O’Connor to Retire from Charities

OKLAHOMA CITY — Longtime Catholic Charities Executive Director Tim O’Connor said he plans to retire in early 2013. During his tenure, O’Connor has overseen a great increase in Catholic Charities’ services for Oklahomans in need, while managing one of the most respected nonprofit organizations in the state.

The longest-serving director in Catholic Charities’ 100-year history, O’Connor has led the organization for 27 years. To ensure a seamless transition, he will stay with Catholic Charities until a replacement is selected and trained.

“I’ve been honored to lead Catholic Charities as its executive director, and am thrilled to see the positive impact its good works have had on people in central and western Oklahoma,” O’Connor said. “As we began to plan Catholic Charities’ Centennial, however, I realized the time was ripe for the organization to begin its next century with new leadership and for me to mark a new chapter in my life.

“I’m very proud of the wonderful works Catholic Charities and our talented staff and volunteers have achieved during my time here, and look forward to continuing my involvement in the future, albeit on a smaller scale. In the meantime, I am working closely with Archbishop Coakley and Catholic Charities board of directors and succession planning committee to ensure the change in leadership is as smooth as possible.” Catholic Charities board

A Seven-Point Recipe for a New Evangelization

Later this year, the Church will begin a special Year of Faith, coinciding with the 50th anniversary of the opening of the Second Vatican Council and the 20th anniversary of the publication of the Catechism of the Catholic Church. Those watershed events are being celebrated in preparation for the upcoming Synod of Bishops in October. The Synod focuses on the theme: The New Evangelization for the Transmission of the Christian Faith.

Pope Benedict XVI, like his predecessor, Blessed John Paul II, has been insistent in calling the whole Church to a renewal of faith, especially in once Christian areas where faith has grown cold. This is the essence of the New Evangelization. It is not a new message. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today and forever. But it is a new way of proposing the Gospel so that it responds to the questions of a highly secularized culture in a compelling manner. It recognizes that in places where faith and the apostolic impulse has grown cold, we have to move deliberately and with all haste from maintenance to mission.

The Church exists to evangelize: to bring Christ to the world and the world to Christ. But in order to evangelize the culture we have to be fully evangelized ourselves. This is a challenge for all of us: laity, religious as well as the ordained. This is the crucial pastoral challenge of our time: to propose the faith, to witness to the faith, to unveil the beautiful riches of the Christian faith so that all people might come to know Christ, to love Christ, and to follow Christ in the bosom of his Church. Faith is not an abstraction. We put our faith in a person, Jesus Christ. Nor can we separate the person of Jesus from the Church which he established to continue his mission and hand on the treasures of faith.

This is a tall order! Or so it may seem. At the February Consistory in Rome which gave the Catholic Church 22 new cardinals, one of these, Cardinal Timothy Dolan of New York, outlined a Seven-Point Plan for the New Evangelization. It is a framework to help us embrace our mission as agents of the New Evangelization. I would like to share a summary of it with you.

1. The secular mind-set disdains the need for God. Though this mind-set is widespread in our culture, it will not win the day. We are created in such a way that we are hard-wired for God. There is an innate longing in each of us for a transcendent reality, for God. St. Augustine wrote, “You have made us for yourself, O Lord, and our hearts are restless until they rest in you.” Our hearts cannot be satisfied by anything less than God: not wealth, not pleasure, not prestige or power. The recent film “The Way” depicts this longing in a beautiful and compelling way showing how the Christian message can strike a chord even among very secular irreligious people. The first key for the New Evangelization, then, is to keep this quest for God alive. We have to find ways to tap into it.

2. The second point: “Be not afraid!” With a humble confidence we have to stand ready to “Put out into the deep.” We have been entrusted with the treasure that every human heart is searching for: the Word of God. This is the key to the mystery of human existence. We have to put our trust in that reality. It is the power and authority of God which sends us forth to share this good news. We do not labor on our own authority or take on this mission by ourselves. We are sent as ambassadors of Christ and of his Church.

3. The New Evangelization does not first propose a belief-system, but a Person: Jesus Christ. We don't lead with apologetics. We are sent to help people encounter Christ. It is Christ who captivates the hearts and minds of men and women.

4. Jesus is the Truth. The encounter with Jesus, this first step of evangelization, has to be followed by a systematic catechesis (and an effective apologetics). Jesus has entrusted his mission to the Church and it is the Church guided by the Holy Spirit that transmits the fullness of Christian faith to every generation.

5. An evangelist is a person of joy. Joy is one of the fruits of the Holy Spirit. Leon Bloy said, “Joy is the infallible sign of God’s presence.” St. Teresa of Avila said, “A sad saint is a sorry saint!” If we are going to be credible witnesses, we have to be joyful. Do our lives manifest the joy of faith? Do we smile? Are we cheerful and hopeful? Our lives will either be a sign or a countersign to the truth of the Gospel’s claims. Gospel means “Good News.” Do we conduct ourselves as bearers of good news?

6. The New Evangelization is about sharing the love of God. As St. Paul writes, “The love of Christ urges us on!” The love of Christ has to be made manifest in concrete ways, especially in our willingness to serve others. Jesus said, “I have come to serve and not to be served.” Whether in our personal relationships, or through our ecclesial institutions such as Catholic Charities, Christian service motivated by the love of Christ is a necessary element of evangelization.

