TWENTY-EIGHTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

An Invitation to “Maximum Love”

The young man who has “many possessions” thinks he is blest and so enthusiastically approaches Jesus, asking what he must do to gain eternal life. He hopes perhaps to get an affirmation that, blessed by God, he need not do extraordinary things because he has already followed the Ten Commandments from childhood. What he hears from Jesus is a “shocker”: he is invited to sell his possessions, give to the poor, and follow Jesus.

Jesus does not ask this of every follower. It is because, looking at the earnest young man, Jesus “loved him”. Love for him makes Jesus reveal to him the secret of the Kingdom, the key to true joy and lasting peace. So Jesus asks him to make a radical choice to love, one that does not know of accommodation and compromise. The young man, however, fails to measure up to the greatest challenge of his life. His wealth, instead of being a blessing, becomes a stumbling block to his gaining eternal life.

Jesus has been clear about discipleship from the beginning: it is a dying to self, a carrying of the cross after Jesus. Salvation is not “cheap grace.” Eternal life is not gained the easy way. The young man does not steal because he has more than enough. Compared to the less fortunate, he has all the reasons to follow the commandments because he “owes” it to God for blessing him. But the case of give-and-take is beside the issue. It is rather the choice between the Kingdom of God and money.

“No servant can serve two masters,” Jesus says. “You cannot serve God and mammon” (Lk 16:13). Once money becomes the most important thing, the person is already worshipping it as his “God”.

In the story of the young man, Jesus defines discipleship not as a masochistic scorn for material goods but as a life of “maximum love.” The “culture” of the Kingdom, revealed by this discipleship, has much to say to a world bedeviled by materialism. Riches signify so many things: proud self-sufficiency, the supremacy of the law of profit over that of morality, the utter inequality in the use of the earth’s goods, the search for pleasure and vanity.

But all these are empty, all vanity! True joy can come only with love that continually gives more, even to the max.

Blessing and Commissioning of Catechists

Catechists from our parish will be commissioned at the 9:00 a.m. Mass on Sunday, October 14, 2018. CCD Coordinators, Teachers and their aides are asked to attend.

To our Catechists who are called to echo God’s word, we thank you for your dedication to teach Jesus’ Gospel and help our parish children grow in their faith and love of God and his Church. God gives us amazing grace when we answer God’s call to carry on the joyful mission to teach as Jesus did. Our volunteers are one of our greatest assets and we are very grateful for the gift of themselves, their time and talent.

Please keep our teachers and aides in your prayers as they work to fulfill the calling and the mission they have embraced with love and devotion.

We pray for all of our children and families, so that they may come not only to know the faith, but to live the faith through their words, their works, and their participation in our parish community, most especially in the Sunday Eucharist.

We look forward to a wonderful, blessed and fruitful catechetical year!
