Divine Mercy Sunday

Jesus I trust in you

SECOND SUNDAY OF EASTER/DIVINE MERCY SUNDAY

I Will Not Believe

Thomas, called Didymus, is known as the doubting Thomas because he declares, "Unless I see the mark of the nails in his hands and put my finger into the nailmarks and put my hand into his side, I will not believe.

Thomas had difficulty in believing. He may be suspicious of the claims of his fellow apostles who are still mourning but are now confounded by the resurrection appearances of Jesus.

In this difficulty, Jesus appears a second time for Thomas' sake. He goes immediately to Thomas and shows him his hands and side, and exhorts him stop unbelieving. With all humility and affection. Thomas exclaims, "My Lord and my God!" Now Thomas is ready for mission.

Jesus declares that those who have come to believe even without seeing or touching him are blessed.

The First Reading says that many signs and wonders happen through the hands of the apostles, Thomas included. Because of this, more and more become believers. Jesus would refer to them as blessed.

In the Second Reading, John writes that he is imprisoned because he has been proclaiming God's word and bearing witness to Jesus. He lives in an era when to believe in Jesus is regarded a crime.

Are we disposed to believe in Jesus, meaning, to commit ourselves to him?
