies of martyrs. As a result they were eventually arrested and ordered to make sacrifices to the gods. Upon their refusal they were both executed. The soldier assigned to behead Cecilia botched the job. Left for dead, she lingered for three days.

Cecilia is depicted in art with a musical instrument. Her designation as patron of music apparently owes itself to a line in her biography that describes her on her wedding day "singing to the Lord in her heart."

FROM FR. JAVIER...

TEACHING FROM THE CATECHISM OF THE CATHOLIC CHURCH - THE TEN COMMANDMENTS

The Fourth Commandment – Fourth Part

Honor your father and your mother, that your days may be long in the land which the Lord your God gives you.

My dear brothers and sisters in Christ, the fourth commandment applies to the Authorities in Civil Society too.

According to the Catechism of the Catholic Church in the numeral 2235 says "Those who exercise authority should do so as a service. "Whoever would be great among you must be your servant." The exercise of authority is measured morally in terms of its divine origin, its reasonable nature and its specific object. No one can command or establish what is contrary to the dignity of persons and the natural law. The exercise of authority is meant to give outward expression to a just hierarchy of values in order to facilitate the exercise of freedom and responsibility by all. Those in authority should practice distributive justice wisely, taking account of the needs and contribution of each, with a view to harmony and peace. They should take care that the regulations and measures they adopt are not a source of temptation by setting personal interest against that of the community".

Political authorities are obliged to respect the fundamental rights of the human person. They will dispense justice humanely by respecting the rights of everyone, especially of families and the disadvantaged.

The political rights attached to citizenship can and should be granted according to the requirements of the common good. They cannot be suspended by public authorities without legitimate and proportionate reasons. Political rights are meant to be exercised for the common good of the nation and the human community.

Also it is the duty of citizens to contribute along with the civil authorities to the good of society in a spirit of truth, justice, solidarity, and freedom. The love and service of one's country follow from the duty of gratitude and belong to the order of charity. Submission to legitimate authorities and service of the common good require citizens to fulfill their roles in the life of the political community. May the Lord be in your families.
