

Charging into 2020

The 2019-2020 school year is already a quarter in

By Samantha Darconte

The 2019-2020 school year began on September 5th, bringing in the new eighth grade class, along with new goals for the whole school. We are now almost done with the first quarter and have already witnessed development within our school. Firstly, the school is currently installing air conditioning in each classroom, which is something we have all been hoping for. We are grateful to Father Jerome and Mr. Kiernan for making this to happen. Secondly, there is a box in the cafeteria which students have been putting their plastic bottle caps in. These will be donated to a charity which recycles the caps into new benches available for purchase. In recent news, yesterday each student received a paper baby bottle with a folder attached to it. These will be filled up with the amount of money desired and donated to research for childhood cancer. Lastly, this Friday is the TACHS test. Eighth grade girls will take the test at St. Joseph by the Sea and the boys will go to Monsignor Farrell. The results will be announced on January 15th. Good luck to all the eighth graders this Friday along with the whole school throughout the rest of the 2019-2020 school year.
