THIRTY-FIRST SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

Salvation Comes to Zacchaeus

The Jews in Jesus' time were burdened by state and religious taxes. State taxes were paid to Rome. Herodian rulers imposed direct taxes on land properties and individuals (head taxes). Moreover, indirect taxes were imposed on transit trade and market exchange. On the other hand, religious taxes were paid to the Jerusalem Temple: head and land taxes for the support of the priests, and taxes for sacrificial offerings and vows.

As ruler of the province of Judea, the Roman governor Pontius Pilate probably sold "rights" to collect taxes to "brokers" (telonai, commonly translated as "tax collectors"). These offered fixed amounts, contracted partners, and hired laborers to help with the collections. Taxes were usually overpriced for the brokers to recover their "capital" and have profits. Zacchaeus had bought the "right" to collect taxes in Jericho and was successful in his "business," thus becoming a wealthy man.

The heavy taxes were a great burden to the people, and the brokers could be looked upon as robbers and thieves, due to feelings or perceptions of injustice.

In the Gospel, people (probably the Pharisees) are shown to avoid Zacchaeus; they also condemn Jesus for staying at the house of a sinner.

Jesus answers that he has come to seek and to save what was lost. Affirming that Zacchaeus is also a descendant of Abraham and worthy of being sought, Jesus neither condemns nor ostracizes him, but loves him and sits down to a meal with him. Jesus' ministry is a healing one, and it is directed at those who are honest enough to accept that they need help.

Jesus' treatment of him cuts Zacchaeus to the heart. At first, he is probably just curious about this "teacher" from Nazareth whose fame has spread for and wide. Then Jesus "invites" himself to Zacchaeus' house and table, making something like a covenant of friendship with him. Jesus even defends him from those who condemn him. Greatly moved and thankful, Zacchaeus has a change of heart and decides to make restitutions.
