Feast of Our Lady of LaVang

Cathedral of Our Lady of LaVang
August 16, 2009

My dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ:

As always, it is a great joy to gather together with you, the faithful Vietnamese Catholic people of Oklahoma City. Today there is an additional joy since we are celebrating this feast of our Blessed Mother, which most of us here in America have never observed. However, in recent decades, as you and your families came to America, we too began to learn about Our Lady of LaVang.

Like Catholics throughout the whole world, we were already aware of the unique role that the Blessed Mother played in salvation history: She is the special creation of God, immaculately conceived and preserved from all stain of sin. Totally obedient to God, the Blessed Mother always responded positively, thus fulfilling God’s Will in every circumstance of her life.

Mary is the chosen one who was called to become the mother of Jesus, the eternal Son of God. She became our mother as Jesus died on the cross. There, John, the Apostle, representing us, heard Jesus say to him, “Son, this is your mother.” And to Mary, Jesus said: “This is your son.” Mary thereby became mother to all of us.

Then, after the death and resurrection of Jesus, the Blessed Virgin Mary continued to inspire the Apostles as they fulfilled the mission Jesus gave them. This mission included the proclamation of the Gospel (i.e., the Good News of Jesus) and the celebration of the sacraments.

But even when Mary was called by God and taken by Him body and soul into heaven, she continued to be our mother, our guide, our helper. She is the Mother of God and the Mother of the Church. Therefore, periodically she would appear somewhere in the world to remind us of God’s goodness and love, to call us to repentance and to assure us of her love and her help.

Thus many nations and cultures and societies cherish the fact that Mary, the Mother of God and our mother, too, has appeared on their soil. She came to different places at various times in history. In each instance she brought consolation and healing. She always led people back to her Son Jesus Who is our Lord, our Savior. She is always a kind and loving mother.

Today we are honoring Mary under the title of Our Lady of LaVang. There in central Vietnam, Mary appeared to the local people and encouraged them to be faithful to our Catholic religion. She healed them and watched over them. Now for more than 200 years, she has continued to bless the people of Vietnam.

The Vietnamese people who immigrated to other countries, like you who have come to America, introduced us to Our Lady of LaVang. We witness the love you have for our Blessed Mother and your devotion to her as Our Lady of LaVang. We are very happy to join you in honoring the Blessed Virgin Mary, for she is mother of us all. May we always remain good and faithful Catholic people, children of Mary, the Mother of God.

May we always remain good and faithful Catholic people, children of Mary, the Mother of God.

Catholic Parishes Join With Oklahoma Sponsoring Committee

Priest Explains Role of Organization

By Ray Dyer

_The Sooner Catholic_

OKLAHOMA CITY — Six Catholic parishes are among about two dozen churches in the Oklahoma City area that have joined to form an entity known as the Oklahoma Sponsoring Committee. The OSC was created in February.

Father Tim Luschen, pastor of St. Monica Church in Edmond, said the purpose of the organization is to listen to the concerns and needs of families and individuals in the churches and parishes and then determine if similar issues are posing challenges in other areas of the community. “Families are hurting,” Father Luschen said. He said the OSC member churches will conduct research after gathering information specific to each church and parish to determine if any course of action could be implemented to help address common issues. He said by gathering this information, the churches and parishes can determine if ministries already exist that could address the situation, or “do we need to develop a new ministry” to tackle an issue.

The information will be gathered by listening to parishioners. This will occur first, Father Luschen said, in small groups, normally meeting in homes. The smaller groups will then come together for parish meetings.

Father Luschen said the six Catholic parishes have agreed to join with Protestant churches and one Jewish congregation in the OSC effort. He said in no way would the Catholic parishes agree to support anything that goes against Church teaching or tradition. “We will only work on the issues we can agree on.”

_Father Tim Luschen_

 finde difficult to move about Oklahoma City. Father Luschen said he knows of a man with disabilities who commutes by bus from The Village to the University of Central Oklahoma in Edmond. He said it takes the man four hours to make the trip by city bus. In a car the route could be driven in no more than 20 minutes.

Father Luschen said he is aware there has been criticism concerning the Catholic involvement in the OSC. A number of Catholics have written or spoken against Church involvement and recently Catholic participation in the OSC has been criticized on the Internet and on an Oklahoma City radio station.

Originally, nine Catholic parishes were involved with the OSC, but Father Luschen said three decided against further participation. Parishes currently supporting the OSC include The Cathedral of Our Lady of Perpetual Help, St. Monica, St. Charles, St. Patrick, Sacred Heart and St. Eugene. All are in Oklahoma City except for St. Monica, which is in Edmond.

Father Luschen said while he supports the rights of those in opposition to criticize, he believes the OSC can help do good in the community while continuing to strictly follow Church teaching. “We will continue to do what we do in our parishes,” Father Luschen said. He said the OSC will simply allow more voices to come together in search of solutions to critical issues. He said also that community organizing has been accepted and even promoted by Catholic bishops in various parts of the world.

Archdiocesan Priests Celebrate 50 Years of Service to God

By Steve Gust
For the Sooner Catholic

This year Pope Benedict XVI has declared the “Year for Priests,” and how appropriate is it the Archdiocese is marking the 50th jubilee ordination of four of our priests. Father Gerard MacAulay, Father John J. Michalicka, Father Marvin F. Leven and Father Denis Hanrahan have each reached this very special of milestones.