7. Martyrdom is a sign of the times in which we live. Does this sound shocking? The 20th century saw more martyrs than the previous 19 combined. Martyrdom is the supreme witness to the truth and power of the Gospel. Those who live the faith with integrity will suffer persecution in some form. A few might even be called upon to shed their blood. Those who patiently suffer persecution for their faith give a powerful impetus to the New Evangelization. We are called to bear the cross faithfully and joyfully by following Jesus as his disciples and witnesses. An ancient Christian writer, Tertullian, wrote that “The blood of martyrs is the seed of Christians.”
Teen Describes Faith-Filled Trip to Seminary

By John D. Herrera
For the Sooner Catholic

For young men discerning the priesthood, there is no better way to really get a feel for the seminary life than to go experience it. I figured this out after I signed up for the “Come and See” weekend at Conception Seminary in Missouri. As our bus pulled in to Conception, I was struck by the incredible beauty of the countryside. The large campus, Basilica of the Immaculate Conception and Benedictine Monastery with burgundy-colored brick and a small lake contrasted well with the rolling green hills surrounding it. It gave me the impression of a modern-day castle that had been secretly tucked away in the Middle-of-Nowhere, Missouri. And I mean middle of nowhere. As far as the eye could see, there was nothing but farm country, a few modern windmills and occasionally a farmhouse.

My first thought was, “Why would anyone establish a seminary way out here?” Nevertheless, as the weekend progressed, the answer became clear. It was tranquil. A silence like nothing you can find in a city, or even a small town was there. And in that silence, God can speak. You can hear him speaking in the monks, in the priests and the seminarians. Not just in their words, but in their lighthearted demeanor, and more than anything in their laughter. This excited me. In addition to two soccer fields, a lake, multiple dormitories, a guest house, a recreational facility, great food and an amazingly beautiful basilica, there was this: a truly spiritual commune where education, silence and joy in a holy life are all cultivated together.

The culmination of a great experience that weekend was in the basilica. During the exposition of the Blessed Sacrament, amid the solemn resonating chant of a hundred or so other men, I realized this is where I wanted to be. This is where I want to continue my discernment. This is where Jesus has been calling me.

Editor’s Note: On March 24-26, 12 young men from eight different parishes of the Archdiocese attended the Conception Seminary “Encounter with God’s Call” weekend. The trip is an annual trip sponsored by the Vocations Office for young men who are at least juniors in high school. The trip was led by Father Hamilton, Associate Vocation Director, with the assistance of Matthew Gardocki as chaperone.

CFL to Host Annual Golf Tourney

KINGFISHER — The Center of Family Love (CFL) will hold its eighth annual CFL Masters Charity Golf Tournament on Saturday, May 5 at the Kingfisher Golf Club. Proceeds from this tournament will benefit the CFL programs by helping fund attendance at Special Olympics and summer camps, providing resident Christmas gifts and meeting other resident needs.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with a shotgun scramble time at 8:30 a.m. The registration fee is $55 per individual or $200 for a team, which includes the greens fee for 18 holes of golf, a cart and lunch served courtesy of Cimarron Electric.

Golfers have the opportunity to win $10,000, two airline tickets, golf equipment or electronic equipment for hitting a hole-in-one. Prizes will also be awarded to golfers who get closest to the pin and the male and female with the longest drives. In addition, there will be prizes for the top three teams with the lowest scores and door prizes.

Sponsorship opportunities are available for any business or person interested. Sponsor levels include:

- Platinum Sponsor — $1,000 includes (two) foursome entries, company tee signs on holes 1, 9, 10 and 18, company name on tally scoreboard and verbal advertisement during presentations.
- Gold Sponsor — $500 includes a foursome entry and (two) company tee signs on holes of your choice.
- Silver Sponsor — $300 includes foursome entry and (one) company tee sign on non-designated hole.
- Bronze Sponsor — $100 includes (one) company tee sign on non-designated hole.
- Golf Cart Sponsor — $45 per cart to support the Center in reimbursement of cart fees.
- Prize Sponsors — Prize donations for the longest drive, closest to the pin or winning teams, which includes a verbal advertisement during presentations, sign posted on prize table of your sponsorship, and your company and/or individual name in all printed promo materials.

Those interested in participating should contact David Blair at (405)263-7100.

Since 1981, The Center of Family Love (CFL) has provided quality lifetime care for individuals with developmental disabilities. The Center provides a continuum of care approach for its residents based on their level of disability to help them achieve their highest potential level and live as independently as possible. CFL serves 117 individuals.

of directors has named a succession planning committee, led by Molly Bernard, to ease the transition in leadership. The committee, which has been working closely with O’Connor to establish a succession timeline, will begin its executive search this month. It is hoped the new executive director will be in place this fall and able to train with O’Connor for several months.

“Tim has set a pretty high standard for leadership during his tenure with Catholic Charities, which his successor will have to meet,” Bernard said. “Fortunately, the longer timeline he has established allows us to find, and train, the right person for this position. We are so grateful for his insight and advice as we plan for the next phase of Catholic Charities.”

Catholic Charities’ succession planning committee will begin its search for potential candidates within the Archdiocese first, then, if none is found, expand its efforts beyond Oklahoma. Potential candidates should have nonprofit leadership experience, preferably with a strong social service background.

To learn more about the position, qualified candidates may contact Molly Bernard at molly_bernard@aig.com, or Tim O’Connor at toconnor@catholiccharitiesok.org.
Catholic Author to Speak at SGU

SHAWNEE — One of the premier Catholic apologists in the world will be in Shawnee May 5 for a one-day-only event hosted by the office for Faith Integration, Development and Evangelization (FIDE) at St. Gregory's University. Dr. Scott Hahn will speak inside W.P. Wood Field House on campus from 9 a.m. to noon. His presentations are titled “Letter & Spirit” and “The Lamb's Supper.”

“We are very pleased and excited to welcome Scott Hahn to St. Gregory's University,” said Rev. Nicholas Ast, O.S.B., vice president for Mission and Identity at St. Gregory's. “To host a speaker of Dr. Hahn's stature is truly a privilege. We hope that people will take advantage of this unique opportunity to experience Dr. Hahn's insights into our faith.”

