Just as our Blessed Mother Mary and the Evangelist, called John, came together at the foot of the Cross to serve Christ crucified, so also do the parish families bearing their names come together to serve God by serving each other and all who make up the Body of The Risen Lord.

Father, for having created us and given us to each other in the human family.

Thank you, for being with us in all our joys and sorrows; for your comfort in our sadness; your companionship in our loneliness.

Thank you, for yesterday, today, tomorrow and for the whole of our lives.

Thank you, for friends, for health and for grace. May we live this and every day conscious of all that has been given to us.

Amen.

If you would like to submit a notice for the bulletin, please submit it no later than 12 NOON, TWO Fridays prior to the weekend in which you would like to have it published. Submittals should be emailed to christine@chelmsfordcatholic.org or via US Mail to the Parish Offices at 115 Middlesex Street, North Chelmsford, MA, 01863, ATTN Christine. We will do our very best to accommodate your request.
The other day as I was praying in the rectory chapel, Harry, my cat, was laying on me. He was very content and was purring away as I was doing his favorite things—patting him and scratching him under his chin. He remained on me for about twenty minutes since he was getting the attention he desired. Then, inexplicably, Harry jumped off my lap, walked over to another chair, jumped up and laid down there. He was still purring when he left me, and so I could not really figure out why he decided to move.

That whole incident got me thinking that this is often how we end up treating God. He is paying attention to us and giving us what we want, but somehow it’s not enough. We kind of walk away from Him. And we have lots of examples of this in the Bible.

It starts with Adam and Eve. They literally have everything they need. They lack for nothing. And yet that was not enough for them. Instead they decide that they need the one thing God told them they could not have. In fact, God was very clear about what they wanted—that it would actually harm them—but they go for it anyway. And their decision will reverberate throughout the centuries.

We see it in the story of Exodus. The people complain about the cruel slavery they have endured in Egypt and so God sends Moses to free them. He does some extraordinary things to make it clear to them that He will force the issue with Pharaoh. The ten plagues of Egypt! God then helps them escape Pharaoh’s grasp by parting the Red Sea and destroying Pharaoh’s army. Then the people find reason to complain about the food and so God provides them with manna from heaven, but that is not enough. He provides them with meat and that is not enough. He provides them with water and that is not enough. Even when they are safe and free but Moses stays on the mountain a little too long for them, they reject God and worship idols made of gold. And the gold they used essentially came from the God they were rejecting.

King David is another example. He was taken from being a shepherd and given the kingdom. God rejected King Saul in favor of David. David had everything he could possibly want and yet that was not enough for him. He saw the beauty of Bathsheba, and his heart lusted for her and so he took her. When he found out she was pregnant with his child, he tried to trick her husband into having relations with her, but it did not work and he had him killed. Even though he truly had it all, David wanted something more.

It is so easy not to see all that we truly have. We get so used to what we have that we take it for granted and only recognize what is “missing.” And then we focus on what is “missing” and decide that what we have is simply not enough. It’s like when we buy the newest gadget. We can get obsessed with all the accessories we can add to it, to make it better. The gadget itself is no longer good enough. Moreover, we can start to see the “needed” accessories as almost more important. They tell us what we don’t have, and that what we do have is less than it should be. Our gadget is no longer good enough.

Now, that can happen in our relationship with God as well. The reality is—if we are honest with ourselves—that no matter how much God gives us we can find fault with it. Life, really, is about finding joy in what we have, which reminds me of the lyrics in a song Sheryl Crow sang a few years ago: “It’s not about getting what you want; it’s about wanting what you got.” The reality is that we can so easily lose sight of what is right before us because it becomes too familiar. It becomes the norm and benchmark for what should be. Rather than recognizing the gifts we have, we see them as what we deserve, and therefore do not count them as blessings. We can only focus on what should be ours and is not.

When we look to Christ, we see someone who lived with an eye of gratitude for all He was given. Rather than seeing things as his by right, He recognized each gift He received from the Father as a blessing. Each person who came into his life was a gift. Each day was a blessing and therefore an opportunity to praise God. Each material possession was an opportunity to give thanks. Each way that He was called to be an instrument of God’s mercy in the world was a moment to allow God to be seen.

We need to see life through the eyes of Christ. Rather than focusing on what is not, we need to focus on what God is doing in our lives, each and every moment. All we have is truly good must be recognized as a gift from our loving God. And if we can stay in the moment and see what God is doing for us—with, through, and in us—it can change our expectations. It will no longer be about what is missing. It will no longer be about what we could have. It will no longer be about what could make this moment better.

Instead, it will be about finding joy in the moment. It will be about finding the wonder in all that God has given to us. It will be about learning to be truly content not because of what we have, but rather, because of who gave it to us. It is simply about finding joy in knowing that our God is with us, as seen through his gracious gifts.

If you have any questions about anything, please do not hesitate to ask me directly, or send your questions to me at fr.brian@chelmsfordcatholic.org.

Please keep me in your prayers.

