

Old Cemetery Extras:

The Old Cemetery Monument List consists of names from the death registers, beginning with the Goshenhoppen Registers up to the end of year 1876, the year the New Cemetery was started. Added to the list are tombstones found in the Old Cemetery that do not have corresponding death records. The list from the registers was combined with Msgr. Allwein's Tombstone Index and my tombstone photo catalogue. Then I searched the death registers for burials beyond the 1876 date of the new cemetery. The death registers do not indicate if the burial is in the old or new cemetery. Some of the records say the burial is in our cemetery or the church cemetery. Other records do not specify the location of burial and I must assume the burial is in the old cemetery unless otherwise noted.

I ended up with a list of 1,146 burials in the old cemetery that could be identified. Beyond that there are 32 burials that could not be identified because they either had only a first name or only a last name. In most cases those with only a last name were infants that died within hours or a day of birth. Then there are 37 burials that occurred elsewhere and 39 burials that are now in the New Cemetery. Some of those appear to have been relocated to family lots in the new cemetery; others may have been moved when the rectory was enlarged. The list does not include the five priests buried in the chapel floor, but it does include Fr. Francis Varin who is buried in the Old Cemetery near St. Joseph's altar.
