Reflection on 12th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Jesus had been teaching his disciples about the Reign of God privately. Still, in today's reading from Matthew, he sends them out to proclaim the message publicly. In doing so, they will face, "Terror on every side!" But Jesus tells them to, "Fear no one." Except for those who can destroy both body and soul in Gehenna." Who are they, and what is Gehenna?

Gehenna has become synonymous with hell. It was an actual place just outside ancient Jerusalem. In Jesus' time, it was a garbage dump and would have had fires burning continuously. When modern archeologists excavated the site, they found the ruins of a pagan temple beneath the ancient rubbish. They also found the remains of children used as human sacrifice. The Jewish people tore down the temple in disgust and turned the site into a garbage dump to show their contempt for child sacrifice. Today we cherish our children as much as our Jewish ancestors did.

Catholics have long supported the rights of the unborn. More recently, we have opposed our government's separation of children from their families at our southern border. On these issues, we have been faithful to Jesus' direction to proclaim the gospel from the housetops. Our voices are not as loud in denouncing other evils afflicting our children. We have not adequately addressed the clerical and Episcopal misconduct of the sexual abuse scandal. Nor have we pressed our government to regulate hate speech and online bullying on social media, which affects so many of our young people. What have we done to address the inequalities in our educational systems? Poor neighborhoods have chronically underperforming schools. Our college graduates begin their work lives thousands of dollars in student debt. For the first time in our history, experts tell us we cannot deliver on the promise that our children will do better than their parents. In the light of all this and more, what would Jesus have us do?

Pray. Inform ourselves about the ways we are sacrificing our children. Lobby our representatives. Proclaim the gospel from the housetops. "Fear no one." And as Jeremiah says, ". . . praise the Lord for he has rescued the life of the poor from the power of the wicked."