Hahn is an internationally renowned Catholic author and speaker. Hahn studied and was ordained a Protestant minister in 1982. He was received into the Catholic Church at the Easter Vigil in 1986 and often tells of his conversion experience. Currently, Hahn is a professor of Theology and Scripture at the Franciscan University of Steubenville, Ohio. More than 500 of his presentations have been produced on audio and video tapes, and he can be seen on various programs on the EWTN Catholic television station. He and his wife, Kimberly, live in Steubenville and have six children.

Tickets for the event are $20. Group rates are available and may be purchased by contacting FIDE at (405) 878-5352 or fide@stgregorys.edu.

St. Gregory’s University is an authentically Roman Catholic University providing a liberal arts curriculum and professional programs to students in Shawnee and Tulsa. Founded in 1875, St. Gregory's is Oklahoma's oldest institution of higher learning. Parish Clinic Lands $10,000 Foundation Grant

By Rex Hogan
For the Sooner Catholic

OKLAHOMA CITY — St. Charles Borromeo/McAuley Clinic has received a $10,000 grant from the Oklahoma City Community Foundation to help the clinic expand its treatment of diabetics.

Barbara Trimble, clinic director, said the money would allow the clinic to expand it diabetic treatment programs in a number of areas.

Nancy Anthony, Community Foundation executive director, delivered the check to the clinic April 2. She said the St. Charles Clinic was one of five nonprofit clinics to receive grant funds from the foundation.

“These funds are for people who do not have access to health care,” Anthony said. “We had a group of free clinics that applied. Of the five that were awarded grants, all were primarily for diabetics and all were faith-based.”

Trimble said the grant will allow the clinic to improve its glucose testing procedures. She said the clinic also would expand its nutrition, tobacco cessation and exercise programs for diabetic patients.

Trimble said the clinic has been focusing on diabetic patients who have lost their health care and live at or below the federal income poverty standards. She said the clinic serves 113 diabetic patients now and during 2012 will be adding three new diabetic patients per week to its program.

Clinic patients are high risk because they do not have money to buy medications or to take part in nutrition and exercise programs, Trimble said. “Because of these factors, they run the risk of having to be hospitalized, which then places the burden of costs on the hospitals since these patients do not have the resources to pay for their hospitalization,” Trimble said.

St. Charles Borromeo/McAuley Clinic has been offering free medical services since 1993.

Local ACCW Says Happy 87th Birthday to Sr. Sponsa Beltran With $4,200 Donation

OKLAHOMA CITY — For years, Pearl Sullens has toted around a can collecting dollars, dimes, nickles, anything anyone is willing to give to help support the ministry of Sister Sponsa Beltran, OSF.

On March 27, Sullens and a dozen other women from the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women presented a check of more than $4,200 to representatives of Sister Sponsa’s. The gift was made in honor of her 87th birthday.

The sister of Archbishop Emeritus Eusebius J. Beltran, Sister Sponsa spent some 38 years in Liberia, Africa, building a boarding school to help children who are often abandoned by their families. She is now retired.

Our Lady of Fatima School has helped thousands of children who otherwise would have been left to fend for themselves, many to die.

Kevin Rockensies has been involved with helping Sister Sponsa’s ministry for a number of years. He attended the reception that was held at Catholic Charities.

Rockensies offered a history of Sister Sponsa’s ministry. He said in Liberia, if a child is born with a physical disability, the parents consider the child to be “witched.” The child is often abandoned.

This is how Sister Sponsa came to be involved in the lives of these children. In turn, Rockensies told how he came to be involved with Sister Sponsa.

He said his mother attended nursing school with Sister Sponsa in the 1960s. They lost track of one another, but in 1993, Sister Sponsa was scheduled to speak at the parish in Shavertown, Pa., where Kevin and his family attended. Sister Sponsa was there to thank the parish for helping to support her ministry in Africa.

That’s how Kevin and Sister Sponsa came in contact. He said after graduating college, he had no plans to enter into the business of helping disabled African children. He was working as a mortgage broker and has a degree in mass communications when Sister Sponsa came along.

For the past 11 years he’s been telling the story of Our Lady of Fatima School in Liberia, Africa. Twice a year he travels to the school meeting the children firsthand and working to educate the adults so they understand a disability is not something to fear or be ashamed over.

As Sister Sponsa says, “Disability does not mean inability.”

After Sister Sponsa retired, Rockensies and other supporters began looking around for ways to continue her ministry. They came in contact with the Teach Peace Foundation headquartered in California and soon the two ministries were working as one. Rockensies helped form the Special Ambassadors program that is geared to help support Sister Sponsa’s ministry. The partnership has worked well.

SHAWNEE — Citing a renewed focus on providing access to quality higher education, St. Gregory’s University President D. Gregory Main announced during his inauguration on March 30, a special program aimed at helping Oklahoma’s long-term unemployed. The St. Gregory’s University Learn to Earn program will offer state residents a unique opportunity to earn a college degree without incurring any out-of-pocket costs for tuition or fees. The university will begin taking applications immediately.

“It is well understood in an increasingly competitive world that Oklahoma’s workforce educational attainment must be improved,” Main said. “Gov. Fallin has called for a significant initiative to increase the number of Oklahomans with college degrees, and St. Gregory’s University supports this initiative in a bold and exciting way.”

