Imagine the best there can be – heaven is better; the most beautiful there is, heaven is more beautiful. Take the best day you’ve ever had, add to it the most exciting moment you’ve ever felt – heaven and God outruns it all.

Two men looked out through their prison bars. The one saw mud and the other saw stars. My dear friends, it is the Catholic who sees stars. It is the Catholic who knows that God punishes the evil man but rewards the good man. Catholicism is profoundly optimistic.

Some people have an uncalled fear, almost horror of God. My dear friends, more than anything else God is a savior, a friend, a brother with overwhelming love and kindness toward us. In a word – He loves us, loves us dearly. The question that confronts us is – do we love and care for Him in return?

What is the single most comforting fact of your story here on earth? It is expressed in these few words from Scripture, “Who can separate us from the love Christ has for us? Shall tribulation or distress, or persecution or famine or nakedness or peril of sword? No, for I am sure that neither death nor life, nor angels nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor anything else in all creation will be able to separate us.”
From the love of God in Christ Jesus Our Lord.

God prefers people who are kind and gracious. We have to draw that conclusion from the fact that God chose Joseph, a kind and gracious man, to be foster father to His Son, and God would hardly have chosen for that task a person he didn’t approve of.

My dear friends, a consoling thought for Lent:
Every now and then, in the fuss and fury of life, we find ourselves standing next to Christ on the cross. Once again we hear His cry: My God, My God, why have you forsaken Me? We should echo that plea and then wait patiently for deliverance – IT ALWAYS COMES.
