30th Sunday

IN ORDINARY TIME

“But the tax collector stood off at a distance and would not even raise his eyes to heaven but beat his breast and prayed, ‘O God, be merciful to me a sinner.’” - Lk 18:13

30th Sunday in Ordinary Time
The Jesus Prayer

In the parable we’ll hear today, the moral is about having the right attitude when we pray. Every parable has a twist. This one has to do with the people praying. The Pharisee, a man who would have been respected as a man of faith, brags (to God!) about his holiness. Not good. The Tax Collector, a man who was publically known as a person who cheats people out of their earnings, simply confesses he’s a sinful man.

In the end, God loves the prayer of the sinful man, not the religious man. God loves honesty. He’d rather we go to him with a pure heart, revealing all that is good and wrong in our life, than to try to elevate our self-worth all the way to heaven.

As people of faith, we’re growing to be more like Christ. We’ll never do that unless we live inside the truth. A daily examination of conscience is a great tool in the prayer life—especially the Ignatian method where we look back at the day to recognize God’s blessings but also the ways we have sinned. It ends with a desire to start again and to try not to repeat those things that negatively affect our relationship with God or others.

Another great spiritual tool is the Jesus Prayer, which is an adaptation of the tax collector’s prayer in Jesus’ parable. For centuries, Catholics have taken the words of the tax collector and prayed them as a mantra: “Lord Jesus, Son of God, have mercy on me, a sinner.”

Here’s how the prayer technique works. Allow for some quiet time where you can relax. Close your eyes, and begin to concentrate on your breathing. As you breathe in, breath in the first part of the prayer: “Lord Jesus, Son of God.” In this part of the prayer we’re breathing in Christ into our being. As you exhale, pray the second part, “have mercy on me, a sinner.” At that point we’re breathing out anything sinful within us. And then simply repeat the mantra until you feel your prayer is completed.

It’s a simple prayer and a simple practice, but can bring great peace. Jesus seems to love simplicity, like the simplicity that comes with the faith of little children. The most meaningful things in life usually aren’t too complicated.

May God continue to strengthen us as a community of faith,

---Fr. Mike

30th Sunday of Ordinary Time

In this Sunday’s Gospel reading, we see that “whoever exalts himself will be humbled.” Sooner or later, self-exalting people get humbled, whether they realize it or not. They are brought down low by their own behaviors. People who encounter them in daily life do not think very highly of them. And certainly, God doesn’t either.

The much better alternative is to let our love for others be what humbles us.

Without love as our motivation, we believe in our own so-called “righteousness,” thinking we’re okay when we’re not. But when we do good deeds for others because we genuinely care about them, the pride of our self-righteousness is replaced by holy humility.

We are made righteous by our love for others. Self-righteousness is self-made – it motivates us to do good, but only for the selfish purpose of looking admirable, winning approval, or gaining some other personal benefit. Love, which is true righteousness, motivates us to do good for the sake of others.

Reflect & Discuss:

1. Think of those who are less spiritually active than you, who cause you to think: “Thank God I am not like them!” Do you grieve for them because of their sins and blindness? Do you do anything to help them grow closer to Christ? Do they experience Jesus when they encounter you?

2. What are some ways that you show love to those who are not as holy as you, or not as emotionally healthy as you, or not as intelligent as you?

3. Describe a time when you were more self-righteous than righteous. How did you (or how will you) let Jesus turn your pride into love-filled humility?
It’s hard not to fake humility; yet, seemingly, we need to do just that.

For instance, some of the sayings of Jesus on humility seem to raise more questions than they answer. For example, in the parable of taking seats at the table, Jesus suggests that we should not move towards the highest place, lest somebody more important comes along and we will be humiliated by being asked to move lower. Rather, he says, move towards the lowest place so that the host might come and ask us to move higher, and in this way our very humility will be showcased before the other guests. Whoever humbles himself will be exalted, and whoever exalts himself will be humbled. On the surface, this would seem like little more than a strategy to get honored while all the while looking humble.