Qualified applicants must be Oklahoma residents 25 years of age and older who have been unemployed for at least 18 months and have not already earned a bachelor’s degree. Applicants must meet entrance qualifications for the SGU College for Working Adults, which offers classes in Shawnee and Tulsa. The university will cover each student’s remaining balance on tuition and fees after all federal and state aid is applied. Loans will be available to cover book expenses. Main said the program is a win-win situation because the financial liability is minimal on both the university and the student.

“At any given time, we have limited space available in our classes,” Main said. “We may not be able to accept everyone who applies, but we hope to fill that space with people who really need help getting back out in the workforce. This is part of our mission at St. Gregory’s. It’s an expression of our Catholic identity.”

The announcement capped the day that included the celebration of Mass by Archbishop Paul S. Coakley. Concelebrating were Bishop Edward J. Slattery of Tulsa, Archbishop Emeritus Eusebius J. Beltran, and The Rt. Rev. Lawrence R. Stasyszen, O.S.B., Abbot of St. Gregory’s Abbey.

Father Bill Pruett delivered the Homily.

“Many unemployed workers believe their only chance of being rehired is to go back to school,” he said. “These people are being forced to make tough decisions about their futures.”

Recent Bureau of Labor statistics indicate a sharp contrast between those with a degree and those without. Nearly 10 percent of Americans with a high school education are unemployed compared to only 4.4 percent for those with a bachelor’s degree. Degreed workers can also expect to make at least $1 million more in their lifetime than non-degreed workers, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

“I believe this program will give many Oklahomans greater job opportunities at higher wages,” Kuehl said.

To enroll in the St. Gregory’s University Learn to Earn program, applicants should schedule an appointment with an SGU admissions representative at (405) 878-5161. For more information about the program, visit www.stgregorys.edu.

St. Gregory’s University was founded in 1875 and is Oklahoma’s oldest institution of higher learning. General information regarding SGU can be found on the university’s website or by calling 1-888-STGREGS.
Priests Honor Bishop-Elect With Father Stanley Rother Award

Archdiocesan priests have honored Bishop-elect Edward J. Weisenburger with the 2012 Father Stanley Rother Faithful Shepherd Award.

The presentation was made by Archbishop Coakley during a Holy Hour of Prayer held April 3 prior to the Chrism Mass. The Holy Hour and Chrism Mass were celebrated at The Cathedral of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, the parish where Bishop-elect Weisenburger was ordained to the priesthood in 1987 and where he has served as Rector since 2002.

On Feb. 6, Bishop-elect Weisenburger was appointed by Pope Benedict XVI as the 11th Bishop of the Diocese of Salina. He will be ordained there as Bishop on May 1.

Bishop-elect Weisenburger, who has served as Vicar General for the Archdiocese since 1996, is the 12th recipient of the Father Stanley Rother Faithful Shepherd Award. The award was created by the Priests Council in honor of Father Rother, who was shot to death in 1981 while ministering in war-torn Guatemala.

Father Rother’s cause is being promoted for sainthood and Bishop-elect Weisenburger serves as Promoter of Justice for the Cause of Canonization for Stanley Francis Rother, Servant of God.
Risen Christ

The encounter “lets us experience all God’s goodness and truth,” he said. The risen Lord “frees us from evil not in a superficial and fleeting way, but sets us free radically, heals us completely and restores our dignity.”

The resurrection means that Jesus belongs not just to the past, but is present today, giving hope and comfort to all those who suffer, the Pope said.

Pope Benedict offered special prayers and encouragement to Christians persecuted for their faith and to the people of the Middle East, asking members of all religious and ethnic groups to work together for the common good and respect for human rights.

“Particularly in Syria, may there be an end to bloodshed and an immediate commitment to the path of respect, dialogue and reconciliation” after months of violent battles between Syria’s government and opposition forces.

The Pope also prayed for the people of Iraq, for Israelis and Palestinians, for those suffering famine and violence in the Horn of Africa, and for those suffering from conflict in Mali and in Sudan and South Sudan.

At the end of his message, he wished people a Happy Easter in 65 languages, including Mongolian, Hebrew, Hindi, Chinese, Maori, Esperanto and Latin.

In English, he said: “May the grace and joy of the risen Christ be with you all.”

At the Easter vigil the night before, the Pope welcomed eight adults into the Catholic Church. Among those he baptized and confirmed was Jason N. Emerick, a 36-year-old man from the Archdiocese of Boston. Two of the catechumens were from Germany and the others were from Turkmenistan, Italy, Albania, Slovakia and Cameroon.

Light, fire and candles were the symbols highlighted during the Pope’s vigil.

Like Easter vigils throughout the world, the Mass began with the lighting of a fire. In the atrium of St. Peter’s Basilica there was a large brazier full of blazing coals. An assistant lit a small taper from the coals and handed it to the Pope so he could light the towering Easter candle.

A deacon carried the candle to the entrance of the darkened basilica and chanted, “The light of Christ.”

The smaller candle carried by Pope Benedict was lit and he got onto his mobile platform to be pushed up the aisle of the basilica in silence and what should have been darkness. Although announcers — in multiple languages — had asked the crowd not to use flashes on their cameras during the procession, bursts of light accompanied the Pope toward the altar.

However, the cameras could not destroy the impact of the candles held by members of the congregation being lighted one by one and the glow spreading throughout the world’s largest church.

In his homily, Pope Benedict said, “To say that God created light means that God created the world as a space for knowledge and truth, as a space for encounter and freedom, as a space for good and love.”

The light of Easter, he said, proclaims forever the fact that “life is stronger than death. Good is stronger than evil. Love is stronger than hate. Truth is stronger than lies.”

The world needs the light of Christ and the light of faith, because darkness always attempts to obscure people’s vision of what is good and evil and what the purpose of their life is, the Pope said.

