“Worthy are you, our Lord and God,
to receive glory and honor and power,
for you created all things, and by your will they existed and were created.” Revelation 4:11

God made all things. Does that mean that He brought them into existence just as they are? Does the belief in God as Creator preclude the concept of evolution? Clearly not. If you really want to go through an interesting exercise, look up Thomas Aquinas' Five Proofs of God. In that you will see the concept of causality or chain of events if you will. The same logic can be applied to the origin of the universe. You can trace causality back to a point at which “something else” had to happen. That “something else” is the power of God, Who brought all things into being out of nothingness.