Between them, that’s more than 200 years of celebrating Mass, bringing the Holy Eucharist to parishioners across the state as well as thousands of baptisms, weddings and funerals. And that only begins to scratch the surface of the duties of these men who faithfully answered God’s call to the priesthood in 1959 when Ike was in the White House and television was still somewhat new.

Father John Michalicka
Pastor, St. Mary’s, Ponca City

Father Michalicka was born in Union City in November 1933. He was ordained at Our Lady’s Cathedral in Oklahoma City on May 16, 1959.

He grew up in a family where daily prayer and Sunday Mass were a regular part of their life. Although he labels his calling a “reluctant discovery,” Father Michalicka gradually was drawn to his vocation by the beauty of the Mass and liturgy.

To this day, Mass and the opportunities of sharing in the joy of baptisms, weddings and reunions hold a special place in his heart.

Over the past 50 years he’s seen the faith battle a secular and consumer culture. “Being a witness to God in a secular world, with the love of Christ seems to surprise so many with a myopic view of earth and view of living,” he said.

Father Michalicka has served at the Pastoral Center, Our Lady’s Cathedral, St. Anthony’s Hospital, Oklahoma City; Epiphany, Oklahoma City; as well as missions in Woodward, Canute and Coalglate. He has been pastor at St. Mary’s in Ponca City since 1984. He was also an associate there in the 1960s.

Father Denis G. Hanrahan
Pastor, St. Mary’s, Guthrie

Father Hanrahan was ordained June 14, 1959, in Dublin, Ireland. He followed in the footsteps of his brother, Michael, who was ordained in 1954 and served the Archdiocese of Oklahoma City faithfully until his death in 1990.

In Ireland Father Hanrahan was from a parish where the priesthood vocation was popular among young men.

“There were probably more than 20 ordained from my parish,” he said. “When they were home on vacation, they made an impression on me.

It was their witness to the faith and Michael’s decision to serve, which also led him to his decision to serve God. Michael was born in the United States and therefore made the decision to serve in this nation. Father Hanrahan followed his brother. Father Hanrahan’s ministry has taken him to Blessed Sacrament in Lawton; Sacred Heart, Oklahoma City; St. Pius, Tulsa; St. Helen’s, Frederick; St. Eugene’s, Weatherford; St. Rose of Lima, Watonga; St. Catherine’s, Pauls Valley; and now St. Mary’s, where he’s in his 18th year as pastor.

“I am very grateful for the opportunity the archdiocese has given me to serve,” he said.

Has he ever thought about the number of Masses he’s celebrated?

“Well, it’s at least one a day for 50 years,” he said. (That comes to 18,250) Next year he turns 75 and will be eligible for retirement, he said.

Father Gerard MacAulay
Retired

It was May 23, 1959, at Prince Edward Island, Canada, where Father MacAulay was ordained into the priesthood. Like his fellow jubilee celebrants, he has served several parishes in the state, bringing the sacraments to worshippers.

These days, he celebrates Mass at St. Ann’s Retirement Center near the Archdiocesan Center.

Born Nov. 30, 1928, he also has made an impression, a profound one with many of his former parishioners.

Last May, Catherine Green, formerly of Holy Family Parish in Lawton, wrote The Sooner Catholic and recalled many of the times and experiences Father MacAulay had there.

She called him a “good priest leading the souls in his care toward heavenly pasture.” She remembered when he left Holy Family.

“The church was so full at his farewell. He had been kind to the sick, the elderly, the small children.” And perhaps she summed up best his legacy.

“I don’t know where all his parishioners are now; many have died and some moved away as we did ourselves. But we remember Father, we thank you for your many sacrifices. We thank you for your goodness and holiness and kindness.”

He served at St. Mary’s in Ponca City; Christ the King, Oklahoma City; St. Peter’s, Woodward; St. Philip Neri, Midwest City; St. Eugene’s, Oklahoma City; Our Lady of Victory in Purcell; Holy Family, Lawton; and Immaculate Conception in Oklahoma City.

Father Marvin F. Leven
Retired

On May 6, 1959, Father Leven was ordained at St. Francis Church in Newkirk. At a jubilee celebration last May at St. John’s in Edmond, Father Leven noted there had been many challenges in his 50 years. Hundreds packed the Great Hall of St. John’s in Edmond where Father Leven said he was like a cat with nine lives. “I still have two more to go,” he joked.

It’s that sense of humor which has helped Father Leven in his vocation. He believes the Holy Spirit has had a deep effect on his life, as has his spiritual relationship with martyred priest, Father Stanley Rother. In an interview with the Sooner Catholic in 1992, Father Leven discussed both.

“I’ve seen radical changes in people’s lives through their devotion to the Holy Spirit,” he said. “I recalled a time when he asked for intervention by the late Father Rother with a young woman near death. She survived her surgery and began to recover.

Father Leven was raised in rural Oklahoma and another of his stories concerned his late father, Anton. As a young man his father was turned down for Knights of Columbus life insurance — considered a poor risk. His father lived to be 105, dying in 2003.

In addition to being a longtime chaplain for the Oklahoma State Council of the Knights of Columbus, he served at St. Peter and Paul, Tulsa; St. Francis Xavier, Enid (twice); St. Eugene’s, OKC; Holy Family, Tulsa; Prince of Peace, Altus; St. John the Baptist, Edmond; Holy Trinity, Okarche; and Holy Family, Lawton.