“Today we can illuminate our cities so brightly that the stars of the sky are no longer visible,” he said. “Is this not an image of the problems caused by our version of enlightenment? With regard to material things, our knowledge and our technical accomplishments are legion,” he said. But when it comes to the more important matters, such as “the things of God and the question of good,” people can no longer see them.

“Faith, then, which reveals God’s light to us, is the true enlightenment, enabling God’s light to break into our world, opening our eyes to the true light,” he said.

Seminary Honors Fr. Don Wolf With Alumni Award

Father Donald Wolf, pastor of St. Benedict Parish in Shawnee, will receive the Saint Meinrad Distinguished Alumnus Award this summer.

Father Wolf attended Saint Meinrad College and later the School of Theology from 1975 to 1981. The honor will be bestowed during the annual Saint Meinrad Alumni Reunion at the closing banquet on Tuesday, July 24.

The Distinguished Alumnus Award is given to alumni who have exemplified the gospel values in their life and work and have provided exemplary service that reflects the core values of Saint Meinrad. Father Wolf will be the 20th recipient of the award, which was first bestowed in 1990.

Before his current assignment, Father Wolf served as associate pastor in Guymon and pastor at St. Francis Xavier in Enid, Sacred Heart in Mangum, Prince of Peace in Altus, Holy Angels and Sacred Heart in Oklahoma City, and Assumption Parish in Duncan.

In addition to his pastoral responsibilities, he served for eight years on the executive board for the National Federation of Priests Councils (NFPC), and from 1997 to 2000 he served as its president in Chicago. His service enriched “the experience of priesthood in the United States by forming bonds of collaboration and fraternity among priests of different cultures and countries,” according to one individual who nominated him for the award.

Father Wolf’s passion for Hispanic ministry and his influence in Oklahoma were highlighted in one recommender’s statement: “Numerous Spanish-speaking Catholics have found a welcome (environment) in Oklahoma and opportunities for grace because of Don’s dedication to priestly ministry.” Another person noted Father Wolf “has been a primary force for Hispanic ministry in the Archdiocese (of Oklahoma City) and beyond.”

In the Archdiocese, Father Wolf has served on the Priests Council, the Clergy Continuing Education Committee and as spiritual director for numerous Cursillo retreats, both in English and Spanish.

A seminarian studying for the Archdiocese of Oklahoma at Saint Meinrad wrote that, while serving at Father Wolf’s parish, he learned “how to empower the laity so they can participate in parish functions, and most importantly, share their gifts and talents with the larger community.”

The seminarian continued, “Father Wolf’s humility, commitment and zeal as a parish priest made me fall in love with what a priest does and who a priest is when he gives himself completely to the needs of others.”

In his recommendation for the award, Bishop Anthony Taylor of the Diocese of Little Rock said he knew Father Wolf when they were students at Saint Meinrad, both studying for the Archdiocese of Oklahoma City. Bishop Taylor mentions that Father Wolf’s cousin, Father Stan Rother, whose cause for beatification is in Rome, visited the United States from Guatemala in 1981 for Father Wolf’s ordination. Two months later, Father Rother was martyred. Bishop Taylor suggested that this inspired Father Wolf to “serve the Lord as courageously, sacrificially and with the same preferential option for the poor for which Father Rother gave his life.”

Father Wolf’s latest involvement has been as chairman of the St. Gregory University board of directors, which is owned by the Benedictines of St. Gregory’s Abbey in Shawnee. St. Gregory’s abbot, Rt. Rev. Lawrence Stasyszien, OSB, writes that Father Wolf brings “a valuable and effective voice and vision” to this role, and that his love for the university’s Benedictine tradition “has its roots in his experience as a seminarian at Saint Meinrad.”

In his time on the university’s board, Father Wolf helped the institution through a president’s dismissal, the hiring of a new president and sorting through difficult financial challenges.

“Saint Meinrad looks forward to celebrating Father Wolf’s accomplishments on July 24,” says Tim Herrmann, director of alumni relations. “His dedication and service bring honor to his parish, his Archdiocese, the Catholic Church, and of course, his alma mater.”

The event will be held at the Catholic Pastoral Center Conference Center. The fee is $30 for one or both days. Check your parish for registration forms, or call or email Barbara Wann, bwann@sbglobal.net, or (580) 875-2278.

Theology of the Body for Couples

God’s Plan for a Joy-Filled Marriage: Based on the Blessed John Paul II’s Theology of the Body, this one-day seminar offers a refreshing, liberating vision of marriage and marital love, and is perfect as a supplement to those preparing for marriage as well as enrichment for married couples. Crisly Welch, an NFP instructor and teacher at Mount St. Mary’s High School, will facilitate. The date for this opportunity is Saturday, April 28 beginning at 9 a.m. at the Catholic Pastoral Center. Lunch will be provided and the cost is $20 per couple. Please call the Office of Family Life to register at 721-8944.

Nurses to be Celebrated

EDMOND — The first week of May has traditionally been marked as a time to honor the nurses in our community. On Thursday, May 10, Mercy Health Center, St. Anthony Hospital, St. John the Baptist Catholic Church and Catholic Charities will sponsor an evening of appreciation for our many nurses. Mass will be celebrated beginning at 5:30 p.m. at St. John the Baptist, 900 S. Littler, Edmond. Dinner will follow in the parish hall. Though the evening is free, reservations are required by calling Marilyn Seiler at 340-0691 Ext. 197, or emailing parishnurse@stjohn-catholic.org. Deadline for registrations is Sunday, May 6.

