Offer to God a sacrifice of thanksgiving,
and perform your vows to the Most High,
and call upon me in the day of trouble;
I will deliver you, and you shall glorify me.” Psalm 50:14–15

Where do you turn when things are going bad and you need help? You turn to God. That is good. But, before turning to God for what you want or need, do you turn first in thanksgiving for what you have? God is not like a genie in a bottle. You do not have to rub the bottle in thanks before asking for what you wish. But would it not be nice to say thank you before asking for more? It is not a magic formula; it is simply good manners.
