Winter is here! Many of our retired folks have left for warmer locations: smart people! For the rest of us, it’s time to hunker down and make the best of it.

I am looking carefully for anything outside that is blooming right now, and appreciating greatly any color at all. I routinely go for a short kayak run on Fridays and last week, although it was dry, it was totally in shades of gray. There was a sublime beauty in it even so.

Here is my reminder to you again about our Mass schedule in inclement weather. We will continue our regular schedule for weekends and weekdays no matter what. I can write this with confidence since both Fr. Hans and I live so close by. So, if you can make it safely, you won’t be turned away.

If in doubt, especially for our seniors, please stay home. We have no way of clearing the parking lot of ice/snow so I urge you in the strongest way to not risk falling. Obligation to participate in weekend Mass is automatically dispensed in the event of bad weather.

On a similar note, with flu season in full swing, along with the usual winter colds, as your pastor I ask you to stay home if you are not well — for your sake and for the well-being of all of us here. As with bad weather, there is no obligation to participate in Mass if you or your kids are not well. And exposing all of us to a nasty bug has to be at least a form of “mortal sin”! Got it? Thank you.

Our school’s Open House takes place this Sunday from 12:00-1:30pm. If you are interested in having your children or grandchildren or neighbors or friends in our school, you are most welcome to come for a tour and to get more information. See the school page in this bulletin as well. I am immensely proud of the work our school does through the skillful work of our teachers, staff, and generous support of our parish.

Finally, thank you to all who put on a great Epiphany party last Sunday. What a happy event it was with our usual huge crowds, abundant food, and positive spirit. Christmas tidings reigned!
Hello, everyone. Happy New Year! Last week I came across the following quote from a Carthusian monk named Augustin Guillerand. It captures well some of the struggles in prayer that we all experience. Kind of encouraging that Augustin Guillerand. It captures well some of the struggles across the following quote from a Carthusian monk named

“...it is the most important and the longest effort in a life dedicated to God. This effort has been given a beautiful name: it is called the guard of the heart. The human heart is a city; it was meant to be a stronghold. Sin surrendered it. Henceforth it is an open city, the walls of which have to be built up again. The enemy never ceases to do all he can to prevent this. We must always be starting again. These continual recoveries, this endless beginning again, tires and disheartens us far more than the actual fighting. We would much prefer a real battle, fierce and decisive. But God, as a rule, thinks otherwise. He would rather we were in a constant state of war.” — The Prayer of the Presence of God, pg. 57

One thing I’ve often found helpful from time to time in my own prayer life, especially when prayer just doesn’t seem to be coming easily, is the use of a daily devotional. Daily devotionals are usually set up as dialogues between God and/or Jesus and ourselves. The words are very personally addressed to us in the midst of daily life.

Often the authors of these devotionals attest that they feel the words of God that they have penned were given to them in prayer; regardless of the actual depth of their inspiration, many, many people have found them helpful. If you’re looking for some new inspiration for your prayer life, consider checking out one of the following (all are available on Amazon):

- Jesus Calling, by Sarah Young
- God Calling, by A.J. Russell
- He and I, by Gabrielle Bossis
- My Other Self, by Clarence Enzler
- The Imitation of Christ, by Thomas A. Kempis
- The Volumes, by Anne, a lay apostle

Baptism of our Lord. Where do we fit in?
See you in the Fireside Room!

We are in need of help with lunches for Jan & Feb. They’ll eat anything.

For What It’s Worth: Thoughts on Faith
Erin Nieves – erin@h-t.org

Just some guy?? It’s that time of year again. Christmas is no sooner over and we are already to set our sights on Easter. Preparation for sacraments has been well underway since the start of fall, but now it’s becoming serious. We can feel some urgency to our preparation.

That importance exists for Catholics because the change of liturgical seasons lives in all of us, deep in the fiber of our beings, and we can feel the pull from what we celebrate on Sunday. As our parish prepares for first sacraments for some of our members, the rest of us have to remind ourselves what we have said ‘yes’ to.