Parish to Host Flea Market

SHAWNEE — St. Benedict’s Flea Market will be held Saturday, May 12 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. St. Benedict’s is located at 632 N. Kickapoo in Shawnee, I-40 Exit 185, go south two miles, church is on your right. Several vendors with arts and crafts, garage sale items, home interiors, handcrafted jewelry, crafts by PROJECT GABRIELLE and more. Mass is celebrated at 8 a.m.
New Church to Be Blessed

OKLAHOMA CITY — St. Eugene parishioners will celebrate the opening of their new church when Archbishop Coakley blesses the new building and celebrates Mass on Friday, April 20 at 7 p.m. The opening of the new church is the result of almost four years of fundraising and planning.

St. Eugene Parish opened more than 50 years ago and has been worshipping in a building that was constructed as a temporary church structure that was intended to be a permanent gym and parish hall. A parish planning process in the 1990s identified two major needs: a new school building and a new church building. A new school was built and completed in 1997, and the debt on that building was paid off in 2007.

The previous structure seats only 475, which led to five different Masses being celebrated to accommodate the more than 1,800 weekend worshipers. The new church will seat 800 and has the ability to accommodate overflow crowds that commonly occur during Holy Week. In addition to the increased capacity, the new church structure will be more easily identified to the thousand of vehicles that pass by on Hefner Road daily that didn’t realize the previous structure was a place of worship.

In the final week leading up to the opening of the new church, there will be special events each night for parishioners to give thanks and celebrate the more than 50 years of memories of the previous sacred space.

For more information, contact Father Joseph Jacobi at 751-7115, or Bob Rapp at 286-5124.

Red, White and Boots Wine-Tasting May 3 in Stockyards

OKLAHOMA CITY — The Red, Whites and Boots event will be held May 3 at Cattlemen’s Event Center, 1309 S. Agnew in the historic Stockyards City.

The annual wine-tasting event benefits the Sanctuary Women’s Development Center for Oklahoma City’s homeless women and children.

David Egan of Cattlemen’s said the Red, Whites and Boots will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. and will feature wines from Oakville Ranch, one of Napa Valley’s premier producers of fine wines, as well as Oregon’s famous Domaine Serene.

Participants will enjoy great Napa Cabernet and Oregon’s most celebrated Pinot producer with food by Cattlemen’s Steakhouse.

Tickets are $40 per person with VIP admission of $65, which includes an after-event reception at one of Oklahoma City’s famous historic landmarks. For more information, call David Egan at (405) 947-1484 Ext. 7.

Sanctuary Mission is a ministry of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Oklahoma City. It supports basic human rights through offering homeless and low-income women and children resources, support and advocacy to alleviate the effects of poverty within the community, and empowering them with the tools to overcome homelessness.

Schedules Released

Summer 2012 Schedule, Pastoral Ministry Program

THEO 4883 Liturgical Prayer: Praying Shapes Believing, Believing Shapes Living

Tuesdays, June 5-July 31 (no class July 3), 6 to 10 p.m. - Father Phil Seeton.

Available at all locations, depending upon registrations.

Following the ancient teaching, “Lex orandi, lex credendi” (“The law of prayer expresses the law of belief”), this course will explore the various ways the Church’s liturgical prayer can lead us more deeply into a life of faith and belief. Through the study of the history and development of liturgical texts and ritual, the course will help learners to experience the shared faith of the Church in relationship to our communal worship of the Holy Trinity. This course will be especially helpful to those who lead prayer in parish ministry and other settings.

THEO 4883 Bereavement Ministry

Thursdays, June 7-July 26, 6 to 10 p.m. - Peggy Browne.

Available at all locations, depending upon registrations.

This course will provide students an opportunity to study bereavement, grief and loss from theological and pastoral perspectives. The pastoral care of individuals and families will be addressed, as well as ministering in situations of grief and loss in the parish and other settings.

Fall 2012 Initial Schedule
Pastoral Ministry Program

Note: Other offerings are in process. Check our website for updates.

THEO 3053 Sacramental Theology

Tuesdays, Aug. 21-Dec. 4, 7 to 10 p.m. - Peggy Dooley.

Available at all locations, depending upon registrations.

This course is a consideration of the Church community as Sacrament — sign and cause — of Christ in the world today. Ideas to be explored in this class include an understanding and appreciation of sacramentality, religious ritual and symbol. These understandings will provide the basis for an in-depth reflection of the seven sacramental actions of the Church from both a historical and contemporary point of view. Prerequisites: Ordinarily Theology of Church and New Testament.

THEO 4883 Christian Discipleship in the 21st Century

Thursdays, Aug. 23-Dec. 6, 7 to 10 p.m. - Jim Smith.

This course will “break open” both the Good News and those essentials of the tradition and teachings of Catholic Christianity that distinctively make us Catholic, familiarize students with the developments of Catholic Social Teaching, and its movements, specifically within the context of American history. The course will foster the cultivation of a spirituality of personal and social discipleship.

Courses may be taken for three hours credit, personal enrichment or continuing education (for graduates of any of our formation programs). Cost, $160 credit; $90, personal enrichment; $75, continuing ed; plus cost of textbooks.

Mandate A Cruel Attempt to Block God’s Love

After many frustrating years of searching for answers to various health symptoms, I was diagnosed with a hormonal disorder, the cause of which is still unknown. After four years of marriage, I’ve finally accepted the painful reality that I might never become pregnant or give birth to a child who has my husband’s wit and generous, loving heart. So the recent federal Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) mandate that would force me to pay for other women’s contraceptives and sterilizations as part of the new health care law’s “preventive services” mandate adds insult to my injury.