Though retired in 1999, he continues to serve as chaplain at Mercy Hospital; as chaplain to the Sisters of Mercy and the Sisters of the Carmel of St. Joseph; and as chaplain for cruise ships of the Holland America Cruise Line.

The Priest

By Paula Brock

Alter Christus the Priest, another Christ. In his love and wisdom, God did not leave us alone on this earth but gave us the priest. During my pilgrimage here on earth, the priest has accompanied me, helping me to navigate and stay on the path that will lead me to my eternal home. He has come in many forms, ages, races and manners; and he has always been there, in the happy times, in the sad times and in the ordinary times.

He has been my friend, counselor, confessor and consoler. He is Augustinian, Dominican, Benedictine and secular.

When I was first born, he was there to bring me to a precious and nobler birth through the sacrament of baptism. I have seen him baptizing my children and grandchildren as infants, and my husband as an adult.

What joy for me to see my family being freed from their sins, entering the Church and being made sharers in her mission!

When I was a child, the priest was there to reconcile me to God. I received my first Sacrament of Penance as an innocent 7-year-old, little did I know of sin. But as time passed and I offended the Lord, it was the priest who showed me God's great mercy and encouraged me in the knowledge that my sins were forgiven.

How vividly I remember my First Holy Communion Day, wearing my beautiful white dress and veil and missing my front tooth. The priest was there again, to give me the life-giving food that is Christ come down from Heaven. I did not think I could ever be happier than I was on that day. Although I little understood the depths of this mystery at the time, through the years the continual reception of the most Holy Eucharist, made available to me through the priest, has shaped my life and my very being.

As a 9-year-old I remember wearing a red gown and receiving the light slap on the face from the bishop that was a customary Confirmation symbol at the time. I was told I was now a soldier of Christ, and I proclaimed with great certainty that I would be willing to die for the Lord! However, as I progressed through my early adult years, I was anything but a soldier. Though the priest is often scorned and condemned for defending the divine and enduring things of God, it was his example that brought me back to my senses.

As a young bride, my husband and I exchanged our vows witnessed by the priest; there he was with us as we made the public decision to cooperate with God in the founding of our family. The multitude of joys throughout our years together clearly demonstrates God’s presence in our marriage. The birth of our children, seeing them grow into loving adults with children of their own, and spending simple time together in the lovely quietness of family life are all gifts beyond compare.

The priest was with me again on one sad September day, as he gave my husband the Sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick. My husband was dying and I had to let him go. What a comfort it is to know that my husband was reconsecrated before he presented himself to the Divine and Merciful Judge. Through my conversations with the priest, I was able to have peace in making the decision to turn off artificial life support. It brings me solace today to reflect on the sound wisdom of the Church made known to me through those conversations.

As I look back over these years, I realize how integrally and essentially related to my life the priest is. His humility, sacrifice and holiness have been and continue to be a model and inspiration.

Paula Brock is the CFO of the Zoological Society of San Diego

Please Pray for Priests

Dear Lord,
We pray that the Blessed Mother wrap her mantle around your priests and through her intercession strengthen them for their ministry.

We pray that Mary will guide your priests to follow her own words, “Do whatever He tells you.” (Jn 2:5).

May your priests have the heart of St. Joseph, Mary’s most chaste spouse.

May the Blessed Mother’s own pierced heart inspire them to embrace all who suffer at the foot of the cross.

May your priests be holy, filled with the fire of your love seeking nothing but your greater glory and the salvation of souls. Amen.

St. John Vianney, Pray for Us
Archbishop Beltran, in collaboration with the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB), has been actively involved in the debate on national health care reform legislation.

The debate has reached a critical point, and the united voice of the Catholic community needs to be heard clearly and strongly as Congress makes important decisions about the principles and specific policies that will be included in legislation. The Catholic community has unique credibility in this debate, because we provide health care, we have a long and consistent tradition of teaching on the ethics of health care, we purchase health care and we pick up the pieces of a broken health care system. Much is complicated about the health care debate. There are multiple committees involved, several bills in process, much information and misinformation being communicated.

USCCB Priorities and Message

Our message is clear and principled. The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops:

1. Supports universal health coverage which protects the life and dignity of all, especially those who are poor and vulnerable. Because Catholic teaching insists that basic health care is a right and is essential to protect human life and dignity, genuine health care reform which protects human life and advances universal coverage is a moral imperative and urgent national priority. For us, universal coverage should be truly universal, assuring decent health care for all from conception to natural death.

2. Opposes any efforts to expand abortion funding, mandate abortion coverage, or endanger the conscience rights of health care providers and religious institutions. Longstanding and widely supported current policies on these issues must be preserved. We urge members of the House and Senate to take all steps necessary to oppose abortion funding, mandated abortion coverage or weakening of conscience rights.

3. Supports effective measures to safeguard the health of immigrants, their children and all of society by expanding eligibility for public programs, such as Medicaid, to all low-income families and vulnerable people and by offering adequate subsidies for cost-sharing of insurance premiums and out-of-pocket expenses.

USCCB Criteria for Health Care Reform

For decades, the Catholic Bishops of the United States have supported and continue to support genuine national health care reform that meets the criteria in my several letters to the House and Senate:

- A truly universal health policy with respect for human life and dignity;
- Access for all with a special concern for the poor and inclusion of legal immigrants;
- Pursuing the common good and preserving pluralism, including freedom of conscience and variety of options; and
- Controlling costs and applying them equitably across the spectrum of payers.