I liken it to an experience I had as Youth Minister. I had a young man, let’s call him Frank, who came because his mother made him come. He ‘frankly’ didn’t want to be there. One evening, frustrated, I asked him why. Exasperated, he said, “All we do is talk about ‘some guy’!”

I had to think about that for a second. ‘Some guy’ indeed! But if we don’t know who that guy is, what we do here at church is meaningless. What’s not so good, what we do with our lives is even worse. I like what Bishop Barron says about Jesus. Either He is who He says He is, or He’s a bad man, and each of us has to decide. If He’s God, I have to give my whole life to him.

As we watch those preparing for sacraments, let’s pray for them that they find the Jesus that has called them to do this. Let’s pray that we more deeply find Him too, and say our ‘yes’ again with all our hearts! +

Kid Zone
Cathie Scott – 503.313.5266
cathiescott@gmail.com

Kid Zone will not be available this Sunday due to the school’s Open House, but drop by and meet the teachers we share our rooms with!

Grow Group
Brett Edmonson – brett@h-t.org

Our “Heroes and Heretics” unit continues! For those who didn’t get a chance to join us last week: The first heresy we looked at was Gnosticism, a distortion of the faith which devalues embodied experiences and finds salvation in secret knowledge.

Up next, we’re turning to the heresy of Pelagianism, which places its emphasis not on knowledge, but on the human will. When, if ever, are we tempted to think we can save ourselves without any help? And how do we avoid slipping into that? Come think through these questions with us!

Please join us on Wednesday from 6:00-7:30pm in Fireside, even it’s your first time!
Bring a dish to share and join us this Wednesday, January 15th at 12:00pm in Fireside as we celebrate the new year!

Senior Luncheon
Kathy Delach – 503.614.9724

Newcomer’s Welcome
Betty Drilling – 503.644.8550

Mark your calendars for our next Newcomer Welcome Get Together: Sunday, January 26th after the 11:15am Mass in the Fireside Room. We look forward to meeting you!

1/25 – ORTL March for Life (begins at steps of State Capitol building); learn more at ortl.org/march

The last couple of weeks I have shared pictures, quotes and numbers with you all in an effort to convey the reason this ministry is here. Sometimes the need can seem overwhelming; maybe even creating the feeling of “why bother?”. When that starts to happen I have found that God always sends a reminder that what we do matters to every single person or family we help.

Just before Christmas, when things were exceptionally busy and the Food Closet was packed with people, a gentleman walked through the front door looking for help. He was heading to Tillamook and, not being familiar with the area, had somehow become confused on the freeway interchange. How he ended up at Holy Trinity we will never know but as one of the volunteers put it “God sent him to us!”. He was in desperate need of food and was about to run out of gas when he saw our big digital sign on Walker Road and thought he would come in. He could have ended up anywhere but he found us. God’s hand for sure!

We never know what God is going to ask us to do or whom he will bring into our lives. Please pray for those who are dealing with food and housing insecurity, that they might find the resources they need.

Out of Love: Social Justice Ministry

“We are faced not with two separate crises, one environmental and the other social, but rather one complex crisis which is both social and environmental, and we need to combat poverty, restore dignity to the excluded and protect nature.”
– Pope Francis, Laudato Si’

January is Poverty Awareness month. Today, as we celebrate the feast of the Baptism of Jesus, consider how, by our own Baptism, we share in Christ’s mission of love and service to our entire community. Does my position of privilege contribute in a positive way to the marginalized in this community, while also protecting our mother earth?

I had the opportunity to speak with him for a few minutes. Turns out he had come to the area to find work as a welder but was unsuccessful. Having lived in his truck for awhile, he was headed back to Tillamook where he knew he could find a job if even in the restaurant industry. He also knew he could find a place in one of the shelters located there until he could afford stable housing. Not what he wants long-term but he felt there he could at least get back on his feet.

We never know what God is going to ask us to do or whom he will bring into our lives. Please pray for those who are dealing with food and housing insecurity, that they might find the resources they need.
