THIRD SUNDAY OF LENT

Zeal For The Father's House Consumes Jesus

The Gospel narrates Jesus' emotional, angry (if you will) reaction to the scene he has witnessed in the Temple, the house of God and house of encounter with God for the Jews. Scenes that one expects to see only in marketplaces meet his eyes. And so his emotions are stirred, and he begins to drive away the vendors and the money changers. It is not that they are not to be seen around the Temple area, for animal and money offerings are expected to be readily available. But what stirs his anger is that the sellers and money changers have invaded parts of the Temple that are held sacred ground. This shows, therefore, a lack of understanding and respect for the Temple on the part of the merchants whose minds are driven by profit.

"Zeal for your house will consume me." This verse (cf Ps 69:10) describes Jesus' reaction. Jesus is passionate for the things of his Father. In his boyhood he said something similar, also in the Temple: "Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?" (Lk 2:49). His food is to do the will of him who sent him (cf Jn 4:34). His passion is to accomplish his Father's work. In contrast, many people in his time are so desirous of making money that they lose respect even for the house of God.

Jesus' reaction teaches us that we have to respect the nature and essence of places. Churches or temples are intended for prayer, for encounter with God, for listening to God's word. Hence, they are to be kept free from disturbance and disorder, and people who enter them are expected to observe silence and proper decorum in conduct and apparel.
