Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Theme/Call To Worship

The readings for the Sixteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time challenge all the faithful—and especially the leadership — to live an authentic faith.

Introduction To The Word

Jeremiah 23:1-6: The first reading, taken from the book of the prophet Jeremiah, contains Jeremiah's prophecy for a coming messianic reign. Those whom God had appointed as shepherds of Israel failed in their duty, and Jeremiah foretold that God will appoint a messianic king from the line of King David.

Ephesians 2:13-18: In his Letter to the Ephesians, Paul writes about the saving effects of "the blood of Christ." Paul speaks of Jesus being "our peace." The peace to which Paul was referring within his historical context was the end of the "dividing wall of enmity" that existed between Jews and Gentiles.

Mark 6:30-34: Today's Gospel reading is directly linked to last Sunday's reading where Jesus called and commissioned the Twelve Apostles. Although Mark provides no specific details, it is assumed the apostles were successful in their initial evangelization efforts, and Jesus' response is to offer the apostles the opportunity to retreat: Despite Jesus' attempt to find a deserted place for the apostles, the needs of the people were so great that Jesus' heart "was moved with pity" for the crowds "for they were like sheep without a shepherd."

Next Week, July 28th and 29th, the Missionary Sisters of Saint Charles Borromeo, Scalabrinians, will speak at each of the Masses at Our Lady of Good Counsel as part of the Archdiocesan New York Mission Coop. The Congregation was founded on October 25, 1895, in Piacenza, Italy, by Blessed John Baptist Scalabrini with the collaboration of Father Joseph Marchetti and Mother Assunta Marchetti. Their mission is the evangelical and missionary service to the neediest migrants. It is carried out through religious, social and cultural activities, and manifests itself through the explicit proclamation of the Gospel, the motivation to the Christian living and of the witness of life, in the different contexts of human mobility; and by welcoming the migrant in his diversity and valuing him as the protagonist of communion among peoples. At each of the Masses at OLGC we will have a special second collection to aid in the mission of this Congregation
