EIGHTEENTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME
August 4, 2019

“You fool, this night your life will be demanded of you; and the thing you have prepared, to whom will they belong?”
Luke 12: 13-21

A child's book of 'lasts'

Many parents keep baby books, journals that record all of a child's first things: first tooth, first word, first step, first day of school, First Communion. They are all memories to treasure.

But there is another collection of memories that are just as precious - call it “your Child's Book of Lasts”: the last time you push your child on a swing, the last time the two of you play catch, the last time you rock your child to sleep, the last time you take your child fishing. These memories go unrecorded; then one day you realize you aren't doing those things anymore – your child has outgrown them. You realize that somewhere back there was the very last time.

Had you known, you would have savored every one of those moments: you would have lingered a little longer at the swing; you'd have thrown that ball back and forth until your arm was about to fall off; you would have held your child forever.

We tend to live our lives as if there will always be time “later” to do the things our crammed schedules force us to put off: we can always make it up to our loved ones tomorrow or this weekend or during vacation; as soon as this project is done we will be able to relax – but immediately there follows another project. But as today's Gospel makes clear, our days are numbered, our time is limited. Like the rich farmer, we can be so self-centered and so self-sufficient that we shut ourselves off from life's most enriching and important moments. Faith is the constant awareness that life is a journey of discovery of the holy in our midst as we make our way to God's eternal dwelling place.