Above all, Catholics are reminded to pray, especially at Mass, that the dignity of every human being be honored and respected.

the country. He said Cardinal DiNardo of Galveston-Houston as well as the Archdiocese of San Antonio has sought assistance from the Industrial Areas Foundation, especially with the issue of immigration.

The Industrial Areas Foundation is the community organizing group that helped local parishes and churches come together to form the Oklahoma Sponsoring Committee. The Web site for the OSC is www.oksponsoring.org.

“Our own archbishop has left this up to the individual parishes to decide whether or not they wish to be involved,” Father Luschen said. He said if these high-ranking Church leaders believed community organizing was in any way contrary to Church teaching, they would not allow it to continue.

Father Luschen said the OSC will not endorse any “political party or candidate.” The focus will be strictly on listening and then working to address issues if appropriate, he said.

Kris Ausdenmoore, a member of St. Thomas More University Parish in Norman, has been hired by the OSC to serve as coordinator. Ausdenmoore said she first got involved with the Industrial Areas Foundation and community organizing while living in Texas. She will office out of Sacred Heart in south Oklahoma City.

The OSC member churches have agreed to support the effort for a period of three years. Father Luschen said parishes involved have agreed to contribute up to 1 percent of their annual budget to the OSC for the three-year period.
Knights Install First Officers

Conducting their first installation of officers, present members of the Holy Trinity (Council 14744) Knights of Columbus gathered for Mass, a picture and dinner with their spouses in June. This chapter includes members of the St. Eugene Parish in Weatherford, Blessed Sacrament Mission in Thomas and Sacred Heart in Hinton. The council members and proposed officers have spent the past few months earning their degrees and preparing for the installation, as well as participating in the annual Tootsie Roll Drive, preparing and serving a parish breakfast, and grooming the shrubs and trees of the parish grounds. District Deputy Ray Brzozowski, faithful in assisting Grand Knight Garth Christian in the process of founding a council, attended Mass, along with his family, and installed the new officers. Chaplain Father Mark Mason encouraged the members and officers to remember their first obligation is to God and family, “remember to choose wisely a few projects each year, that you might complete them successfully, and remain faithful to your other obligations.” Council officers include Grand Knight, Garth Christian; Warden, Enrique Hernandez; Inside Guard, Carl Schneberger; and Outside Guard, Tom Rady.

On Aug. 16, hundreds gathered at Our Lady’s Cathedral for the first Archdiocesan celebration of Our Lady of LaVang. Dozens walked in the outside procession, many organizations were represented with flags, while men carried the statue of Our Lady of LaVang to the church. Archbishop Beltran celebrated Mass with Father Weisenburger and Father Thanh Nguyen. A shrine and gazebo are being planned for the grounds of Our Lady’s Cathedral.

History of Our Lady of LaVang

During much of the 18th century, the nation of Vietnam was embattled in various struggles for power and domination. The northern regions fell under the lords of the Trinh family, while in the southern realm, the Nguyen lords took power. As the 18th century drew toward its close, both of these rulers were shaken and threatened by peasant uprisings and emerging rebel forces.

The strongest among the many uprisings was led by the three brothers from Tay Son. In short order, they overthrew the Nguyen lords and defeated the Trinh lords to restore national unity for the first time since the decline of the Le dynasty. A Tay Son brother was enthroned to be King Quang Trung.

Meanwhile, Nguyen Anh continued his insurgency in trying to reclaim his throne. Earlier in his run from the Tay Son rebels in 1777, he found refuge on the Phu Quoc Island, where Monsignor Pierre Pigneau de Behaine of The Society of Foreign Missions directed a seminary for youths from neighboring countries. The bishop persuaded him to seek help from King Louis XVI of France.

King Canh Thinh knew that Nguyen Anh received support from the French missionary and worried that the Vietnamese Catholics would also endorse his reign. He began to restrict the practice of Catholicism in the country. On Aug. 17, 1798, King Canh Thinh issued an anti-Catholic edict and an order to destroy all Catholic churches and seminaries. A most grievous persecution of Vietnamese Catholics and missionaries began and lasted until 1886. Even after Nguyen Anh succeeded in reclaiming his throne, his successors continued the vehement campaign against Catholics.

It was amidst this great suffering that the Lady of LaVang came to the people of Vietnam. The name LaVang was believed to be originated in the name of the deep forest in the central region of Vietnam (now known as Quang Tri City) where there was an abundance of a kind of trees named La’ Vang. It was also said that its name came from the Vietnamese meaning of the word “Crying Out,” to denote the cries for the help of people being persecuted.

The first apparition of the Lady of LaVang was noted in 1798, when the persecution of Vietnamese Catholics began. Many Catholics from the nearby town of Quang Tri sought refuge in the deep forest of LaVang. At night, they often gathered in small groups to say the rosary and to pray. Unexpectedly, one night they were visited by an apparition of a beautiful lady in a long cape, holding a child in her arms, with two angels at her sides. The people recognized the Lady as Our Blessed Mother.

She told them that from that day on, all those who came to this place to pray would get their prayers heard and answered. After this first apparition, the Blessed Mother continued to appear to the people in this same place many times throughout this period of nearly 100 years of religious persecution.

From the first time the Lady of LaVang appeared, the people who took refuge there erected a small and desolate chapel in her honor. Despite its isolated location in the high mountains, groups of people continued to find ways to penetrate the deep and dangerous jungle to venerate the Lady of LaVang.

