Class in the Catholic Faith – Symbolon (Formed.org)

Monday: October 22, 6:45 – 8:00 pm (Q&A 7:45 pm)
Session 4: Matrimony and Holy Orders – The Sacraments of Service and Communion. We all know the familiar words: “To have and to hold, from this day forward, for better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, until death do us part.” They are part of the time-honored traditional vows of marriage, and they form the cornerstone of the Catholic Rite of Matrimony.

But the wedding ceremony is just the beginning of the Sacrament of Matrimony. A marriage is shaped day by day, as the husband and wife grow in love, trust, and mutual self-giving over their lifetimes. Marriage takes a lot of work. According to Professor Scott Stanley at the University of Denver, a young couple marrying for the first time today has a lifetime divorce risk of 40 percent. All in all, living an authentic Catholic marriage in today's world is a real challenge.

That's why Matrimony is a Sacrament of Service. Through the graces offered by the sacrament, Jesus gives the strength to love our spouse as Christ does and offer our own life to our spouse as a witness of that love.

- Why Matrimony is a sacrament
- The concrete ways the sacrament helps couples every day
- How Christ's love for his Church is the model for marriage
- The importance of the lifelong commitment of marriage
- What an annulment is...and isn't
- The second Sacrament of Service—Holy Orders—and how this sacrament comes in an unbroken line from the Apostles

World Mission Sunday Today is World Mission Sunday. We celebrate this day by remembering the revitalizing mission at the heart of our Christian faith – to bring the Gospel to all! The collection today for the Society for the Propagation of the Faith ensures the work and service of the Mission Church, as it supports priests, religious and lay leaders who offer the Lord's mercy and concrete help to the most vulnerable communities in the Pope's missions. Thank you for your generosity

The Bishop's Appeal for Vocations, annually raises money for the expenses of our seminarians' education. This year's theme is “Gift and Mystery.” Before our Lord ordained the Apostles, He prayed saying, “Father, they are your gift to me” (Jn. 17:24). Christ has called our seminarians to make a gift of themselves in the priesthood, and He calls each one of us to make a generous gift of our resources to support the mission of the Church. Please consider giving generously to the Bishop's Appeal for Vocations, in thanksgiving for the generosity of Jesus Christ and His Church.

Think About Life...

Sometimes you hear people argue that abortion should be legal if the baby would have a low quality of life.

When people make this argument, the first question to ask is, "Wait a minute... what do you mean by 'quality of life?'" Usually they're talking about babies who will be disabled or poor. But having a disability doesn't mean someone is going to have a low quality of life, and neither does being poor.

If we believe that quality of life comes from having physical health and money, then the less of these things we have, the more likely we are to think we have a low quality of life. But Christians believe that a greater quality of life can be experienced by giving and receiving faith, hope, and love, and all of the virtues that go along with them.

This doesn't mean that we shouldn't care about tending to the material needs of others. Poverty, illness, disabilities, and physical defects can be serious burdens for the people who experience them, and everyone has a responsibility to help ease their burdens. But killing unborn people because they might be born poor, ill, disabled, or with a physical defect makes as much sense as lining up all born people who have the same conditions and killing them because we think they have a "low quality of life."

First of all, one person should never be allowed to decide what kind of quality and worth another person's life has. Secondly, just because someone is born poor does not mean she has to stay poor, and just because someone is disabled doesn't mean he can't participate in any of the human activities that make life worth living. Thirdly, which of the following is truly compassionate – helping people reach a better quality of life, or killing people who are in need because we think their lives don't have any value?

Mother Teresa (now known as Blessed Teresa of Calcutta) was a Catholic nun who lived in Calcutta, India, and took care of tens of thousands of the poorest and sickest people on earth for over 45 years. But she once said that America is the poorest country in the world because we do not know how to love. She said, "It is a great poverty to decide that a child must die so that you may live as you wish."

Another side of the "quality of life" argument is the claim that abortion is justifiable for babies who are diagnosed with terminal illnesses. After all, they are going to die anyway, so what kind of quality of life can they possibly have?

First, it is very difficult for doctors to predict exactly when someone is going to die, and they are frequently wrong.

Secondly, if you really think about it, it isn't fair to condemn someone to death because "they are going to die anyway." You are going to die someday, too. That would not be a good excuse for someone to kill you now. Recall Mary at the foot of the cross. She knew her son was going to die, but she didn't run around begging the Roman soldiers to "put Him out of His misery." She stayed with Jesus out of love, commitment, care, and compassion, recognizing that His life had a purpose even to the very end.

Thirdly, just because someone may soon die doesn't mean that person cannot experience a high quality of life. Quality of life is not ultimately about how long you live; it's about experiencing and participating in love. If every person is loved and wanted by Jesus, then wouldn't every unborn child in some way be able to experience the highest quality of life – even those who are diagnosed with terminal illnesses and may not live very long? If we worked as hard to love and want every unborn child as some people work to keep abortion legal, we could help those children experience a very high quality of life, indeed.
