We give thanks to God for the selflessness of our neighbor. We lift up to the Lord those who are sick and those who have died. We pray the immense mercy of almighty God provide to all peoples their every need, especially those who struggle with grief or addictions and those who labor to feed, house and clothe the world. As we ponder the our role as the "good Samaritan", may we recognize in a special way those who work for our well being and safety, especially our first responders and military.

Fifteenth Week in Ordinary Time, Year C, 15° Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario, el año C del evangelio de San Lucas July / Julio 13-14, 2019

From Deacon John...

It is not social or cultural definitions such as class, religion, gender, or ethnicity that determine who is our neighbor, rather, who has compassion for another. It is not who deserves to be loved as myself, but rather that I treat everyone with compassion. When Jesus asks the lawyer who was the neighbor, the lawyer can't bring himself to say aloud that it was the Samaritan. All he says is that it was "the one who treated him with mercy." Jesus' response was similar to that of the first discussion: "Go and do likewise." The lawyer, and we, know what is right. The key is to do it.

No son las definiciones sociales o culturales, como la clase, la religión, el género o la etnicidad lo que determina quién es nuestro prójimo, sino quién tiene compasión por los demás. No es quién merece ser amado como a mí mismo, sino que trato a todos con compasión. Cuando Jesús le pregunta al abogado quién era el vecino en la historia, el abogado no puede decir en voz alta que era el samaritano. Todo lo que dice es que fue "el que lo trató con misericordia". La respuesta de Jesús fue similar a la de la primera discusión: "Ve y haz lo mismo". El abogado, y nosotros, sabemos lo que es correcto. La clave es hacerlo.

Question of the Week

Week Fifteen – Luke 10:25-37

Key Passage: "A man fell among robbers... a priest happened to be going down that road, but when he saw him he passed by on the opposite side. Likewise, a Levite came to the place and when he saw him, he passed by on the opposite side. But a Samaritan traveler who came upon him was moved with compassion at the sight."

Question for adults: How do you make the decision to cross to the other side to help?

Question for children: Why wouldn't you help someone when you see that they need you?

Pregunta de la Semana

15ª Semana--Lucas 10:25-37

Pasaje Crucial: "Un hombre que bajaba por el camino de Jerusalén a Jericó, cayó en manos de unos ladrones, los cuales lo robaron, lo hirieron y lo dejaron medio muerto. Sucedió que por el mismo camino bajaba un sacerdote, el cual lo vio y pasó de largo. De igual modo, un levita que pasó por ahí, lo vio y siguió adelante. Pero un samaritano que iba de viaje, al verlo, se compadeció de él"

Pregunta para los adultos: ¿Cómo tomas la decisión de cruzar al otro lado para ayudar?

Pregunta para los niños: ¿Por qué no ayudarías a alguien cuando ves que te necesitan?

From Deacon John...

Jesus demolished all boundary expectations. It is not social or cultural definitions such as class, religion, gender, or ethnicity that determines who is our neighbor. A neighbor is a person who acts with compassion toward another. The point becomes not who it is that deserves to be loved as I love myself, but rather that I become a person who treats everyone with compassion. When Jesus asks the lawyer who was the neighbor in the story, the lawyer can't bring himself to say aloud that it was the Samaritan. All he says is that it was "the one who treated him with mercy." Jesus' response was similar to that of the first discussion: "Go and do likewise." The lawyer, and we, know what is right. The key is to do it.

Myanmar Church's tree-planting drive in the spirit of "Laudato Si"

By Robin Gomes, July 9, 2019

VATICAN CITY (CNS) More than 200 Catholic Church workers and young people joined in a tree-planting event last week in Myanmar, in a show of responsibility for protecting the environment in the spirit of the Pope Francis Encyclical, "Laudato Si".

A tree-planting event in Yangon, Myanmar.

Cardinal Charles Bo, the Archbishop of Yangon joined Catholic social workers and young people on July 6 to plant trees in a government-reserved forest area on the outskirts of Myanmar's commercial city.

The cardinal and chief minister of Yangon Division, Phyo Min Thein, joined more than 200 participants planted nearly 2,000 trees at Taikkyi township.

Karuna or Caritas Myanmar, the Catholic Church's social arm, has been actively involved in a tree-planting campaign since June 18, which marked the fourth anniversary of Pope Francis's encyclical on the "Care for Our Common Home".

Among other issues, the encyclical calls for responsible and swift action on climate change.

Since 2018, the entire Caritas Myanmar network has been working to organize the campaign in its 16 dioceses across the country.

Its aim is to motivate different stakeholders to shoulder the responsibility to eliminate environmental destruction and injustices connected to global climate change.

Commenting on Saturday's event, Father Joseph Mg Win, director of Yangon's Karuna mission said that the government had provided the saplings and reserved an area to plant the trees and the Church would take responsibility for caring for them for the next two years.

Father Mg said his Karuna Yangon has been planting trees since 2017 and had also planted thousands of nursery plants at several villages in Bago Division.

Theresa Kay Zin Phyo, human relations officer from Caritas Myanmar's national office in Yangon, said the campaign had been launched as a collective effort of Karuna offices across the country to raise environmental awareness.

"Nowadays, environmental degradation is a huge problem and we have a duty to protect the environment and love trees and forests. That's the message we want to convey to future generations," Kay Zin Phyo told ucanews.com.

She added that some offices had already begun planting trees and others would start in the coming weeks.

Caritas Myanmar has submitted its five-year tree-planting programme to government officials in Naypyitaw and the Forestry Department has provided thousands of nursery plants.

Eddie, programme manager of Caritas Lashio, said they planned to plant 1,800 trees on church-owned land in the second week of July in collaboration with some parishes.

Cardinal Bo, who has been outspoken about environmental degradation in the country, delivered a short video message to usher in the national tree-planting campaign. In the video the cardinal said he was extremely glad the government of Myanmar and its people were launching the mass tree-planting campaign.

He lamented that greed has stripped naked Myanmar of 30 per cent of its forests in recent decades, making it one of the planet's most vulnerable countries for natural disasters.

Citing the Bible, the Archbishop of Yangon noted that God has appointed man and woman to be stewards of His creation but unscrupulous people have wounded the Mother Earth. Noting that "millions of our people depend on the protection of nature," he warned, "Those who destroy forests steal from the poor and future generation."

The 70-year-old cardinal has been vocal against the China-backed Myitsone Dam project on the Irrawaddy River in the northern Kachin state. He said the massive $3.8 billion hydroelectric power development project that would mostly benefit China, would be an environmental disaster, depriving millions of farmers of their livelihood in a nation where 80 per cent of the population depends on agriculture.