In 1886, after the persecution had officially ended, Bishop Gaspar ordered a church to be built in honor of the Lady of LaVang. The bishop proclaimed the Lady of LaVang as the Protectorate of the Catholics. In 1928, a larger church was built. This church was destroyed in 1972 during the Vietnam War.

On June 19, 1988, Pope John Paul II, in the canonizing ceremony of the 117 Vietnamese martyrs, publically and repeatedly recognized the importance and significance of the Lady of LaVang and expressed a desire for the rebuilding of the LaVang Basilica to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the first apparition of the Lady of LaVang in August of 1998.

Christ the King Group Knits Shawls of Comfort

By Cara Koenig
The Sooner Catholic

When you are not feeling well, one of the first things most people do is wrap up in something warm and comforting. That is the driving thought behind Christ the King’s prayer shawl ministry, to give comfort to the sick and downhearted. The idea is simple — a knitter, while creating a shawl, prays for the person who will receive it that they might find comfort, peace, love and God’s healing while they are going through their time of need. The knitter doesn’t know who will get their shawl or if they are sick or going through a rough time. They just know that the receiver needs comfort and prayers.

“There are 12 knitters in the shawl ministry,” said Pam Cullen, the senior adult ministry director at Christ the King. The idea was found on a Web site and Cullen liked the idea and ordered the book that outlines the ministry. The group meets once a month to knit and talk, while others participate by knitting at home. “At least once a week I find a new shawl on my desk and I take it to Father Stansberry to be blessed and place it in my closet until it is needed,” said Cullen.

The shawls have begun to take on a life of their own over the last year since the group has been knitting. “Everyone who receives the shawl is so grateful and moved,” said Cullen. Some shawls have been returned to be reused, the receiver having gained so much and wanting to pass it on. Others have called Cullen and asked if it was all right to give it to someone else they knew who was going through a rough time and could use it.

Each shawl is sent with a card and in it is this blessing. “Be well, be warm, be loved and be comforted.” With more than 40 shawls having been made, that is a lot of comfort and love.

I love to knit and it is a prayerful thing to do.

The Archdiocese of Oklahoma City has strong Scouting programs throughout the state and is represented in the National Catholic Committee on Scouting.

Priests Help Ease Burdens Life Presents

For much of my life I have had to create my own expectations. Sometimes I reached for the stars, but more often than not, I played it safe, taking low risks and making small gains. There was a time I would take what was given and not say a word. I have many priests that I consider friends. If all those friends lined up, it might resemble a line to a confessional at Easter or Christmas. When I was angry at God, these holy men kept me from walking away from the Catholic Church.

I have poured out my soul to many of these men. On the day my brother, Joe died, it was Father Edward Bell who brought me back from the brink. Recently, I spoke with him, reminding him what that time meant for me.

It was the first time I shared a personal loss with a priest. His understanding that day in 1992 has allowed me to do the same with other priests in time of need. Just as importantly, that day I realized through this priest that these men could be friends, they could be trusted. This new attitude took time for my family to accept. It was a definite change from my parents’ mindset. My parents were upset I shared the details of my brother’s overdose with a Catholic priest.

I am writing this on the occasion of the Feast of St. Lawrence, who had the courage to die for people like myself — “the poor, the broken, the disabled.” When he was asked to bring “the treasures of the Church,” he brought us, sealing his fate as a martyr. There was a time I did not feel like a treasure of my life. My life had purpose and this was a definite change.

From that day on I looked for an opportunity to write about it. I also sought chances to share about other personal struggles in my life as a person with a disability. I saw myself as a voice for those who could not, or would not, speak. I saw this as a definite calling: a mission for my life. My life had purpose and this was a definite change.

Supreme Court Justice Let the Veil Slip with Abortion Comment

Sometimes, the veil slips.

It certainly did in a recent New York Times Magazine interview with U.S. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg. There, in the course of relating her surprise at the Court’s 1980 decision upholding the Hyde Amendment (which banned federal funding for abortion), Justice Ginsburg had the following to say about legal history, social policy and political surprises: “Frankly, I had thought that at the time Roe was decided, there was concern about population growth and particularly growth in populations that we don’t want to have too many of. So that Roe was going to be then set up for Medicaid funding of abortion.”

Turn that phrase over in your mind — “populations that we don’t want to have too many of.” Rather odd, wouldn’t you say — odd in itself, and odd in light of such 20th century horrors as the Holocaust and the Ukrainian terror famine, justified by their perpetrators on precisely such grounds? Then there is Justice Ginsburg’s rationale for Roe vs. Wade and its judicially created license to abortion-on-demand: Roe was intended to clear the legal path to federal funding of abortions for poor — read “black” — people, who clearly loom large among those “populations we don’t want to have too many of.”

Little surprise, then, that the National Reproductive Rights Action League (NARAL) had “no comment” when asked about Justice Ginsburg’s comments. One wonders what the first African-American president of the United States will say when Justice Ginsburg leaves the Court.

That the contemporary pro-abortion movement in America is the outgrowth of the early 20th century eugenics movement — which explicitly sought to limit “populations that we don’t want to have too many of” — is well-known to everyone who has bothered to study the history in question. Margaret Sanger, foundress of Planned Parenthood, was a devout eugenicist. Indeed, eugenics was very much the progressive cause back in my grandparents’ day, and enjoyed considerable support among the upper classes. Then came Hitler and his quack racial philosophy and his genocidal “doctors” — and eugenics undeniably got a very bad name. That the eugenic impulse lives on, however, no reasonable person can now doubt, Justice Ginsburg having lifted the veil.

