Fourth Sunday in Lent

The readings for the Fourth Sunday of Lent focus on the difference between human and divine vision. The Lord tells the prophet Samuel: “Not as man does God see, because man sees the appearance but the LORD looks into the heart.” Divine vision penetrates beyond the superficial and sees the depth of who we are.

Today’s reading from 1 Samuel 16 recounts God’s choice of the young David to replace Saul as king of Israel. God directs Samuel to Jesse of Bethlehem who had eight sons. From Jesse’s sons would the next king of Israel. Jesse’s eldest son, Eliab, was by all outward signs the logical choice among Jesse’s sons. But to the surprise of all—Samuel, Jesse (and no doubt Eliab)—God chooses Jesse’s youngest son, David. God saw that it was David’s heart that separated him from others. Not his father Jesse, nor his eldest brother Eliab, nor even the great judge and prophet Samuel was able to see that David had the heart of the king who could shepherd Israel into her “golden age.” Israel was learning to rely on divine vision to guide her history and her destiny.

In the Gospel reading for today, we hear the story of Jesus’ healing of the man born blind. The healing of the blind man begins with a simple and logical question that the disciples ask Jesus: “Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?” In fact, throughout this healing story, a total of sixteen questions are asked by various people. These questions reinforce the reality of the limits of human vision. Everyone involved in this healing story—the disciples, the neighbors of the blind man, the parents of the blind man, the Jews, the Pharisees, even the blind man himself—are characterized by their limited human vision. It is Jesus alone who sees that this man was born blind not because of sin; rather, the man was born blind “so that the works of God might be made visible through him.” In the end, Jesus is most critical of the Pharisees who refuse to see that Jesus’ healing of this blind man as “the works of God.” The Pharisees remain trapped in their human vision and thus were the ones truly blind to God’s work in their midst. For Jesus, this was the sin of the Pharisees: refusal to embrace God’s vision.
