FIRST SUNDAY OF ADVENT

Staying Awake

Staying awake has to do with not getting a good sleep. It is about being consistent in doing good always because we do not know when Jesus will come again.

Jesus does not want his disciples to be caught unawares, as in the time of Noah, when the people were busy eating, drinking, and merrymaking, unmindful of warnings on the coming disaster. They were not interested in knowing why Noah was building the ark.

Christians must always be on high alert level. They must use their time and resources doing the will of God. If they are carefree and do not take seriously God's message to stop violence, immorality, and crimes, they will not be spared of the devastating consequences when the time of reckoning comes.

Paul specifies how to wake from sleep. Christians should avoid drunkenness, debauchery, licentiousness, quarreling, jealousy, and self-gratification. They should be prepared to meet the Lord.

The prophet Isaiah anticipates the Lord's first coming. The Messiah will attract people to Jerusalem to worship the Lord and be instructed by him. He will exercise judgement on all peoples. He will make people reconcile with one another. All their weapons of war will be recycled into farm implements.

In this season of Advent, we await the coming of the Lord on his birthday, as predicted by Isaiah. We also await his second coming to judge us if we have truly listened to his voice and have made the world our home.
