FIFTH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Jumping Into the Unknown

We may be skilled at carpentry, painting, drawing, gardening, computers, or fishing. Part of this expertise is that sense of knowing when it is best to engage in the craft or what circumstances need to be there. One cannot be pushed to play the piano or the violin if one is not in the mood for it. Still, one must be ready to engage in one's craft even if circumstance or timing is not there.

In the Gospel, Jesus (a carpenter, not a fisherman) "intervenes" in the lives of fishermen, Peter and companions, who have had a bad night at fishing. These fishermen may be irritated that someone who is not of their trade is dictating what they should do when they know it will be futile.

Yes, Peter puts his "expertise" aside and gives Jesus the benefit of the doubt. Somehow, Peter senses that even if this man (Jesus) is not a fisherman, he has shown wonderful signs in their presence: he is not an ordinary person foolishly challenging them. And so the miracle happens, and Peter can only be shaken deeply so as to realize, as in the case of Isaiah before the heavenly court (cf Is 6:5), that he is a sinful man before an all-powerful and holy God!

We are so used to rely on human training and expertise that we find it difficult to trust in something adventurous and unsure. This way we fail to see that there could be various other ways to realize our goals besides what we know.

We miss the sense of adventure and surprise that every leap of faith usually brings.

With God we do not venture into the unknown, for God will surely lead us in the right path to our glorious destiny. This is what Peter deeply learns by the experience.
