Fifth Sunday of Ordinary Time, Year C, Quinto Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario, el año C del Evangelio de San Lucas February / Febrero 10, 2019

From Deacon John...

Last Sunday, we read how Jesus was rejected in his hometown of Nazareth. Then, Jesus travels to the town of Capernaum and begins his ministry of teaching and healing. While in Capernaum, Jesus cures a man possessed with a demon and heals Simon's mother-in-law. After spending some time there, Jesus prepares to preach in other places. The fact that Jesus had previously been in Simon's home and healed his mother-in-law suggests that the encounter we read today is not the first between Jesus and Simon Peter. Rather, we hear the beginning of the leadership role that Peter will have.

El domingo pasado, leemos cómo Jesús fue rechazado en su ciudad natal de Nazaret. Entonces, Jesús viaja a la ciudad de Capernaum y comienza su ministerio de enseñanza y sanación. Mientras que en Capernaum, Jesús cura a un hombre poseído con un demonio y sana a la suegra de Simón. Después de pasar un tiempo allí, Jesús se prepara para predicar en otros lugares. El hecho de que Jesús había estado previamente en la casa de Simón y había sanado a su suegra sugiere que el encuentro que leemos hoy no es el primero entre Jesús y Simón Pedro. Más bien, escuchamos el comienzo del rol de liderazgo que Pedro tendrá en la comunidad.

Question of the Week

Ordinary Time Week 5 – Luke 5:1-11

Key Passage:

Jesus said to Simon, "Put out into deep water and lower your nets for a catch." Simon said in reply, "Master, we have worked hard all night and have caught nothing, but at your command I will lower the nets." ...Jesus said, "Do not be afraid..."

Question for adults:

When have you felt like Peter?

Question for children:

What are some things Jesus asks us to do that seem hard to do?

Pregunta de la Semana

Semana 5 -- Lucas 5:1-11

Pasaje Crucial:

Pope: moral theology must get “hands dirty” with concrete issues

By Editor, Vatican News, February 9, 2019

(Vatican News) In 1949 the Alphonsonian Academy was founded by the Redemptorists, in the spirit of Saint Alphonsus Liguori, patron saint of moral theologians. Since then, the Academy has provided scientific training to clerics, religious and lay people and since 1960 it has been part of the Faculty of Theology of the Pontifical Lateran University.

Marking the 70th anniversary of the institute, Pope Francis on Saturday invited its members to "look forward", to "regain missionary enthusiasm", and to "outline courageous steps to meet the expectations of the people of God".

World to be healed not condemned

During his address, Pope Francis stressed the need to “guard against excessive idealization,” by being close to the everyday situations of individuals and families. This world is not to be condemned, said the Pope; instead it needs "to be healed and liberated" with mercy, following in the actions of Christ.

The Pontiff underlined that the “teaching of moral theology must encourage the highest values of the Gospel, such as charity. It must also look to liberation from the law of sin and death; a freedom that can never be indifferent to those most in need.”

Pope Francis on Saturday meets students and staff from Rome’s Alphonsonian Academy inviting them to be an example of a church that “goes forth” and dialogues.

University institutes and ecclesiastical faculties, noted the Pope, must be examples of a church that “goes forth” in order to “carry out a wide-ranging dialogue”. He said, it was necessary to network with ecclesial and academic institutions from all over the world in order to “propose appropriate and realistic paths of resolution” to “problems of epochal proportions that affect humanity today”.

Moral Theology, ecology and defending the weakest

Pope Francis went on to say that a united world should work to overcome particular interests, facing together the "new and serious challenges" to society, such as; the increasing dominance of the logic of competitiveness, the law of the strongest, and the lack of consideration for the hu

(Theology continued) man being, who is sometimes reduced to disposable consumer goods.

The Pope also emphasized the ecological emergency in our world, describing it as, "the cry of the earth, violated and wounded" by selfish exploitation.

“It draws my attention”, he said, to the fact that when I carry out the ministry of reconciliation or when I did, even before, rarely does anyone accuse themselves of having violated nature, the earth, creation. We are not yet aware of this sin.” It is your job, he added, to make people aware.

Moral theology, he affirmed, must take on board the urgency of each nation in a convincing way in a mutual effort to care for our common home through viable ways of integral development.

The same common commitment, he said, applied to advanced biomedical research. Moral research, the Pope stressed, must bear witness to the unconditional value of life, reaffirming that "the life of the weakest and most defenceless is that which we are called to take upon ourselves in a spirit of solidarity and trust.”

In conclusion, Pope Francis said he was sure the Alphonsonianum would continue to commit itself to a moral theology that does not hesitate to get “its hands dirty” with concrete problems, especially with the fragility and suffering of those who see their future threatened, bearing real witness to Christ "the way, the truth and the life".
