Yet if anyone suffers as a Christian, let him not be ashamed, but let him glorify God in that name. 1 Peter 4:16

I suppose that this is probably not a good enlistment slogan. But it is true, even today. It has become fashionable for the media and the secular world to vilify Christians for standing up for what is right. What they overlook is the fact that the charitable efforts of Christian communities, and the Catholic Church in particular, provide more care and outreach to those in need than any secular organization. Need proof that being a Christian is not easy? Simply look at the Cross. The source and genesis of our faith comes from the Suffering Christ. So if Jesus suffered for what He believed, why do you think you may be exempt?
