We ask for courage, humility and perseverance as we seek out the Lord in our daily life. We pray the lost will “come to their senses” and return home. We lift up to the Lord those who have died. We pray for Joe Koenen and all those who struggle with disease, illness, grief or addiction. We are especially grateful for those who feed, house and clothe the world, and those who labor selflessly for our safety, growth and well being, particularly our catechists, first responders and military.

Twenty Fifth Week in Ordinary Time, Year C, 25° Domingo del Tiempo Ordinario, el año C del evangelio de San Lucas Septiembre-September 21-22, 2019

From Deacon John...

Today's Gospel sounds puzzling to us unless we consider the economic system behind the parable. A steward is dismissed for not serving the interests of his employer. In response he brokers repayment of the rich man's loans by foregoing the interest and fees originally levied to line his own steward's pockets. The steward puts aside his greed and takes the longer perspective to enhance his own security. There are three morals for the listeners; be prudent about the use of wealth, be trustworthy and finally, no one can serve two masters simultaneously. Those who would follow Jesus must put life events in proper perspective. God must always be first, then they can be trusted with the affairs of the Kingdom of God.

El Evangelio de hoy nos suena desconcertante a menos que consideremos el sistema económico detrás de la parábola. Un mayordomo es despedido por no servir los intereses de su empleador. En respuesta, corre el reembolso de los préstamos del hombre rico renunciando a los intereses y honorarios recaudados originalmente para cubrir los bolsillos de su propio administrador. El mayordomo deja de lado su codicia y toma la perspectiva más larga para mejorar su propia seguridad. Hay tres moralejas para los oyentes; Sea prudente sobre el uso de la riqueza, sea confiable y, finalmente, nadie puede servir a dos amos simultáneamente. Los que seguirían a Jesús deben poner los acontecimientos de la vida en la perspectiva adecuada. Dios siempre debe ser el primero, luego se les puede confiar los asuntos del Reino de Dios.

Pope to doctors: reject temptation to assist and support suicide and euthanasia

By Robin Gomes, September 20, 2019

In a meeting on Friday with representatives of Italy's surgeons and dentists, Pope Francis spoke about encountering in their patients, persons who are unique in their dignity and fragility, and not just their illness.

VATICAN CITY (VNS) Pope Francis on Friday urged doctors to reject the temptation to assist and support suicide and euthanasia, reminding them of the Hippocratic oath that calls on them to commit themselves to absolute respect for human life and its sacredness.

icine alone, but includes the condition of a person, the sick. In this human vision, he said, doctors are called to relate to the patient, taking into consideration his singularity as a person who has an illness, and not just the case of the illness the patient has.

This is why, the Pope said, it is

Pope Francis meeting representatives of the Italian orders of surgeons and dentists.

“Medicine, by definition, is a service to human life, which involves an essential and indispensable reference to the person in his spiritual and material integrity, in his individual and social dimension.” “Hence medicine is at the service of man, of the whole man, of every man,” Pope Francis told some 350 representatives of the National Federation of the Orders of Medical Surgeons and Dentists of Italy, whom he met on Friday in the Vatican.

He told them that illness is not a mere clinical fact restricted to medi-important that “the doctor does not lose sight of the uniqueness of each patient, with his dignity and his fragility”. “A man or a woman should be accompanied with conscience, intelligence and heart, especially in the most serious situations.”

“With this attitude,” the Pope said, “we can and must reject the temptation, also induced by legislative changes, to use medicine to support a possible willingness of the patient to die, providing assistance for suicide or directly causing death by euthanasia.”

The Pope said that these are hasty ways of dealing with choices that are not, as they might appear, an expression of the person's freedom, when they include getting rid of the patient as a possibility, or false compassion in the face of the request to be helped to anticipate death.

In this regard, Pope Francis recalled the “New Charter for Health Care Workers” of the Council for Pastoral Assistance to Health Care Workers that says: “There is no right to dispose arbitrarily of one's life, so no doctor can become an executive guardian of a non-existent right.”

He also recalled Saint John Paul II, who pointed to the intrinsic ethical dimension of the health care profession of the Hippocratic oath, according to which “every doctor is asked to commit himself to absolute respect for human life and its sacredness”.