Health care is about healing and restoring the body to good and proper functioning. Sterilization, abortificents and contraception communicate the irrational message that the healthy, natural state of fertility is somehow wrong and diseased. Mutilating healthy organs and distorting a woman’s natural hormone levels in order to avoid pregnancy have nothing to do with preventing and treating diseases. Contraception promotes an impoverished view of a woman’s body and the gift of her fertility. It is an affront to God’s design for life and love because it deliberately separates a married couple’s loving union from their ability to be open to life. God wove humanity into an incredibly delicate but splendid intricacy. We should celebrate and protect the capacity of women to join with their husbands in becoming co-creators with God.

Although Catholics and others recognize that hormonal contraceptives can harm a woman’s body, her relationships and her soul, the personal decision to contracept is not the public policy issue that is currently being debated. The bishops object to the HHS mandate mainly because it violates religious liberty and conscience rights by forcing all who conscientiously object to these drugs and procedures — whether they are religious or not — to pay for them against their will. The Catholic bishops recognize that increased access to contraception does not reduce, and often increases, abortions. They also objected to the final version of the new health care law because it allocates billions of dollars in new funding that evades longstanding laws against federal funding of abortion. The HHS contraceptive mandate is a dangerous step toward mandating that everyone carry insurance coverage for abortion. The bishops are calling for the mandate to be dropped.

Natural Family Planning (NFP) classes are given periodically throughout the Archdiocese. For more information, contact the Office of Family Life at (405) 721-5651, or go to http://archokc.org/office-of-family-life/home.

Instead of undermining their natural capacity to accept children lovingly from God by using contraceptives or sterilizations, married couples are encouraged to use Natural Family Planning (NFP) as a way of cooperating with God’s plan for their family size. NFP promotes responsible parenthood by working with the couple’s natural fertility cycle; it is a healthy and morally acceptable way of spacing or delaying the gift of children. NFP can also be used to achieve pregnancy, and is a useful tool to help identify hormonal imbalances and other health issues.

Women need not feel alienated, but rather honored and protected, by the Catholic vision of sexuality and reproduction. Blessed John Paul II’s Apostolic Letter “On the Dignity of Women” (1988) presents a vision of women’s unique role in society and in the Church. Women are called by the Church to use their particular gifts to glorify God.

While I may have to bear the pain of childlessness, I am heartened by the Church’s courage in advocating for my freedom to live out my beliefs without government interference and control. Daily Review Can Help Reveal Blessings in Our Life

Something we can do to nurture our relationship with God as well as with ourselves is to conduct a review of our successes and failures at the end of the day. This daily review (those familiar with the Retreat in Daily Life refer to it as the Examen), may be experienced as we fall asleep or upon awakening in the morning with our first cup of java.

This review can begin with gratitude for the blessings we have experienced during the day, i.e. walking in a park, sharing with our spouses, noticing a rose, hugging a child, talking with a grandchild, etc.

The review continues with noticing two or three successes we experienced during the day when we believe we were in the flow of God’s will. We might notice when we listened to another with an understanding and accepting heart; we let go of wanting something our way and lovingly went along with our spouses; we visited and comforted an ill friend; we gave the homeless man standing on the corner two bucks; we smiled at a cashier, etc.

We might notice other successes when we cautioned ourselves against being critical or judgmental of another; we didn’t take a hurtful comment personally; we listened without giving advice; we said “no” instead of attempting to please another; or we spoke up in defense of another, accepting whatever criticism might be offered.

In this review of our successes, we can notice that we were truly with God, letting go of our selfish ways, and doing His will. We might notice the feelings of peace, happiness, calmness we experienced at the time or that we may be experiencing during this review. We can allow these feelings to affirm our actions and just know that at these times we were being our true, authentic selves who God wants us to be. What a blessing!

And to continue the review, we can make note of one or two times when we failed and we said “no” to or forgot about God. We might notice when we intentionally hurt or wounded another, oftentimes those we love the most — our spouses and our children. We can also notice less grievous offenses such as when we failed to attentively listen to another, participated in critical gossip, fearfully remained silent rather than asserting ourselves, nurtured a resentment and wallowed in self-pity, failed to yield to someone on the highway, criticized another, etc.

Again, only notice one or two failings, realize God has forgiven us and we can forgive ourselves while letting go of any guilt, shame and/or remorse. We can also reflect on how we would like to act next time and ask God for the willingness and the power to do so.

By this time many of us may be sound asleep, knowing that we are children of God who loves us no matter what. We are so blessed! Peace!

Mount Grad Finds Joy in Service

Peter Brunette had no idea what the future held when he graduated from the Mount in 2008. He attended Rose State College on a baseball scholarship and later transferred to the University of Oklahoma to study Industrial Engineering, but something was still missing.

That is, until the summer of 2011 when he attended a project named Kaleo, a nine-week program in Florida that focused on becoming a spiritual leader on campus.

"Since I’ve come back, I’ve been trying to meet up with the guys in my fraternity to talk about God and start up Bible studies with them," Brunette said. “I just want to impact their life in that way.”

In addition to his ministry work at home, Brunette is participating in two international trips in 2012.

“For spring break, I went to Haiti,” Brunette said. “I played with kids and helped out with whatever they needed help with.”

Brunette is also raising funds to go to Mumbai, India, as part of a Maharashtra Cultural Exchange Program for six weeks in the summer.

“We’ll be going as students to learn about their culture, but we will be working on spreading the gospel to the people of India during our stay,” said Brunette.

No matter where in the world his travels take him, Brunette said he can still trace his decision to move into ministry work back to his experiences at the Mount.

“Coming from such a God-centered background at the Mount and being in that environment gave me the heart for wanting to work for God in college,” he said.

In particular, one teacher at the Mount gave Brunette the confidence he needed.

“When I had conversations with Coach Keilty, he always had confidence that I would do great things, even though I had no idea what was going on in my life,” Brunette said. “His confidence has given me the confidence to do all these things.”