The biblical invitation to not consider oneself better than others begs the question: Can someone who is living an essentially moral and generous life really believe that he or she is no better than someone who is uncaring, selfish, or even malicious in how he or she relates to God, others, and the world? Do we really believe that we are no better than others? Did Mother Teresa really believe in her heart that she was no better than anyone else? Could she really look at herself and say: “I’m just as great a sinner as there is on this planet?” Or, did she, and must we, in the end, feign humility because we don’t really believe that we’re no better than what’s worst on this planet?

And so we can ask ourselves: Is our belief that we are no better than others, often times, really only a pose, something we have to affirm about ourselves but which doesn’t stand the full test of honesty? Further, isn’t our humility, in the end, really not just a subtle strategy to be honored in a deeper, more-respected way? Who wants to be seen as proud and full of himself? And, can we ever be humble without then taking pride in that? Do we really believe that we are no better than anyone else?

I’m partial to an insight John Shea once offered in trying to answer this. Looking at some diary entries by Bede Griffiths, where Griffiths openly confesses that he is no better than anyone else, Shea asks whether given the quality of Griffiths’ moral and spiritual life and given the depth and compassion he developed through years of prayer and discipline could Griffiths really have believed that he was no better than anyone else? Could he really not compare himself with others? Is it really possible for any of us not to compare ourselves with others?

Shea suggests that the key to those questions lies in looking closely at what Griffiths means when he asserts that he is no better than anyone else. When Griffiths makes those assertions he is not focused on his, or anyone else’s, moral actions. At the level of moral actions, it is humanly impossible not to make comparisons. We all make comparisons, even when we deny that we do so. But the roots of humility do not lie in where we stand, above or below, others in terms of our moral actions.

When Griffiths sincerely sees himself and believes himself to be no better than anyone else in this world, he is looking rather at his core, at the depth of his heart, where he sees that he, like everyone else in this world, is vulnerable, alone, fearful, naked, self-centered, inadequate, helpless, contingent, just as much in need of God and others as absolutely every other person on this earth, and, thus, no better than anyone else.

Nobody gives himself life, sustains himself in life, or gives himself salvation. We are all equally inadequate and helpless here. Our contingency levels us all, from Mother Teresa to Hitler, and the key to genuine humility lies in recognizing that. Indeed, the more morally and psychologically sensitive we are, the more likely we are to recognize our neediness and our solidarity in weakness with everyone else. When a Bede Griffiths makes the claim that he is no better than anyone else and that he stands in need of God’s mercy just as much as every sinner on earth, he is not faking humility, but he is not making moral comparisons either. He is speaking out of something deeper, namely, the fact that ultimately we are all equally helpless to give ourselves life.

The invitation to humility is a clear and constant echo inside of Christian spirituality, from Jesus, through Bede Griffiths, through Mother Teresa, through every spiritual guide worthy of the name: Become like a little child. Take the lowest place. Never consider yourself better than anyone else. Know that you need God’s mercy as much as the greatest sinner on earth. However we don’t come to this by comparing ourselves to others, but by recognizing how utterly naked we all stand outside of God’s mercy.

If Not You, Who?
A perspective on service from one of our parishioners

As I think about my involvement in some parish ministries, I reflect on what the future holds for them. As one of the chairs of the Funeral Luncheon Ministry, I am blessed to be surrounded by a remarkable crew of workers and food connoisseurs.

So many of our helpers are up in age, many have moved, and many have left us to be home with our God. Although we don’t have as many luncheons as in the past, I wonder who will step up to carry on this ministry of 30+ years first spearheaded by Rose Mullin.

I reflect on this after experiencing the Taste of St. Hubert. What an amazing celebration of our ethnicities beginning with Mass and songs of our heritages, followed by such a varied assortment of foods and desserts, many homemade by parishioners, and entertainment. It’s hard to believe this tradition started 18 years ago and many of the volunteers worked at it since its inception. Similar to almost all the other ministries the Stewards core committee has few members. We’d love fresh ideas.

