And without faith it is impossible to please him, for whoever would draw near to God must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. Hebrews 11:6

Without faith, you are lost. How can you face the troubles of this world if you do not believe that there is a Higher Power controlling things? Is it really rational to believe in chaos? So many people think it is foolish and irrational to believe in God. I would propose just the opposite. It is absolutely irrational to believe that the very narrow constructs of nature that are required to support life are an accident of fate. But faith allows us to enter into a relationship with God, to seek to know Him more intimately and to discern His will for us in this life. Faith is a gift. Cherish it and nourish it.
