The Nature of God

Using words that can hardly sustain the meaning Jesus lays upon them in this brief excerpt from the Last Supper Discourse, the Lord teaches us something amazing. He gives us a glimpse of the very nature of God. Like a lightening flash, he lights up for a split second the "structure" so to speak, of God.

The Holy Spirit, Jesus tells us, can only speak what he hears from the Son. And everything the Son has, he has received from the Father. That means that each one communicates their entire selves to the others. They don't just share some points of view, information, or experiences: they actually communicate their whole selves, their entire divine persons.

What is God? God is a total unity of three persons, an everlasting community of living love, of mutual self-giving. There is no holding back, there are no hidden agendas, there is no manipulation - the inner life of God is absolute, no -holds-barred generosity, eternal and unlimited self-donation. That's what God is: three perfect divine persons who perfectly share the unique divine nature.

How can this be? How can God be three distinct persons and still only be one God? We simply don't know. We can only get an inkling of it from our human experience of life in a family. We are created in God's image, and so the love that links husband and wife and gives rise to new life - this is a pale reflection of the divine family of the Blessed Trinity.

Non-Christians often criticize this concept of the Trinity. They say it is a contradiction. But in fact the very mystery of it is a sign that it rings true. No merely human mind could have made this up; only God could have revealed it.

And anyway, if we could understand God fully, he wouldn't really be God.

Marge is turning 80

Please come for a birthday celebration, Saturday, July 6th beginning with Mass at OLPH at 4:00 p.m. Then join her for food, cake and dancing at the KC Hall from 5:30-Midnight.

I want to thank everyone who donated to our Mission Trip to Chimbote, Peru as I will be joining a group from Blessed Sacrament from Fargo. We will be helping build two homes and deliver beds, tables and chairs.

Ryan Sondrol

Hopefully work will start at both parishes with the installations of security cameras and monitors to view church events. As scheduled, on Wednesday the work will start at OLPH and hopefully move to SJ on Thursday or Friday.

It is getting harder and harder to schedule people for ministries in both parishes. The lists that we have are declining in people willing to help and be present. In the fall months we will attempt to get a time and talent survey out so that we can "cast a net" out to flock members. We need people to think about and share their talents especially as lectors of the Sacred Scriptures, bringing the most precious Body and Blood of Our Savior to others, both at Mass and homebound. The most common excuse that is heard is, "Oh, I can't do that." If you can't, who can! We are all called to serve one another through our faith, how's it going in your faith.
