In the path of your judgments,
O LORD, we wait for you;
your name and remembrance
are the desire of our soul. Isaiah 26:8

St. Augustine said, "My soul is restless until it rests in You." Maybe that is the very point of what Isaiah is saying here. Although the understanding may be different, in that the Jewish people at that time did not have a sense of an afterlife, it is still God is Whom we find our final peace. We long for God at the very core of our being. Yet we fear dying, the ultimate surrender to God. I suppose that is basic human nature, fearing the unknown. But our faith fills in where our reason cannot.
