PASTOR'S MESSAGE*The Holy Spirit, Soul of the Church

by Archbishop Charles J. Chaput, O.F.M. Cap.

Who keeps the Church alive, and who guarantees her mission? The Holy Spirit. No one else.

If you want a full, meaningful life in Jesus Christ, you will only find it in the Catholic Church. Remember that the Holy Spirit is the "Lord and giver of life": Take those words to heart. There is no real life without the Holy Spirit or without the Church that Jesus Christ founded.

A strong Catholic sacramental and prayer life is indispensable. But it's not good enough. We also need on-going Catholic formation — intellectual, spiritual and human formation. This kind of formation is almost impossible to find outside the context of a living Catholic community, be it a parish, a renewal movement or some other type of Catholic association to which we deeply commit ourselves.

Our connection to the Church is never an abstraction. It always comes alive through our engagement with a community of believers. That's why, from the beginning, the Church was organized into territories, what today we know as parishes or dioceses. That's also why the Church has always encouraged many different forms of Catholic spirituality and community life.

"Christ is our leader, and we His soldiers. Let us then, brothers and sisters, with all energy, act the part of soldiers, in accordance with His holy commandments. Let us consider those who serve under generals, with what order and obedience they perform the things that are commanded them. All are not generals, nor commanders of a thousand, or a hundred . . . but each one in his own rank performs [what must be accomplished]. The great cannot subsist without the small, nor the small without the great."

In Jesus Joy Incarnate