That much, as I say, we should have known all along. What continues to baffle me is the acquiescence of America’s African-American leadership in the decimation of America’s black population by Roe vs. Wade — for even without that Medicaid funding of abortion to which Ruth Bader Ginsburg once looked forward with evident satisfaction, abortion has taken a tremendous toll in the African-American community since 1973 and is likely the primary reason why African-Americans now constitute our second-largest minority, after Hispanic-Americans. And the black political leadership has, with rare exceptions, supported the abortion license.

How does this make any human sense? How does it make any political sense — to support an abortion regime that drastically cuts down your own group’s numbers? Is there any other occasion in history when a political leadership has been complicit in the unnatural (indeed violent) demise of its own population? I don’t know of one.

Just as Sen. Edward Kennedy could have been the leader of the pro-life movement among U.S. Catholics, so President Barack Obama (representing one of those population groups that some people “don’t want to have too many of”) could have been a pro-life leader among African-Americans (who in fact are more pro-life than their white fellow countrymen).

It is all too strange. And very, very sad. Justice Ginsburg deserves, I suppose, a measure of credit for saying publicly what NARAL and Planned Parenthood and the rest of that gang have long believed. But where is the outrage at this blatant defense of legally sponsored and federally funded eugenics? And especially among African-Americans? Where is the new Frederick Douglas when his people, and the rest of us, need him?

Our Hearts Find Peace When We Choose to Feed the Good Wolf

“One evening an old Cherokee Indian told his grandson about a debate that goes on inside people. He said, “My son, the battle is between two ‘wolves’ inside us all. One wolf is Evil. It is anger, envy, jealousy, sorrow, regret, greed, arrogance, self-pity, guilt, resentment, inferiority, lies, false pride, superiority and ego.”

The other wolf is Good. It is joy, peace, love, hope, serenity, humility, kindness, benevolence, truth, empathy, generosity, compassion and faith.”

The grandson thought about it for a minute and then asked his grandfather: “Which wolf wins?” The old Cherokee simply replied, “The one you feed.”

Isn’t this story powerful?!?.... “The one you feed.”

So simple. Yet, we make it so difficult. I find myself feeding the Evil wolf in my selfishness, people pleasing, taking things personally and sitting on my pitiful pot, feeling envious and resentful, giving advice, being intolerant and judgmental of both slow and fast drivers, worrying about financial insecurity, being concerned about what others think of me, controlling the uncontrollable, the list goes on and on.

Jesus taught us that to be human is to be good and that the basic condition of humanity is love and goodness. And so we as humans are generally feeding the Good wolf within, in being the person God is wanting us to be.

We are feeding the Good wolf when we spend time in prayer and meditation, being grateful for our blessings, asking God for knowledge of His will for us and for the power to carry out that will. As we carry out His will and follow the teachings of Jesus, we experience the joy of feeding the Good wolf within.

We are feeding the Good wolf when we are attentively listening and being present to another and focusing on understanding what they are telling us without judgment nor defensiveness and without trying to solve their problem nor giving them advice.

We are feeding the Good wolf when we reach out of ourselves in service to others, offering a smile or a kind word, supporting another, comforting someone who is grieving or bringing food to the poor, etc.

We are feeding the Good wolf when we pause and respond in a healthy loving way to someone who has said or done something hurtful, rather than reacting in a hurtful, inappropriate way.

We are feeding the Good wolf when we enjoy a good steak, watch a beautiful sunset, chuckle at our frailty, hug a child, hold a hand, lovingly touch our mate, pray in a chapel, read a good book, walk in a park, dance in the rain, enjoy a malt, accompany a friend, laugh in the shower, kiss our spouse, do an act of kindness, smile, etc.

It is good for us to notice and acknowledge when we have fed the Evil wolf and forgive ourselves as God has forgiven us. And we can notice and acknowledge the many ways we have fed the Good wolf, be grateful, and know that Jesus, God-made man, is smiling.
Buenas Noticias...

Hoy los fieles vietnamitas Católicos de Oklahoma City. Hoy es un día particularmente especial porque estamos honrando a Nuestra Santísima Madre, mediante su aparición milagrosa con el nombre de Nuestra Señora de la Vang. Muchos de nosotros en los Estados Unidos de América nunca hemos escuchado de ella. Sin embargo, en las décadas recientes, a medida que miles de estadounidenses y sus familias vinieron a los Estados Unidos, hemos comenzado a aprender acerca de Nuestra Señora de la Vang.

Como Católicos, a través del mundo estamos ya en conocimiento acerca del rol único que nuestra Santísima Madre juega en la historia de nuestra salvación. Nuestra Santísima Virgen María es la creación especial de Dios, concebida inmaculadamente y preservada de toda mancha de pecado. Totalmente obediente a Dios, nuestra Santísima Madre siempre respondió positivamente para satisfacer la voluntad de Dios en cada circunstancia de su vida. María fue elegida y fue llamada a ser la madre de Jesús, el hijo eterno de Dios. Ella se convirtió en nuestra madre al Jesús morir en la cruz. Juan, el Apóstol que representaba a todos nosotros escuchó a Jesús decirle, "Hijo, esta es tu madre". Y a María, Jesús le dijo: "Esta es tu hija".