If you are interested in helping support Peter Brunette, please email him at peter brunette-25@gmail.com, or call (405) 206-8656.

Irish Host German Exchange Students, Build Friendships

OKLAHOMA CITY — At the end of March, 17 high school students from Neuburg, Germany, arrived as foreign exchange students to stay with host families at Bishop McGuinness Catholic High School (BMCHS) for 22 days.

“This is a very unique opportunity for all of our students, as well as the visiting German students, to experience the similarities and unique difference of two distinctly different cultures,” said David Morton, principal of BMCHS.

The students hail from Descartes-Gymnasium School in Neuburg, the Bavarian region of southern Germany, a predominately Catholic region of Germany. BMCHS has participated in this exchange program for the past eight years, under the guidance of Frau Ursula Skuta-Bolding and the German-American Partnership Program (GAPP). The program alternates with each school visiting every other year.

“The relationships that develop between the students from Neuburg and their host families here in Oklahoma City have sometimes gone well beyond the three weeks that they are together here,” said Frau Bolding, German Language instructor at BMCHS. “In many cases, students from either school often travel to either city independently. On these return visits, the students stay with not only their original host families, but other families in each community and develop friendships which last a lifetime,” she said.

While in Oklahoma City, the students will live with their host families and attend classes at BMCHS. Both the American and the German students are encouraged to exchange information on their cultures and traditions, especially over the Easter holidays.

In addition, the German students have prepared entertaining and informative Power Point presentations featuring youth-oriented areas of interest including what their school is like, what they do for entertainment in their hometown, German culture, popular music and other activities. The German students will share their presentations to the foreign language classes at BMCHS and with selected elementary schools.

The exchange students had an opportunity to get to know all of the host families and host students at a special welcome party at the home of James and Karen Kwasny.

Field trips will allow the exchange students to learn about American and Oklahoma culture through visits to the Oklahoma State Capitol, the Oklahoma City National Memorial and Museum and a special trip to the Wichita Mountain Wildlife Refuge where they will experience the regionally famous Meersburger hamburgers. Fun activities such as an evening at Laser Quest and an afternoon at Frontier City will also be offered to the students.

The hosting students and their German guests are Connor Ahrens hosting Bettina Vogl; Anna Bahm hosting Klaas Sofia Keidl; Ryan Barth hosting Stefan Fuerst; Jordan Drullinger hosting Lena Boeswald; Braden Farris hosting Laura Habermeier; Shelby Garvey hosting Vanessa Scherer; Terran Hill hosting Olivia Wuermseher; Eric Hughes hosting Sebastian Mayr; Maddie Jacobs hosting Maike Suedhaus; Ian Kipgen hosting Luis deJesus Marques; Nick Kwasny hosting Lukas Bayer and Sebastian Weber; Catherine Lewis hosting Victoria Schmitz; Kaylee Martin hosting Johanna Riesinger; Hope Powers hosting Sabrina Brockmann; Joey Saucedo hosting Justin-Constantin Kroicher; Sarah Vaughan hosting Anna Suedhaus; and Aspen Weber hosting Christina Heckl.
Life of Colorful Bishop Kelley on Display in Heritage Room

For decades, Father Jim White chronicled the history of the Church in Oklahoma. This is how he summed up Bishop Francis Clement Kelley, the second Bishop of Oklahoma.

“He dreamed big and acted big, perfectly suited for 1920s America, and he took the place by storm.”

A stroll through the Archdiocesan Heritage Room would bear this out as the latest exhibit pays tribute to the man who led the Church in Oklahoma through the Dust Bowl, the Great Depression and World War II, leaving a legacy of great faith and hope that continues to this day.

George Rigazzi, director of the Archdiocesan Office of Family Life, was handed the reins of the Heritage Room following the retirement of longtime curator Jim Weinmann. Rigazzi said the exhibit featuring Bishop Kelley was inspirational and one he recommends “every Catholic in Oklahoma” needs to experience.

“Bishop Kelley was a very creative and bold man of faith,” Rigazzi said. “He was very brilliant. He was the embodiment of our history.”

Bishop Kelley was born in 1870 in the Canadian Province of Prince Edward Island, growing up in a predominately Irish-Catholic culture. He was ordained a priest in the Diocese of Detroit in 1893 and served as an Army chaplain in the Spanish-American War.

Later, as pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Lapeer, Mich., he saw firsthand the plight of the rural Catholic Church in America.

Father Kelley was so moved by the struggles of the faith in rural America, he founded the Catholic Church Extension Society in Chicago. He worked tirelessly convincing wealthy Catholic parishes in large cities to contribute financially to the survival of small rural parishes. He helped bring priests from Ireland and Canada to help minister in the rural areas of the United States, and many of them found their way to Oklahoma through the Extension.

Rigazzi said Bishop Kelley’s love for the poor in rural America played a role in him being sent here.

Bishop Kelley came to Oklahoma with the same determination that helped him build up the Extension Society. He quickly became good friends with the leaders at the time, Catholic and non-Catholic. He transformed these relationships into ways to help the minorities and the poor rural areas in the state.

Oilman Frank Phillips was one of his close friends, as was Gov. Alfalfa Bill Murray. Neither was Catholic.

After hearing Bishop Kelley in 1933 speak at the University of Oklahoma on the importance of education, Gov. Murray asked him to develop Oklahoma’s system of higher education.

A reporter asked Murray how a Protestant governor could be such close friends with a Catholic bishop. “There are two intelligent people in Oklahoma and we have to talk with one another,” Murray was said to have responded.

Heritage Room Hours

The Heritage Room at the Catholic Pastoral Center is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Also, by appointment, call (405) 721-5651 Ext. 141 to schedule an appointment.
