THIRTY-THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Staying Alert and Ready

Jesus tells his disciples to be always on their toes. The end may come anytime. They should be prepared. For what? For the coming of the Son of Man.

The disciples must be able to interpret the end time as they correctly anticipate what is going to happen, learning from the fig tree. When it comes, the disciples should not miss the action and say, “We don’t know what is happening. We’re not informed.”

The First Reading comes from apocalyptic literature written around 200 years before Christ. It informs the long-persecuted Jewish people of the coming of the Son of Man. His coming from heaven give hope to those who are righteous. The righteous are those who do not conform to the pagan culture and religion of the Greeks. In our times, they are people who have resisted adopting a secularized lifestyle. God is very much a part of their lives. They are prepared to welcome the Son of Man who will liberate them from oppressive rulers.

The Second Reading describes Christ sitting at God’s right hand forever after he offered one sacrifice for the forgiveness of sins. He is different from the earthly priests in the Temple that offer daily sacrifices that do not take away our sins at all – an exercise in futility. At the end of time, Christ will come again to claim the final victory over evil.

We Christians must be watchful for the coming of Christ. We must be able to interpret what precedes it. We will not be surprised even if he comes unannounced.

Let us be alert. Let us not allow our guard down.