Por lo que María comenzó a ser la madre de todos nosotros. Por lo cual, después de la muerte y resurrección de Jesús, la Santísima Virgen María continuó inspirando a los Apóstoles mientras ellos completaban la misión que Jesús les dejó.

Esta misión incluye la proclamación del Evangelio (la Buena Nueva de Jesús) y la celebración de los sacramentos. A pesar de que María fue llamada por Dios y tomada por Él en cuerpo y alma al cielo, ella continúa siendo nuestra madre, nuestra guía y nuestra ayuda. Ella es la Madre de Dios y la Santa Madre de la Iglesia. Por esto, periódicamente ella aparece en algún lugar en el mundo para recordarnos las bondades y el amor de Dios. Ella hace su aparición para llamar nuestra atención y reflexionar que debemos arrepentirnos del pecado, ella nos asegura su amor y su ayuda.

De este modo, muchas naciones, culturas y sociedades comparten el hecho que Santa María, la Madre de Dios y nuestra madre, también haya aparecido en su tierra. Ella ha venido a diferentes lugares y en varios momentos de la historia. En cada instancia ella ha traído consuelo y alivio. Ella siempre guía a la persona para que escuchen el camino de su hijo Jesucristo, quien es nuestro Señor y Salvador. Ella es siempre una madre dulce y amable.

Hoy estamos honrando a la Virgen María bajo el título de Nuestra Señora de la Vang. Allá en el centro de Vietnam, nuestra Virgen María se apareció a los vietnamitas y los animó a ser fieles a nuestra religión Católica. Allá ella los sanó y los protegió.

Ahora por casi doscientos años después de su aparición, ella ha continuado bendiciendo a las personas en el Vietnam. Los vietnamitas que emigran hacia otros países, como ustedes que vinieron para a los Estados Unidos, nos introducen a Nuestra Señora de la Vang. Nosotros vemos el amor que ustedes tienen por nuestra Santísima Madre y la devoción a ella como nuestra Señora de la Vang. Estamos muy contentos de compartir con ustedes y honrar a la Santísima Virgen María, madre de todos nosotros. Debemos mantenerlos siempre como buenos y fieles personas Católicas, hijos de María, la Madre de Dios.

Festival de coros parroquiales auspiciado por la Florecita

Por Mauro Yanez
Sooner Catholic

OKLAHOMA CITY — Recientemente en la Florecita dieron la bienvenida al primer festival de coros que se celebra en la Arquidiócesis de Oklahoma City. Al respecto, el Padre Raúl Reyes, párroco de la Florecita, dijo: "Los coros que vinieron, lo hicieron para intercambiar ideas y crear confianza para poder conocernos y prepararnos mucho mejor". En este evento el señor Madrid, quien es miembro de la Florecita, expresó: "Este festival nos permite que podamos identificar a nuestros talentos para hacer un pueblo bueno". También el señor Zapata, quien es un gran colaborador de la Iglesia Católica y conocido como uno de los mejores trompetistas de la comunidad hispana de Oklahoma City evaluó su opinión sobre la forma en la que los coros pueden mejorar. El festival busca que para el próximo año, por el mes de octubre, todas las parroquias se integren sin ánimo de competir sino de alabar a Dios con los talentos de los cantos y la música de los coros parroquiales de la Arquidiócesis de Oklahoma City.

Reforma del sistema de salud y una disputa sobre el final de la vida

Por Richard M. Doerflinger
Conferencia de Obispos Católicos de los Estados Unidos

WASHINGTON — Los esfuerzos del Congreso por promulgar una reforma al sistema de salud han desatado un vigoroso debate nacional. Desde el punto de vista católico el tema que subyace es claro: decenas de millones de estadounidenses carecen de seguro de salud básico; muchos más se arriesgan a perderlo a medida que los costos suben. Y esto es un asunto de justicia. Como expresó hace casi medio siglo Juan XXIII: "El hombre tiene un derecho a la existencia, a la integridad corporal, a los medios necesarios para un decoroso nivel de vida; cuales son, principalmente, el alimento, el vestido, la vivienda, el descanso, la asistencia médica..." (Pacem in Terris, no. 11). Una sociedad que no asegura a sus ciudadanos en necesidad los vitales servicios de salud básicos, fracasa en una responsabilidad esencial.

Puesto que el derecho a los servicios de salud se basa en el derecho a la vida, también está claro que lo que ataque la vida no es, en absoluto, cuidado de salud, ni tampoco es una meta legítima de reforma. La Iglesia insiste en que esta reforma es una meta demasiado importante y legítima para verse apropiada por agendas destructivas como la cobertura obligatoria del aborto.

También han surgido preocupaciones acerca del modo en que la reforma podría tratar a las personas que están al final de su vida, específicamente lo que establece: la Sección 1233 del proyecto de ley que cursa en la Cámara de Representantes, acerca de "consultas sobre planificación del cuidado avanzado". Quienes apoyan este texto alegan que es una estipulación inoportuna colocada ahí para asegurar que se respete los deseos de los pacientes de edad avanzada cuando ya no puedan expresarse por sí mismos; quienes se oponen ven la ominosa mano del gobierno impugnando suavemente a la abuela hacia el precipicio.

Pienso que la verdad se halla en algún punto intermedio. Esta sección dice que si los médicos hablan con pacientes del Medicare acerca de "apoyo y servicios para el final de su vida", por ejemplo, el beneficio de tener instrucciones avanzadas conocidas como "testamentos en vida", etc., el Medicare pagará a esos doctores por el tiempo empleado.

