FOURTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

The Scandal of Ordinariess

“There no place like home.” After all, home is where we belong. In the home we first experience being loved and cared for; it is where we can be our true selves and are accepted. At the end of a hard day’s work, we often sigh, “It’s good to be home!”

Yet, there is also something positive about not being “at home,” in being an alien or a foreigner. We Filipinos respect foreigners and take extra effort to make them feel welcome, even if we do not know them. Conversely, our overseas Filipino workers are usually held in high esteem because of their dedication to work and their deep faith in God. They feel “at home” in foreign lands.

In the Gospel, Jesus returns home, to his native town of Nazareth. His sense of belonging is shown in his attendance at the synagogue service and in volunteering to do the reading. His fellow town mates initially welcome him, amazed at this gracious words. But then they realize he is just one of them, someone without proper credentials, and their admiration turns into doubt.

Jesus responds by saying that their reaction is something “normal” or expected because “no prophet is accepted in his own native place.” He cites the examples of two pagans—the widow of Zarephath and Naaman the Syrian. Feeling insulted, the people are infuriated and want to throw Jesus off the cliff, but he manages to escape.

When we judge people simply by their background, we can lose sight of their real worth.

The townsfolk of Nazareth forget Jesus’ marvelous deeds and his gracious words and teachings as they become fixated or scandalized by his “ordinariness.” They are not wise enough to realize that God can reveal himself in ordinary, unspectacular ways.
