And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. Hebrews 11:6

Obviously in order to put your faith in God you first have to believe that He is real. That is the first step of faith. Once that has been established, you must then move into a relationship with this real Person. That relationship, like any other, helps to build a connection so that you can learn to rely on God. That is what faith is about. You rely on someone or something because you believe that the person or thing will be there for you. Your desire to be in relationship with God is exactly what pleases Him.