In addition to the Taste, the Stewards have in the past hosted other family based activities. We have many avenues we’d like to pursue but not enough members to get them off the ground. What these ministries experience are the same for just about every ministry in the parish and every event sponsored by the school and scouts: volunteers. With many things occupying our time these days, I can assure you that many ministries would love you to help even on a one event basis. I ask you to think about the talents you might have to share, and pray to see if you could bring them to one of our many ministries. Thank you for your consideration.

May God’s blessings be with you!

Remember those who have gone before us
You are invited to enter a name of a deceased loved one into our Book of the Names of the Dead and also place any pictures or mementos of your deceased loved ones in the niche. Entering the names of the deceased in a book dates back to ancient times. Making a shrine with pictures, symbols and articles associated with the deceased continues today in many cultures.

As we prepare to celebrate the feast days of All Saints and All Souls we are reminded that the communion of saints is both the living and the dead, both the canonized saints and the faithful holy men and women we know as our ancestors.

The Book of the Names of the Dead will remain in the narthex throughout November and each day, at one of our liturgies, we will pray their names aloud with all who have died, adding a petition to our Sunday liturgies as well. The pictures and mementos on the pedestals remind us of their life and their stories and can be shared with family members as well as our parish community.

A poster with the saints of the Church will be in the shrine along with our pictures as we celebrate the living and dead together on the feast of All Saints and All Souls Day.

MY FINAL WISH

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 2019
7 PM IN THE PARISH MINISTRY CENTER

MY FINAL WISH is an information meeting for pre-planning funeral arrangements for people of all ages. Many find it uncomfortable or unsettling to discuss end-of-life wishes. St. Hubert Community Life Program is hosting an opportunity for the community and their families to learn, in a loving and practical way, several of the necessary decisions or considerations required when someone dies.

Our intent is to ensure that your wishes are communicated and understood while easing the burden of your family by doing some pre-planning; it can make difficult decisions much less difficult and act as a final gesture of love. Often one’s final wishes evolve over time and may even change. The expressing of your intentions is of great comfort to your family no matter how young or old you are. Come join us MY FINAL WISH and begin the process that gives you and your family peace of mind.

SPEAKERS AND TOPICS:
- Roberto Perez (Attorney—The Perrom Law Office)---remains directives, estate planning documents, after burial process and benefits of a trust.
- Ross Morizzo (Funeral Director, Morizzo Funeral Home)---funeral options, pre-arranging benefits, proper documentation of you wishes and important documents you will need.
- Mario Calderon (Catholic Cemeteries)---benefits of pre-planning, types of burial options and financing cemetery costs.
- Patrick Schilz (Financial Planner, Edward Jones)---steps to take when a loved one passes, financial documents needed, retitle loved ones assets and estate settlement process.

Following the presentations there will be time for questions and answers. And there will be no sales pitches and no pressure by the presenters. Please call the Parish Office to register, as this will allow us the opportunity to accommodate everyone, or you can also call Deacon Dick Lawson at 847-885-7700, ext. 105.

HELP OUR TEENS TRAVEL TO INDIY

The National Catholic Youth Conference (NCYC) is the premiere national gathering of Catholic high school teens in the United States. This year over 24,000 teens and their chaperones will be gathering in Indianapolis, Indiana for three days of prayer, catechesis, service, and educational workshops. It is a fantastic opportunity for teens to strengthen their Catholic identity and meet other Catholic teens from around the U.S. Many teens say that their participation in NCYC is life-changing.

Several teens from St. Hubert will be making a pilgrimage to NCYC. Please help to make this experience possible. Your contributions will allow the teens to experience presentations by leading speakers on issues including social justice, prayer, servant leadership, appropriate use of technology, the sacraments, cultural diversity, and transitioning to college. They will have the opportunity to meet with bishops and other church leaders and get the chance to listen to outstanding Catholic musicians, have powerful prayer experiences, and pray together at Mass.

Youth Ministry will in the narthex after all Masses this weekend. Thank you for your support of our pilgrimage. You will be in our prayers as we travel and prepare. Please keep us in your prayers also.