In Christ,
FROM OUR DIRECTOR OF FAITH FORMATION

HEATHER HANNAWAY

In God's Name, Let Us Go Forward

St. Joan is one of my “go to saints’ and the patron saint of our Faith Formation team. To honor her, about a year ago, I added a quote attributed to her, to the signature line of my emails. The quote is simple and straightforward, “Go forward bravely. Fear nothing. Trust in God; all will be well.” I have relied on this simple quote as my own personal mantra, never expecting how much more it would mean to me during this pandemic with all the uncertainties and challenges it has brought with it.

St. Joan struck the perfect balance between boldly seizing the call God placed on her life and surrendering everything to Him all at once. She showed us that unimaginable things can be achieved when we surrender our will to the will of God. She inspires us to let go and let God take charge so that we can be freed of anxiety and uncertainty and be ready to take on any challenge.

This week, I have felt particularly overwhelmed by all the challenges and uncertainties coming at us. I’ve had to pull back in order to process and ponder prayerfully what is being asked of us, to know what insight I might provide that will be helpful, and how we might proceed forward.

As a church, we diligently try to be prudent and flexible in our planning, and to anticipate and meet the needs of our people. Not a day has gone by when we have not had some discussion on the challenges in front of us and those that may be coming and how we anticipate addressing them. The challenges of possibly needing to create a virtual Faith Formation program, virtually celebrating sacramental milestones in meaningful ways, pastoral care of the sick and the dying, and worshipping as a faith community with the social distancing guidelines in place is all quite daunting.

Yet, we know that the truth is that the more we let go and trust in God, the freer we become and the better we can face bravely any challenge this world can throw at us. So, I am trying to let go of the anxiety, to realize that going forth bravely does not mean that I am not unafraid or have all the answers. It simply means I am committed to trusting that God will see us through and show us the way forward, confident that He has some purpose in what we are enduring that will draw us closer to one another and, more importantly, to Him.

I am sure each of you are facing your own challenges and uncertainties during this time. What can we offer each other...let us be faithful in prayer, patient in uncertainty and with one another, recognizing that none of us have the perfect answer or plan, and together in God’s name, let us go forward bravely knowing all will be well.

FROM OUR SEMINARIAN

Andrew John Rondelli

Rejoice with Holy Mary!

- Regina Caeli, laetare, Alleluia.
- Quia quem meruisti portare, Alleluia,
- Resurrexit, sicut dixit, Alleluia:
  - Ora pro nobis Deum, Alleluia.
- O Queen of Heaven, rejoice, Alleluia.
  - For He Whom thou didst merit to bear, Alleluia,
  - Has risen, as He said, Alleluia:
  - Pray for us to God, Alleluia.

If you have been viewing our two parishes’ live-streaming of Holy Mass, the Divine Office, and devotions, you probably have noticed a Latin chanted prayer often ending each liturgy or devotion. This chant is the Regina Caeli, a Marian antiphon for the Easter Season. There are four such antiphons devoted to the Blessed Virgin Mary, corresponding to the liturgical seasons. By decree of Pope Gregory IX in the year 1239, one of these four antiphons to the Blessed Virgin Mary must be sung at the end of the Divine Office, the daily liturgical praying of the Psalms required of priests and consecrated religious. Traditionally, the Regina Caeli is assigned as the antiphon ending the Divine Office prayed during the Easter Season.

Singing or chanting the Regina Caeli antiphon is most fitting at this time. First, the month of May is the month dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary, or “Mary’s Month.” Devotion to our Blessed Mother throughout the month of May originated in Rome in the 1700s. A Jesuit priest, Father Latomia, instituted “Mary’s Month” to counter immorality and infidelity rife in the Jesuit Roman College. This devotion spread throughout Jesuit colleges in Europe, eventually coming to the New World. Venerating Mary during the month of May is suitably in line with the North American holiday of Mother’s Day, which falls in May. We recognize and pay homage to Holy Mary’s perfect model of motherhood, her perfect chastity and purity, and her complete fidelity to God’s will.

For the second reason the Regina Caeli is so appropriate at this time, we turn to Blessed Jacopo de Voragine. In the late 500s, a terrible epidemic ravaged the entire city of Rome. Pope Saint Gregory the Great (I) organized a procession of prayer throughout the streets of Rome to combat the paralyzing virus. Leading the procession, Gregory carried the traditional icon of the Blessed Virgin Mary, made by Saint Luke the Evangelist.

Nearing Saint Peter’s Basilica, Pope Gregory heard angelic voices singing, to which the venerable pope stated, “Pray for us to God, Alleluia,” the last line of the Regina Caeli, which had yet to be composed. The angel of death appeared with his sword, wiping out the pestilence. Let us pray this chant to the Blessed Virgin Mary with gusto and conviction, seeking a swift end to the epidemic we are facing today!

What is the greatest gift each of us has received?
Of course, it is YOUR LIFE (from God)
How will you use it?

LIFE
All about me and only me?

LIFE
All about excuses for not doing something?

LIFE
All about being dishonest or deceitful?

LIFE
We should use it to the fullest for the benefit of all and in accordance with God’s Will!
