Responsorial Psalm:
Psalm 24:7, 8, 9, 10

“Who is this king of glory? It is the Lord!”

-First Reading

Malachi 3:1-4
The book of Malachi was written after the Jews returned from exile in Babylon. The prophet expresses God’s displeasure because the people have grown lax in their religious practices. (It may be helpful to know that the term “Sons of Levi” describes temple priests and functionaries.)

-Second Reading

Hebrews 2:14-18
Death was thought by biblical people to be the work of the devil, and not intended by God. Today’s passage from the letter to the Hebrews tells how Christ entered fully into human life even to the point of suffering and death.

We think not enough of this truth, that God is present with us, that God see our thoughts, even long before we have them; that God knows what we think and shall think better than we ourselves, that God sees the folds and recesses of our heart.

-St. Jane Frances De Chantal
