Dedicated to Growth in Christ and to the Challenges of Loving Service

The connection between today's Gospel from St. John and the First Reading could not be clearer. The Scripture scholars creating the Lectionary for Mass in the mid-1960s looked for an Old Testament reading that would help all of us Catholics reflect on how Jesus fulfilled all the promises of the Old Testament. In this reading from the Second Book of Kings, God's Prophet Elisha orders that a small amount of bread be given to satisfy a large and very hungry group of people. In the reading, we hear God promise that the bread will not only be enough, but that there will be plenty left over. This reading connects perfectly to today's Gospel as Jesus multiplies loaves and fishes to feed 5,000 people. The second readings on this Sunday in Ordinary time are continuous readings from a variety of letters from the New Testament. They are not connected with the Gospel nor with the First Reading. Over 5 different Sundays in July and August, we hear key sections from the Letter to the Ephesians in which the early Christians (and us too!) are urged to live up to all that God calls us to be. Seven signs of unity bind us together: from one body and one spirit to the one God who is over all of us.
