We ask for courage and strength to meet the cultural and moral challenges of this time and for Christian unity of purpose among our families and neighbors. We lift up to the Lord those who have died. We pray for those who struggle with disease, illness, grief or addiction, especially Eamon Dolan, brother of Father Pat. We are grateful for those who feed, house and clothe the world, and those who labor selflessly for our well being and safety, particularly our first responders and military.

Twentieth Week in Ordinary Time, Year C, 20° Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario, el año C del evangelio de San Lucas August / Agosto 17-18, 2019

From Deacon John...

Peter The coming judgment forces us to look at the implications of our commitments. As Jesus warned, a commitment of faith requires us to change our attitude toward material possessions and to take seriously our moral responsibilities. Now, Jesus reminds the crowd that those who commit to him will find it affects the way they relate to friends and family members. A commitment to Jesus forces us to change the way we live our lives, and this can put strains on relationships. We don't expect to hear such difficult words from Jesus. But it is good to be reminded that deciding to do the right or good thing, is not always easy and without conflict. Jesus himself did not make easy decisions and avoid conflict. We also need to be prepared for difficult decisions and conflict.

El juicio venidero nos obliga a mirar las implicaciones de nuestros compromisos. Como advirtió Jesús, un compromiso de fe requiere que cambiemos nuestra actitud hacia las posesiones materiales y que tomemos en serio nuestras responsabilidades morales. Ahora, Jesús le recuerda a la multitud que aquellos que se comprometen con él encontrarán que afecta la forma en que se relacionan con amigos y familiares. Un compromiso con Jesús nos obliga a cambiar la forma en que vivimos nuestras vidas, y esto puede poner tensión en las relaciones. No esperamos escuchar palabras tan difíciles de parte de Jesús. Pero es bueno recordar que decidir hacer lo correcto o lo bueno no siempre es fácil y sin conflictos. Jesús mismo no tomó decisiones fáciles y evitó conflictos.

Question of the Week

Week Twenty – Luke 12:49-53

Key Passage: Jesus said to his disciples, "I have come to set the earth on fire, and how I wish it were already blazing! Do you think that I have come to bring peace to the earth? No, I tell you, but rather division!" From now on a household will be divided...

Question for adults: When has your taking a strong stand on a moral issue created division rather than healing in the short term?

Question for children: Is it important to do the right thing even if others are angry as a result? Why or why not?

Pregunta de la Semana

20ª Semana--Lucas 12:49-53

Pasaje Crucial: Jesús dijo a sus discípulos: "He venido a traer fuego a la tierra, ¡y cuánto desearía que ya estuviera ardiendo! ¿Piensan acaso que he venido a traer paz a la tierra? De ningún modo. No he venido a traer la paz, sino la división.

Pregunta para los adultos: ¿Cuándo ha tomado una posición firme sobre un tema moral una división en lugar de una curación al principio?

Pregunta para los niños: ¿Es importante hacer lo correcto incluso si otros están enojados como resultado? ¿Por qué o por qué no?

Rosary Congress Oct. 5-11. Our Lady has instructed us to “pray with the heart.” To pray with the heart is a decision to set aside everything, to concentrate, and to persevere in a pure prayer. For the first time the Diocese of Jefferson City will join with many dioceses across the country for the Rosary Congress Oct. 5-11. The Congress seeks healing in our Church, more vocations, and the good of our country by consecrating our hearts to Jesus and Mary.

Bishop of Derry: Building a future of hope in Northern Ireland

50 years on from a key event in Northern Ireland's conflict, the Bishop of Derry, Donal McKeown reflects on creating hope for the future, ecumenical dialogue and the challenges of Brexit.

By Lydia O'Kane, August 14, 2019

VATICAN CITY (CNS) The Northern Ireland conflict, also known as the Troubles spanned from 1968 to 1998 when the Good Friday Agreement was signed, marking a milestone in the peace process there.

Parliament buildings at Stormont in Northern Ireland

Around 3,600 people were killed and more than 30,000 more were injured in the violent 30 year sectarian strife.

This week marks the 50th anniversary of riots which brought British soldiers onto the streets of Derry. The Battle of the Bogside, as it became known, marked a key escalation point in the Troubles and has its roots in the Northern Ireland Civil Rights movement.

The diocese of Derry is made up of 51 parishes and includes almost all of County Derry (also known as Londonderry), parts of County Tyrone and County Donegal in the Republic of Ireland, and a very small area across the River Bann in County Antrim.

Mature outlook

Reflecting on this anniversary, it's Bishop, Donal McKeown notes that "Derry has been very mature in how its marked the anniversary of the beginning of the Troubles here... in 1969, in that, there really has been little in terms of public celebration."

He goes on to say that, "we have a situation now where we want to look back on the past, learn from it and ensure we are creating hope for the future, especially for our young people and not leaving us prisoners of events that happened half a century ago."

Ecumenical co-operation

What has been particularly important Bishop McKeown underlines has been dialogue, stressing that all the four main Christian Churches have been working very closely together for the last 35 to 40 years in terms of bridge building.

The Bishop adds that the Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist and Anglican Churches in Northern Ireland want to speak out together to make sure that young people are not given a "destructive narrative" about the past.

One example of this ecumenical co-operation was in the aftermath of the murder of journalist Lyra McKee on Holy Thursday in April this year. Recalling this shocking event which provoked widespread condemnation, the Bishop of Derry says "the Church of Ireland Bishop and myself, we talked about our statements first thing in the morning...then at twelve we carried the Cross on Good Friday through the streets of the city... we then went together up to the site of the murder along with a range of other churches and political parties... so there's that ongoing visible presence of the Churches that really is appreciated ..."

Brexit

Asked about the challenges for Northern Ireland and indeed for the people of Derry as Brexit looms, the Bishop comments, "my main concern is how we can ensure that pastoral problems can be avoided for our people." "My concern is about rising tensions, community dissention about the future of the border, unemployment, lack of hope for young people."

"We have had from the Good Friday Agreement the integration of the economy, the fact that the border is entirely invisible, the fact that people can feel they can breathe and look forward to the future with confidence, all of that is threatened by the need for a hard border as perceived, especially in the context of a no deal agreement", he says.

As the 31st of October fast approaches, Bishop McKeown emphasizes that "those who are leading Brexit have to recognize not just the benefits for East Sussex but the challenges for West Derry."
