Fifteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time, Year B, 15° Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario, el año B del Evangelio de San Marcos July/Julio 14/15, 2018

From Deacon John...

Mark's Gospel tells us Jesus sent the Twelve calling them apostles which means "one who is sent." His instructions were specific, to preach and to share his authority to heal. Jesus sent them in pairs, that is, as community, instructing them to travel without resources so that they will be dependent on others, just as Jesus himself. Now, he sends us. We are not sent alone. We go forth as members of a community of faith, the only way the Christian message of love for God and neighbor can be authentically proclaimed.

El Evangelio de Marcos nos dice que Jesús envió a los Doce llamándolos apóstoles, lo que significa "uno que es enviado". Sus instrucciones eran específicas, para predicar y compartir su autoridad para sanar. Jesús los envió por parejas, es decir, como comunidad, instruyéndolos a viajar sin recursos para que dependan de los demás, como Jesús mismo. Ahora, él nos envía. No somos enviados solos. Salimos como miembros de una comunidad de fe, la única forma en que el mensaje cristiano de amor a Dios y al prójimo puede proclamarse auténticamente.

They are to preach and to share his authority to heal and to drive out demons. Jesus sends them in pairs, that is, as community. And, he instructs them to travel lightly, without resources so that they will be dependent on the hospitality of others, just as was Jesus himself. Now, Jesus sends us into the world. As those before us, we are not sent alone. We go forth as members of a community of faith, the only way the Christian message of love for God and neighbor can be authentically proclaimed. Thus, in our sending, we not only invite others to hear, we also work to strengthen this very community of faith.

Lithuania awaits Pope Francis' visit and message of hope

By Editor, Catholic News Service, July 12, 2018

Vatican City, (CNA/EWTN News)

Pope Francis is scheduled to undertake an apostolic journey to three Baltic nations from the 22nd to 25th of September when he will visit the cities of Vilnius and Kaunas in Lithuania, Riga and Aglona in Latvia and Tallinn in Estonia.

The Pope's visit marks the first papal trip to the countries in a quarter of a century. He will be the second pope to travel to the Baltic States, exactly 25 years after St. Pope John Paul II, who visited the three countries in September 1993.

The theme for his visit to Lithuania is 'Christ Jesus, Our Hope'. "I see the finger of God" in making this visit happen, said Archbishop Grušas as well as the direction that Pope Francis takes in general, a direction that is oriented towards the peripheries – be they social, economic, existential or geographic - and these countries, he said are on the periphery of Europe.

Grušas also pointed out that Francis is interested in the ecumenism of martyrdom as demonstrated by his visit to Albania, and said that Lithuania has a history of martyrdom, as well as being a nation where issues such as migration and human trafficking affect contemporary society.

Remarking on the fact that Pope Francis does not generally travel to celebrate anniversaries, Grušas said that "through a happy coincidence" he comes to Lithuania as the nation celebrates 100 years of independence and the 25th anniversary of the visit of Pope Saint John Paul II. "Divine providence has delivered a great gift" he said.

Grušas noted a new generation is growing, but the Church "still carries the wounds in the hearts of the people". He said it is rebuilding "buildings, structures, organizations" but is increasingly faced with the challenges of contemporary western society. He noted that people who are still recuperating from 50 years of occupation are facing new challenges and that the Church provides assistance. Regarding the main priorities of pastoral ministry Grušas said they are those of the Universal Church, namely the family and youth.

Noting that the roots of Divine Mercy devotion are in Lithuania, Grušas said that it disappeared for 50

(Visit continued) years and even after it came back to Lithuania, it was probably better known outside. But now, he said "We are experiencing a growing number of pilgrims coming from all over the world to visit and pray and visit the Shrine of Divine Mercy".

Describing the state of the relationship between the Catholic Church and the State as a very good one, Grušas explained that after independence the state recognized the role played by the Church during the occupation in "preserving both faith and the hope for freedom: that was valued by the people and by the Government". Then, he said, "Pope John Paul II's visit in 1993 put that relationship on a completely new level: it was the first time government officials worked hand-in-hand and side-by-side with church officials. A new respect was born".

"The first preparation for this visit is prayer" Grušas said. "Second is information" and reaching out to those who are not regular churchgoers, he continued, while from a logistic standpoint it is a large event and the Government is also doing its part.

"With the Pope's arrival we expect the guest who represents God's presence: we are preparing to have a great guest."

He said that just as Pope John Paul II's visit gave Lithuanians great hope at the beginning of a new era for the nation; today, he added, with all the difficulties of the current historic time people are equally in need of a message of hope as "they sense the great hope for freedom is more difficult than they had expected".

"They need new hope to be instilled, Grušas said, the hope for the future is not solely in economics and in political laws but also in Jesus Christ, in salvation and in the joy of the gospel message: it's something the people need to hear."