Una preocupación en este punto es que el gobierno o los médicos podrían tener agendas en contradicción con las metas de los pacientes. Cuando un funcionario federal propuso por primera vez que el gobierno estimulase a las personas mayores a firmar testamentos en vida, en 1977, fue parte de un memorando explicando cómo reducir los gastos del gobierno en el rechazo de la salud. Esta acción motivó una censura de parte de los obispos católicos y otros.

Otro problema es la presunción de que documentos como los testamentos en vida son siempre positivos, sin importar su contenido. La evidencia, en cambio, sugiere que son instrumentos imperfectos que no siempre sirven los intereses de los pacientes. Las consultas también promoverán cualquier directiva de consentimiento informado que sirva de modelo en el estado donde reside el paciente, y los documentos en algunos estados no establecen distinciones cuidadosas entre medios ordinarios y extraordinarios. Los pacientes podrían no darse cuenta de que firmar algunos formularios podría resultar en que se les niegue incluso atención ordinaria como nutrición e hidratación, durante una enfermedad crónica, aunque no terminal. (La Sección 1233 incluye "nutrición e hidratación administradas artificialmente" entre los tópicos de consulta). Estas preocupaciones han persuadido a redactores clave del proyecto de reforma del sistema de salud en el Senado a desestimar esta propuesta, lo cual causó la reacción del principal proponente del suicidio asistido por médicos, la Hemlock Society (cuyo nombre fue cambiado a "Compassion and Choices" para enmascarar su entusiasmo por envenenar a los ancianos). El grupo declara que ha "trabajado inseparablemente con miembros del Congreso" para insertar la estipulación, y lamento que pudiera ser descartada debido a "información errónea" de que "promovería la eutanasia". Una insinuación a los proponentes si quieren acallar la preocupación de que promovería la eutanasia, no se jacten de que es apoyada por grupos que promueven la eutanasia. Luce que la Sección 1233 tendrá una muerte tranquila y digna, y podemos continuar tratando de llegar a un acuerdo sobre cómo cubrir a las personas que carecen del más mínimo cuidado de salud.

National Infant Shrine Celebrates 60 Years

PRAGUE — The National Shrine of the Infant Jesus celebrated its 60th anniversary on Sunday, Aug. 2. The day began with Mass celebrated by Abbot Father Lawrence Stasyszen, abbot of St. Gregory’s. The homily was presented by Father M. Price Oswalt, pastor of St. Wenceslaus Catholic Church and Rector of the Shrine.

Jim Greff, Prague city manager, presented the Shrine with a proclamation from the city mayor’s office which states that the city of Prague recognizes both the spiritual and economic impact that the Shrine has in the community and that the mayor of Prague proclaimed Aug. 2, 2009, as a day of celebration commemorating the 60th anniversary of the National Shrine of the Infant Jesus of Prague. Danny Morgan, state representative, presented the Shrine with a citation from the state of Oklahoma.

Father George V. Johnson, who obtained permission in 1949 to establish a National Shrine to the Infant Jesus of Prague in Prague, died in 1973. His daughter, Anna Panzarino from New York, and his sister, Georgiana Oberst from Oklahoma City, attended the celebration.

After a beautiful and very moving service, the Shrine served everyone a wonderful barbecue lunch. Matthew Arnold from California presented a couple of talks during the afternoon. The first was “Art, History and Catholic Devotions,” and the second one was “Devotion to The Infant Jesus of Prague.” Devotional prayers to the Infant Jesus of Prague followed his talks. Everyone enjoyed a nice evening meal served by the Shrine. John Michael Talbot performed in concert. Volleyball and horseshoes were enjoyed by many of the visitors throughout the afternoon, while younger guests enjoyed bouncing on a 50-foot inflatable obstacle course.

Visitors from 12 states were present to enjoy the celebration. Rhonda Bartos, director of the Shrine, said she would like to thank everyone who contributed their time, prayers and talent into making this a wonderful day of prayer and reflection.
Inaugural Women of Faith Conference Draws Over 300

NORMAN — More than 300 women participated in the first Women of Faith, Women of Action Conference held here Aug. 22 at St. Mark Catholic Church.

The theme of the conference was Spirituality, Service and Leadership.

Pilar Phillips browsed among the various Catholic ministries that filled the booth space in St. Mark’s commons area, promoting their works with literature and videos. She said the conference is a way to be refreshed and connected to the true meaning of the Catholic faith.

“I love coming to this kind of gathering,” Phillips said. “It brings me back to the center, where we all need to be.”

Among the speakers was Father Juan Molina, O.S.S.T, an Advocacy Program coordinator for the Southwest Region of Catholic Relief Services.

Father Molina told conference participants, holiness requires involvement in the world.

“To be holy, you must be engaged in the world.”

Father Juan Molina

“Leadership is about taking ownership,” Father Molina said. He said he often leads pilgrimages so Catholics can understand the connectedness of spirituality.

“To be holy, you must be engaged in the world,” Father said. He said one way the National Council of Catholic Women involves itself in the world is through its support of the Water for Life ministry sponsored by Catholic Relief Services. CRS helps establish wells for clean drinking water in Third World countries. Father Molina, of San Antonio, said CRS looks at the ministry as “water for life and water of life.” He said the water for life is what the program pulls from the ground to quench the thirst of the less fortunate of the world. Water of life is the baptism we receive when we are consecrated to Christ.
