Children at Risk

The sexual abuse of children and vulnerable adults is increasingly described as a social epidemic. In a multi-part series, Catholic News Service looks at sex abuse in society, what the scale of the problem is, what is being done to help the victims and pursue the perpetrators, and how the Church might provide models for response based on its own history dealing with such abuse.

We are sharing the following articles and photos and videos as a special Catholic News Service Issue Alert. This complimentary CNS multimedia news package is being offered to all diocesan digital and print media—whether or not they are subscribers to CNS—for use on their websites and social media and in their print publications.

3. Every diocese, every day - victim assistance coordinators: https://cnstopstories.com/2019/02/06/victim-assistance-coordinators-comfort-in-a-behind-the-scenes-ministry/
8. Prostituted by her father, a survivor of abuse tells her story: https://cnstopstories.com/2019/02/08/survivor-jesus-is-light-that-shows-us-way-to-stop-sexual-exploitation/
10. A Catholic columnist's own story of family abuse: https://cnstopstories.com/2019/02/08/survivor-no-more-turning-away/

Catholic News Service serves the Church by informing and forming the Catholic faithful. If you would like to subscribe to any of CNS’s many services—news, columns, photos and more—please contact Mary McDonald at mmcdonald@usccb.org