

*Christ became obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross.
Because of this, God greatly exalted him.*

Cristo se humillo por nosotros y por obediencia aceptó incluso la muerte y una muerte de cruz. Por eso Dios lo exaltó sobre todas las cosas.

Palm Sunday of Lent, Year B, Domingo de Ramos, el año B del Evangelio de San Marcus March/Marzo 24/25, 2018

From The Deacon's Desk...

Palm Sunday is more than the usual scale and style of other Sundays. Today's Mass has an additional proclamation of Jesus' triumphal entry into Jerusalem, and a procession with palm branches. This annual rite tries to provoke our imaginations to engage the Gospel events more profoundly. We gather; we listen; we process; we acclaim! Lived in "full, conscious, and active participation" this Sunday can become an opportunity to walk with the Lord Jesus on his way to the final events of his earthly life.

El Domingo de Ramos es más que la escala y el estilo habitual de otros domingos. La Misa de hoy tiene una proclamación adicional de la entrada triunfal de Jesús en Jerusalén, y una procesión con ramas de palmera. Este rito anual intenta provocar nuestra imaginación para involucrar los eventos del Evangelio más profundamente. Nos reunimos; escuchamos; procesamos; ¡Aclamamos! Vivido en "participación plena, consciente y activa" este domingo puede convertirse en una oportunidad para caminar con el Señor Jesús en su camino hacia los eventos finales de su vida en tierra..

Cardinal Dolan calls for Supreme Court to uphold free speech for pro-life centers

By Editor, Catholic News Service, March 21, 2018

CATHOLIC HERALD (CNS)

The chairman of the US bishops' Committee on Pro-Life Activities said March 20 that he prayed the Supreme Court would "do the right thing and uphold our fundamental right to free speech" when it decides a case examining freedom of speech at crisis pregnancy centers.

"Pro-life pregnancy care centers embody everything that is right and good in our nation: generosity, compassion and love that is offered to support both mother and child," said Cardinal Timothy Dolan of New York in a statement issued the same day the high court heard oral arguments in NIFLA v Becerra.

The cardinal said that some government officials, instead of "applauding and encouraging the selfless and life-affirming work of these centers," want to "force them to provide free advertising for the violent act of abortion in direct violation of their pro-life convictions, their religious beliefs and the First Amendment freedoms."

The case before the Supreme Court will consider if a California law that went into effect in 2016 violates the U.S. Constitution by requiring the state's 200 crisis pregnancy centers to inform their clients, in specific detail, about the availability of free or low-cost abortion and contraceptive services and provide a referral number for them.

The law in question, called the Reproductive FACT Act, says, among other declarations, that centers must post such notices in areas where they will be clearly seen on paper that is "at least 8.5 inches by 11 inches and written in no less than 22-point type." Centers also are required to disclose in their advertisements if they have medical personnel on staff. Some centers provide counselling and offer supplies of diapers, formula, clothes and baby items. Centers that fail to comply are subject to fines of $500 for a first offence and $1,000 for subsequent offences.

Three pregnancy centers challenged the law in court saying it infringed on their First Amendment rights to freedom of speech and clearly unconstitutionally limited the free exercise of religion.

The pregnancy center law was upheld last October by a panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit that said the state could regulate professional speech because of its interest in safeguarding public health and to ensure that "citizens have access to and adequate information about constitutionally protected medical services like abortion."

It also said the required signs were simply to inform clients of the existence of these services and did not encourage or suggest that clients should use them. Last October, a California Superior Court judge granted a permanent injunction against the state attorney general preventing him from enforcing the Reproductive FACT law.

The USCCB and several other groups, including the California Catholic Conference and the Catholic Health Association of the United States, filed a friend-of-the-court brief with the Supreme Court supporting the pro-life pregnancy centers in NIFLA v. Becerra. "NIFLA" is the National Institute of Family and Life Advocates; "Becerra" is California Attorney General Xavier Becerra
